MARCH OF LEWIS TO RULE U. S. AT CRITICAL POINT

Next 2 Weeks Spell Victory or Defeat.

The Labor Front

DETROIT, Mich.—Crucial test of labor board and its star chamber powers starts today with Ford in role of the accused. Long and bitter struggle anticipated with the outcome expected to set new precedents. Details on page 5.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa.—Gov. Earle tells "massmeeting" of strikers and miner allies that he will try to force a union election on steel companies. He labels them "wage chiselers." Mayor Shields says strike and meeting are both "washouts." Details on page 5.

CHICAGO.—Two more demands for troops to guard proposed reopening tomorrow of Indiana Harbor plant of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company in East Chicago, Ind., are telegraphed to Gov. Townsend. Independent union fears workers will attempt to crash C. I. O. picket lines to return to work tomorrow. Details on page 5.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—Information percolating from the G. H. Q. of the C. I. O. is to the effect that John L. Lewis is facing the supreme crisis in his spectacular thrust for industrial and political power.

Events of the next fortnight will determine, it is believed, whether his movement for vertical organization of employés by industries instead of by crafts is to go forward or is to decline and eventually peter out like the one big union of the I. W. W.

The fate of the C. I. O. also will determine Lewis' political fortunes. If C. I. O. survives the current setback it has suffered in the steel strike and goes forward to new triumphs, Lewis will loom larger and larger as a presidential possibility in 1940. For this rôle he long ago was picked by the communists and other radical groups that are promoting a proletarian revolution in this country. If, however, the C. I. O. cracks up, the Lewis political boom will go down in the wreck.

Hanging on Ropes Now.

The C. I. O. at the moment is hanging on the ropes, stunned by the staggering blow dealt it by public opinion in the steel strike. Lewis is struggling heroically to get his contender back into fighting form. His demeanor, however, bears mute testimony to the shock he has sustained by the unexpected turn of events on the steel strike front.

Two weeks ago Lewis reached the apex of his current bid for power. He was truculent. He swaggered. He called press conferences at his luxurious offices in the Tower building and held forth at length to the newspaper reporters on the iniquities of employers in general and the specific crimes of some employers in particular. He was full of plans for crippling completely the operations of the independent steel mills by calling out miners and other workers in industries supplying the steel mills with fuel and raw materials.

Now it is an entirely different Lewis who faces the public. No more do the newspaper offices receive the summons to the press conference in the Tower building. No more does Lewis thunder in his press statements. No longer, in fact, is it possible for reporters to gain access to Mr. Lewis to ask him about this and that regarding the steel strike.

Takes to Cyclone Cellar.

The explanation, it seems, is two fold. In the first place Lewis has gone under cover so far as the press is concerned, waiting for the storm loosed by C. I. O. excesses in the steel strike to blow over. In the second place he has withdrawn himself to seclusion in which he is striving desperately to consolidate his forces and reform his lines for a further advance against the industries he plans to subjugate.

Not that Lewis is discouraged, according to his intimates. The turn of events against him in the communities of the independent steel companies he regards as only a temporary setback. He believes that he possesses in the resources of his following and in the aid of the Roosevelt

City Without Death from Fireworks.

270 Killed in Nation

Fourth of July accidents were blamed last night for 270 deaths throughout the nation. But not a death was caused by fireworks, the Associated Press reported. Automobile accidents claimed 169 lives, drownings 58, and miscellaneous accidents the remainder. In Chicago, 65,000 persons attended the American Legion's safe and sane Fourth spectacle. Details on page 8.

With the Fourth of July holiday more than half over, the celebration in the Chicago district was believed last night to be one of the safest and sanest Independence day observances in history.

Sixty-one persons, most of them children, had been needlessly injured by fireworks. But there had been no fatalities from the explosives and most of the victims, barring the possibility of such developments as lockjaw, had escaped major injuries. Several dealers accused of bootlegging fireworks were arrested.

Two Automobile Deaths.

Although motorists by the hundreds of thousands were on the roads, there had been only two deaths from automobiles at a late hour.

[Details of the holiday automobile crashes will be found on page 8.]

There was but one drowning among the throngs who went to the beaches or went boating on the small lakes, the rivers, and Lake Michigan.

Most seriously injured of the fireworks victims was a girl of 5, Genevieve Morabiko of 3356 Grand avenue, whose hand was mangled when she picked up a cannon cracker in the home of Dominick Selleggi, 12 years old, of 6214 Grand avenue.

Girl Picks Up Firecracker.

The boy had lighted the fuse and thrown the cannon cracker on the floor. Thinking it was not going to explode, the little girl picked it up just as the explosion came. She was taken to the Danish American hospital, where it was found that the first joint of her left middle finger had been destroyed.

A bomb like firecracker made by Adolph Hitselberger, 22 years old, 1443 Summerdale avenue, blew off his right index finger. It also injured a boy bystander, Ronald Putz, 9 years old, 1445 Summerdale avenue.

William Reynolds, 78 years old, was among the fireworks victims. He was lighting a firecracker from his pipe at his home, 1211 Garfield boulevard, when he was burned about the face.

Wounded Rowing Boat.

Isodor Dorfman, 23 years old, of 1902 Ellen avenue, was shot in the thigh and seriously wounded while rowing a boat in Fox lake by a holiday merrymaker. Frank Nravla of 1840 22d place was arrested and locked up in the Lake county sheriff's office at Waukegan when witnesses said he accidentally shot Dorfman with a rifle while celebrating.

The drowning victim was Theodore Michaels of 2226 Medill avenue. He was swimming in Meirs bay, Pistakee lake, northwest of Waukegan, when he sank.

Crowds at the beaches, while large, did not compare with previous summer holiday crowds. Many of the bathers left because of the intermittent showers of the early afternoon.

The opening of the band concert season in Lincoln, Jackson, and Garfield parks attracted large crowds. Concerts will be held in these parks at 3 o'clock every Sunday afternoon for the remainder of the season.

Freak weather was reported in many parts of the city. In some sections there was heavy rain, while others reported little. Although no high winds were recorded by the weather bureau, Mrs. Jessie Mills of

Rain Gifts on Cuban Bride of Ex-King's Son

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, July 4.—The count of Covadonga, eldest son of former King Alfonso XIII. of Spain, and Marta Rocafort, daughter of a wealthy Havana dentist, today began their honeymoon at Varadero beach. Later they expect to go to Seville, rebel capital of southern Spain.

Their wedding last night was performed by Notary Public Dr. José Luis Pessino before a $2,500 bower of flowers—rose buds, lilies of the valley, orchids, and ferns—in the home of the Spanish millionaire, Don Manuel Zamora, who was exiled by the Valencia government of Spain. It was the gayest wedding and most brilliant social affair Cuba had seen in years.

President a Witness.

The five hundred guests included the foremost society and the highest officials of the land. President Frederico Laredo Bru, Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army and "strong man" of Cuba; Col. Angel A. Gonzalez, chief of staf of the navy, and other notables signed as witnesses.

The bride, who is 22 years old, wore a $800 bouquet of rose buds and jasmine. The buffet supper and liquors served after the wedding cost $4,500.

The bride's father disclosed today that the pair had received hundreds of presents and enough luxurious pieces of furniture to furnish two houses. They received 106 signed checks with the amounts left blank to fill in. The bride received 15 pearl necklaces, 8 diamond rings, 21 sets of pearl earrings, and 7 gem studded gold bracelets. The count, who is 30 years old, and his bride made a gift of $10,000 to the Roman Catholic church.

Sign Marriage Contract.

In making Marta his countess, young Alfonso and the bride signed a six page handwritten marriage contract, the nature of which was not disclosed.

In the round of toasts that followed the ceremony, President Bru offered the first "to the everlasting happiness and joy of the newlyweds." Col. Batista toasted the "future queen and king of Spain."

Participants in the ceremony and guests for hours crowded around the couple in the flood lighted Louis XV.

MILLS TO TEST CLAIM WOMEN CAN OUTSPIN MEN IN WOONSOCKET

Providence, R. I., July 4.—(AP)—Five Woonsocket spinning mills are to start within three weeks a three months' contest arranged by an arbitration board to determine whether women are to have all the frame spinning jobs or only half of them.

A strike begun ten weeks ago by 800 workers has been settled on all points except the demand that vacancies be filled with men alone. The mills conceded the point on mule spinning, which requires greater strength and agility and which can be done better by men, but the managements insisted women were better at frame spinning—a form coming currently into greater use.

During the contest, the mills are to keep exact records on work done by exclusively male shifts and the competing better-half shifts.

GOV. HOFFMAN IS RESCUED OFF BURNING BOAT

Asbury Park, N. J., July 4.—(AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey was rescued with his wife, two youngest children, and many other passengers today when an engine room explosion ignited the 58 foot power boat on which the governor was fishing. Three hundred thousand persons on the beach watched the incident. Because the boat contained gasoline, no effort was made to save it after nearby craft removed its crew and passengers, including several sea scouts and members of the Brielle chamber of commerce. The governor and his party, among them his military aid, Col. Fred Margerum, had just reviewed a parade of 55 boats.

FIRING ROCKETS ON LAKE WILL BE FINE—$100 FINE

It's fine to have fun, but the fine will cost more than the fun's worth if Fourth of July merrymakers don't stop firing rockets from boats on Lake Michigan, Capt. Alfred Kristofferson of the Jackson Park coast guard warned last night.

Rockets are distress signals, the captain said. Their use on the lake is regulated by maritime law. He cruised around warning people in boats last night. Today and tonight he'll just have them arrested, and the fine for the fun will be $100.

Reds in London Riot as Black Shirts Parade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—Communists and others who hate Fascists rioted in London's streets today. The rioters fought police in a vain attempt to break up a parade of 7,000 Black Shirts. Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the Black Shirts, led the procession.

Sir Oswald Mosley.

Along a three mile route from Kentish town, where the parade formed, to Trafalgar square fighting occurred as demonstrators struggled to pierce the police lines and attack the Black Shirts. Twice the mounted police charged the rioters. Many heads were cracked. Twenty-seven persons were arrested.

Engage in Free-for-All.

A number were cut and bruised as communists and Mosley sympathizers engaged in a free-for-all fight as the Black Shirts, guarded by 3,000 policemen, entered Trafalgar square.

A large group of communists shouted "Get Mosley!" One man dove through the police cordon in an attempt to reach the Fascist leader. He was hauled away by the police.

The communists booed, catcalled, and raised clenched fists as the Fascists swung past.

Communists Penned In.

One hundred and fifty thousand watched the Black Shirt parade. Police in a radio automobile and a squad of mounted men were at the head of the Black Shirts' columns. Foot and mounted police flanked the marchers. Four buses filled with police followed the procession.

Whooping Cough Epidemic Blasts 4th of July Plans

Libby, Mont., July 4.—(AP)—Today was anything but "the glorious Fourth" to the juvenile residents of Libby. By decree of the city's health authorities, all children under 14 years must stay at home until an epidemic of whooping cough has subsided. Plans for celebrating were hastily revised, and in most cases abandoned.

Street Guard Tells of Luring 3 Little Girls

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Detective Lieutenant D. A. Sanderson said tonight Albert Dyer, a street crossing guard in Inglewood, had confessed slaying three young Inglewood girls June 26.

Sanderson said Dyer had been questioned all day and finally confessed to him and District Attorney Buron Fitts tonight.

The girls, Madeline Everett, 7 years old; Melba, 9, her sister, and Jeanette Stephens, 8, had been lured from Centinela park, near their Inglewood homes, to the Baldwin hills on the pretext, their playmates said, of hunting rabbits.

Boys Find Three Bodies.

Their bodies were discovered in a deep ravine last Monday by Boy Scouts searching the area. Each had been strangled to death with a rope and County Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wagner said they all had been attacked.

First tip that Dyer may have had more information about the crime than the casual observer came from George Ray, 25 year old medical clinic employé, who told Lieut. Sanderson that Dyer, on the day following the crime, told him in front of the Inglewood police station details of the kidnaping, attack, and murder that only a person connected with the crime could have known.

Dyer, who was employed as a crossing guard near Centinela park, had often watched his child victims.

Some One Who Knew Them.

Dyer, questioned by police early in the hunt, had told police he was working in his garden the day the girls disappeared. Since then he frequently had been about the Inglewood police station, apparently trying to aid in the search for the slayer.

For almost a week Dyer has been above suspicion, as far as the investigation was concerned, and has drifted about the police station apparently attempting to help in the search.

The three school chums, although they had been warned by their mothers never to venture away with a man, left their toys in the park and hiked to the foot of the canyon, where Dyer says he met them shortly after noon.

Sex His Only Excuse.

"I had no other motive than sex," he gasped. "It wasn't revenge. It was just sex.

"We entered the canyon from the north end. At the point where a charred campfire remains were found, we paused. I took Madeline down the canyon. She thought she was going to hunt rabbits.

"I choked her with my hands. Then I put a rope around her neck.

"I then went back and took Jeanette down the canyon. With my hands I choked her to death." Dyer's story indicated that Melba Everett shared the same fate.

Dyer claimed he violated the bodies after he had killed the little girls. An official autopsy surgeon's report stated that the children had first been attacked and then slain.

TRACE SIGNALS; WARSHIPS RACE FOR SOUTH SEAS

Aircraft Carrier and 4 Destroyers Sail.

BULLETIN.

HONOLULU, July 4.—(AP)—Definite radio signals on a frequency assigned to Amelia Earhart's missing airplane were reported tonight by the coast guard after the aviatrix had been asked to answer broadcast instructions.

The coast guard announced Pan American Airways listeners had reported four distinct breaks in a carrier wave on Miss Earhart's frequency as specified in a broadcast from KGMB a few minutes previously. The wave was heard in 3,105 kilocycles, one of the three wavelengths assigned to the aviatrix' plane.

Shortly before 11:05 p. m. Pacific standard time (2:05 a. m., Tuesday, Chicago daylight saving time) the instructions were broadcast by KGMB. Response of the mysterious sender, similar to that heard Saturday night, came within a few minutes.

HONOLULU, July 4.—(AP)—Mysterious radio signals today revived waning hope for the safety of Amelia Earhart, and spurred into feverish action a veritable armada of navy ships and planes mobilizing for an unparalleled search of the remote South seas. Miss Earhart and her navigator, Capt. Frederick J. Noonan, apparently came down on Friday on an attempted 2,570 mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland Island.

Three agencies reported hearing radio signals after Honolulu radio station KGMB broadcast instructions to the lost world girdling plane to send long dashes in series of two if down on the water, and in series of three if on land.

The coast guard also reported it heard "a man's voice or the voice of a woman with a cold" at 4:01 a. m. Pacific time [7:01 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time] today. It also noted the unidentified signals thereafter, but no further voice reception.

Picks Up Call Letters.

Walter McMenamy, a Los Angeles radio amateur, reported he picked up a voice repeating Miss Earhart's call letters, KHAQQ at 5 a. m., but said it was "too faint to tell definitly" whether it was from the missing flyer.

Paul Mantz, Miss Earhart's technical adviser, who was with McMenamy, said the aviatrix could have sent the radio messages only if her plane was on land—that she had no equipment for transmitting unless the right motor of the plane was turning over.

Recurrence of the signals and their widespread receipt encouraged searchers who had almost given up hope.

"It's a Good Bet."

"It's a good bet," said one searching official.

The mysterious sounds began coming through the air about 9 p. m. Saturday, Honolulu time [2:30 a. m. Sunday, Chicago time], and were heard frequently thereafter. The first was heard about ten minutes after an instructional broadcast.

Listeners described the sound as a "radio squeal" or "carrier wave," on 3,105 kilocycles, one of the wave lengths assigned to Miss Earhart. Radio men said it differed from the carrier waves of ordinary stations and might be a voice carrier.

The special radio equipment on Miss Earhart's plane was designed to transmit either voice or dot and dash signals, as desired.

Feeble Signal Heard.

Pan-American Airways radio, the coast guard station here, and the naval radio station all heard the signal but said it was too feeble to produce a directional bearing.

Listeners also were uncertain as to whether it constituted the dash signals requested by KGMB.

Some authorities said the mysterious sounds might be a "coincidence" but virtually all agreed they strengthened the need for further investigation.

Again and again the station said:

"Earhart plane: Come in on 3,105 kilocycles using continuous wave if possible. If on water turn transmitter on and off twice. If on land turn on and off three times. Use CW [continuous wave dot and dash] in preference to voice if possible.

"Remain on 3,105. Signals have been heard on that frequency.

"Keep your spirits up. Ships and planes are on the way."

Pending arrival of the powerful aircraft carrier Lexington, the battleship Colorado, and several destroyers, the little coast guard cutter Itasca resumed its single handed search in the vicinity of Howland Island.

Its fuel supply was running low after three days of strenuous hunting, but the Itasca sought to solve the mystery of the radio "squeals" and to run down a tangle of reports indicating receipt of various messages during the first few hours of the hunt.

The destroyers Chandler and Southward received orders to sail from the California coast to the scene of operations.

In Washington, D. C., Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, instructed the destroyers Cushing, Perkins, Lamson, and Drayton to accompany the Lexington on a 4,400 mile rescue run with fifty-seven fighting planes. The warships left Point Loma, San Diego, under forced draft at 1 p. m. [4 p. m. Chicago time].

Recalls Rescue of Flyer.

Capt. Edwin C. Musick, famous Pan-American Airways pilot who recently flew a pioneering plane from California to New Zealand, said in Manila that Miss Earhart and Noonan might have good chances of surviving if their plane had landed on the water.

He said the Earhart plane was capable of floating for "a long period" and that their collapsible lifeboat was strong enough to sustain them in ordinary weather for a week or more.

The battleship Colorado, which left Honolulu at 1 p. m. yesterday [6:30 p. m. Chicago time] with three catapult planes, prepared to put the planes into operation at the earliest possible moment and send them to the unsearched area south and east of Howland.

Four Day Trip for Destroyers.

The Colorado did not give its position but on leaving estimated it would require about eighty-four hours to reach the scene, arriving Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning.

It carried sufficient gasoline to sustain scouting efforts for four days but its planes were of the type necessitating frequent returns to the ship for refueling.

Naval authorities estimated the destroyers Cushing, Perkins, Lampson, and Drayton could reach Howland from San Diego in about four days and the Lexington would require five and one-half to six days.

Besides all these vessels the navy auxiliary ship Swan presumably was in the vicinity of Howland Island, but being a 10 knot craft was considered too slow to be of any extensive use in the hunt.

Plane Forced Back.

One such plane out of Pearl Harbor turned back yesterday in what its commander, Lieut. W. W. Harvey, described as "the worse storm I ever experienced in eleven years of flying."

This big plane, with a 5,000 mile range, flew southward about 1,200 miles only to run into a snow, sleet, and lightning storm at high altitude, 300 miles north of the equator and only 370 miles from its goal.

"We were almost forced down by the storm, which we battled for two hours before turning back," Lieut. Harvey said. "Snow and ice almost covered the plane several times and it became so heavy we almost lost control.

"We climbed to 12,000 feet in attempting to get over and dodged about trying to find a pocket, but dawn clouds extended from the 18,000 foot elevation down to the ocean surface.

"We flew 150 miles off our course and within 370 miles of Howland before being forced back. Snow was falling at the 3,000 foot elevation within 300 miles of the equator."

Rescue Plane Travels 2,784 Miles.

Harvey expressed the belief Miss Earhart and Noonan "didn't have a chance" if they encountered the storm, but theorized they did not get sufficiently far northward to run into it.

Harvey and his crew of eight had no sleep during the twenty-four hour ordeal. He estimated the plane had covered 2,784 miles, the longest stretch ever spanned by a plane out of Pearl harbor.

The doughty little Itasca, which had borne the greatest burden of the hunt since its start Friday, rationed its water supply and extended its searching area to a point 200 miles west of Howland.

Besides the mysterious radio signals this morning, it was proceeding also to track down amateur radio reports of signals purportedly giving positions.

In covering the western quadrant it also was covering the possibility that Miss Earhart did not "overshoot" Howland, but possibly fell short of that goal on her ambitious attempt to span the hitherto unknown stretch between New Guinea and the islet.

With soaring hopes the Itasca yesterday morning chased an object which turned out to be a waterspout. Friday night its crew sighted red streaks on the horizon. These streaks at first were thought possibly to be flares from Miss Earhart's plane. It was finaly concluded they were stars rising in the black tropical sky.

Sifting the welter of reports about signals from the Earhart plane, coast guardsmen again concluded the last definite message from the famous aviatrix came Friday at 12:25 p. m. pacific time [3:25 p. m. Chicago time] when she gave an incomplete position report which presumably was near Howland island.

That message was preceded by three others. The first, at 9:45 a. m. Friday [12:15 p. m. Chicago time] said she was 200 miles from Howland. Thirty minutes later she reported her plane 100 miles out. At 11:12 a. m. she broadcast that she had only a 30-minute gasoline supply left and had sighted no land.

IN GIRLHOOD DAYS

Amelia Earhart, noted woman flyer lost in the South Pacific, as she appeared about twenty years ago wearing a graduation cap and gown.

AMELIA DOWN IN WORST SPOT OF SEA FOR RESCUE

Searchers Without Clews as to Her Location.

San Francisco, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart came down in just about the worst spot in the Pacific so far as chances for American rescue operations are concerned.

Tiny Howland Island, which she was approaching when definitly last heard from last Friday at 3:15 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time, is the most remote American position in the Pacific.

Small enough to be easily overlooked either by ship or plane, this coral formation is only one-half mile wide, two miles long, and stands barely above the sea at high tide.

It is about 4,400 miles from the Pacific coast, 2,500 miles or more from New Zealand and Australia, almost 1,000 miles from the nearest sizable American possession—Samoa—and more than 1,500 miles from Honolulu, only American flying base in that part of the world.

Few Shacks Built on Isle.

On its bare, flat surface stand a few shacks recently erected by the interior department in constructing landing fields preparatory to the possible development of commercial flying between the United States and Australia and the southern far east.

Steamships pass occasionally about 500 miles eastward and about 300 miles westward of Howland en route between Hawaii and Australia and New Zealand, but shipping circles here conceded little chance of accidental rescue in that fashion.

If Miss Earhart and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, came down at sea and floated indefinitly, prevailing currents might carry them westward into the Hawaii-Australia shipping lane, but available information was insufficient to compute the probable time necessary for such a drift.

Lack Important Information.

In addition to the handicap of great distances, navigators lacked also the two most important bits of information necessary to tracing the lost plane—its position and the time it came down.

Characteristically, Miss Earhart gave no genuine position report—the thing that navigators need—although she apparently was trying to do so when her world girdling plane came to grief.

Without cold figures—except for a "sun line" position indicating she was somewhere along an imaginary mark crossing Howland Island in an approximately northwest-southeast direction—searchers were entirely without location clews.

She gave no reciprocal figure to show what lateral point she had reached along that line. And there was no telling how far she flew afterward.

One Slender Clew.

The one slender clew in that respect was the last two messages known to have come from her plane, but they were confusing. At 2:12 p. m. Chicago time Friday she broadcast word that she had only a thirty minute fuel supply and had sighted no land. One hour and three minutes later she sent the incomplete position report.

Lieut. Frank Johnson of the coast guard here offered the opinion that if Miss Earhart came down 100 miles northwest of Howland, as conjectured, equatorial currents would carry her westward at the rate of 20 knots [23 miles] daily and her floating plane thus might conceivably reach the shipping lanes west of Howland in a week or so.

AMELIA'S HUSBAND WORN OUT BY LONG VIGIL AND ANXIETY

Oakland, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—George Palmer Putnam, husband of Amelia Earhart, rested at the home of friends here today—worn out by anxiety and two days and nights of constant waiting for word from the missing aviatrix.

"We finally persuaded him to rest," said an attendant at the Oakland airport, where Putnam had spent much time since Miss Earhart and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, reported their plane was nearly out of gasoline over the South Pacific.

The airport attendant said Putnam had gone to the home of friends, whose identity he declined to disclose.

Putnam spent last night at the coast guard headquarters in San Francisco hoping for some confirmation of reports that amateur radio operators had received signals from the missing plane.

He took time to visit Mrs. Beatrice Noonan, wife of Miss Earhart's navigator, at her home here yesterday and tell her: "I have a hunch they [the missing pair] are sitting somewhere on a coral island and sending out their signals."

Before leaving the coast guard headquarters early today, Putnam said:

"I feel the navy and coast guard is thoroughly familiar with all that must be done, so I might as well stop worrying and go get a haircut and shave."

BRITISH ATLANTIC PLANE REACHES BASE FOR HOPOFF

FOYNES, Ireland, July 4.—(AP)—The Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia today completed the first leg of a trans-Atlantic survey flight by making the 351 mile hop from Southampton to this airbase at the mouth of the River Shannon.

The Caledonia is scheduled to start tomorrow on the actual trans-Atlantic crossing to Botwood, N. F., where a big Pan-American Clipper was preparing for a similar eastbound survey flight to Foynes.

The Caledonia's Southampton-Foynes flight was to have been made yesterday, but was postponed owing to bad weather.

CLAIMS AMERICAN FIRM AIDED NAZIS AGAINST MOSCOW

MOSCOW, July 4.—(AP)—An unnamed American manufacturing concern was labeled the tool of the Gestapo [German secret police] in an official article today in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda by Leonid Zakovsky, chief of the Leningrad state police. Zakovsky, whose new book "About Espionage Methods" has become a manual in the drive against foreign spies, wrote in the communist youth paper:

"Our industry administrators were much excited about a foreign company which made some special instruments. The company, although located in America, was closely connected with the German intelligence service. If our people consulted the company they actually consulted the Gestapo. Therefore those instruments caused our people a lot of embarrassment. . . ."

Spokesmen at the American embassy said the article had not been called to the embassy's attention and there appeared little likelihood an explanation would be requested.

Let GREAT WESTERN Care for your SUMMER SPORTS WEAR

Washable summer clothes get a real break when they are sent to GREAT WESTERN for laundering and immaculate pressing. Safely cleansed of all summer soil and muss, all men's and women's suits are custom-pressed and in many instances look better than when they were new. Protection against shrinkage is assured.

MEN'S SUITS - 60c up

Laboratory tested methods—safety tested soaps and nine separate rinsings thoroughly cleanse all types of summer fabrics. Each suit is carefully inspected, then, on a hanger, is delivered to you in a dustproof bag.

LADIES' SUITS - 45c up

Special attention is paid to the many little tailoring details on women's summer suits. Pleats, folds, tucks, and the like are pressed as the designer would want them pressed. They are also delivered on hangers in a dustproof bag.

ZORIC — If your summer apparel requires cleaning rather than laundering, try our ZORIC ODORLESS CLEANING PROCESS. It safely removes all dust, dirt, perspiration spots and stains. Pressing is expert, and finishing is done by skilled hands. Prices extremely modest for quality unexcelled.

AMELIA'S PLIGHT RECALLS RESCUES OF OCEAN FLYERS

5 Navy Men Saved After Floating 9 Days.

The third day of the search of the Pacific for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Capt. Fred J. Noonan, was fruitless yesterday, but hope persisted that the globe girdling flyers would be found.

It was a hope sustained by the knowledge that though at least thirty ocean flyers have crashed into the waves to be seen no more, almost as many others have dropped into the sea and lived to tell their rescuers remarkable stories of hardship and stubborn courage.

On four occasions the rescues were made after the flyers had been lost for three days or longer. Once, the most dramatic scrape with death of them all, five navy aviators drifted for nine days before a submarine happened along to pick them up.

Plight of Rodgers Recalled.

This plane, too, was lost in the Pacific. Commander John S. Rodgers and four navy flyers, trying the first Pacific flight from California to Hawaii, were forced down by lack of fuel short of their goal in September, 1925. They went nine days with only a little food or water. They had no radio. They rigged a foresail on their seaplane by cutting the fabric from the lower wing. Once a ship crossed their bow about five miles away, but did not see them. They were about fifteen miles off Nawiliwili when a patroling submarine sighted them.

Then there was the late Stanislaus Felix Hausner, Polish-American aviator. He drifted for eight days in the Atlantic before a British tanker found him in 1932. And the year before Willy Rody, Christian Johanssen, and Fernando Costa Veiga were saved by a Norwegian motor ship after the Atlantic had buffeted their plane for more than six days.

Antonio Locatelli and three companions were rescued in the Atlantic in August, 1924, by a United States destroyer after three days at sea in their flying boat.

Ruth Elder Among Rescued.

Many other rescues have been made soon after forced ocean landings, including those of Harry C. Hawker and McKenzie Grieve in May, 1919, and of Ruth Elder and Capt. George Haldeman in October, 1927.

On the gloomy side, however, is the disheartening story of Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm and his crew of two. They, too, were lost in the Pacific, but on a flight from San Francisco to Hawaii in 1934. After sending out one weak SOS from the vicinity of the island of Oahu they were never heard of again.

The search for Ulm lasted twenty-seven days. Thirty-four army and navy planes and twenty-three submarines and destroyers took part in the hunt. The coast guard cutter Itasca, now engaged in the search for Miss Earhart, was one of the last to give up hope. Ulm, however, had refused to take along a collapsible lifeboat. Miss Earhart did not.

Five Lost in Dole Race.

Aviation's biggest single ocean disaster occurred in 1927 when five persons lost their lives in the Pacific as two planes failed to finish the Dole air Derby from California to Hawaii.

Other famed flyers who have been lost at sea are Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, in the Sea of Timor, in November, 1935, and Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli, French heroes who hopped off from Paris on May 8, 1927, for Newfoundland and were never seen again.

FEAR PALESTINE RIOTS; BRITAIN SENDS WARSHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—The 32,000 ton British battleship Repulse left Malta, under sudden orders, it was disclosed tonight, for Haifa, Palestine. Renewed outbreak of Arab terrorism, it is feared, will follow the publication Thursday this week of the report of the royal commission which is expected to recommend the partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states and British mandate area. Some Arab agitators, it is stated, already have been arrested.

Military precautions also are being taken inside Palestine, according to reports current here, to deal with the threatened outbreak. Martial law, it is stated, will be declared throughout the country immediately if any trouble starts.

FIGHT DUEL OVER GAME OF BRIDGE; BOTH INJURED

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 4.—(AP)—An argument between Hungarian bridge players who three weeks ago faced Ely Culbertson and other Americans in world championship play culminated today in a four round saber duel.

The combattants were Steven Erdelvi, bank clerk, and Gobor Sima, engineer. A post-mortem over one of the championship hands led to heated words and mutually offended honor.

They settled the dispute at a fencing school. Both were injured in the third round, and a doctor halted the fray in the fourth.

DE VALERA'S LEAD SHRINKS; DOUBT PARTY MAJORITY

Labor Expected to Hold Balance of Power.

DUBLIN, July 4.—(AP)—The possibility developed tonight that President Eamon de Valera would have to rely on labor support to continue in office when final returns from Thursday's parliamentary election are tabulated.

With 23 contests still unreported, De Valera's Fianna Fail party held 59 seats; the party of former President William T. Cosgrave had 37; Labor, 11, and independents, 8.

Observers forecast that De Valera's Fianna Fail would take ten of the missing seats, Cosgrave eleven and Labor two. This would produce a government strength of 69, including the speaker, as against 69 in all other parties. The Cosgraveites form the main opposition.

Called Setback for De Valera.

Opponents of the dynamic president said the closeness of the contest was a setback for him. They asserted De Valera had confidently expected the election would enable him to form a new Free State government without enlisting the aid of any other group.

His opponents also said the comparatively small margin of the vote in favor of his new constitution for Ireland was unfavorable to De Valera. Latest returns showed 324,746 for and 266,856 against the constitution, which would end all ties with Britain.

Labor has opposed the new charter, declaring it threatened their right to maintain unions. Women also have been opposed on the ground it would deprive them of equal political rights.

Two Women Win Seats.

Two women have been returned to the dail, both Cosgraveites, Mrs. B. Redmond for Waterford and Mrs. M. Reynolds in Leitrim.

A father and son won seats, Alfred Byrne, lord mayor of Dublin, and Alfred Jr., both Independents and known as "the two Alfies."

Counting in the remaining constituencies will be finished tomorrow, but returns from distant points may not be in before Wednesday. It will be another day or two before the fate of the constitution is known.

Marta was the second Cuban commoner whom the count had married. Only three months ago a divorce court dissolved his marriage with Edelmira Sampedro, for whose love he renounced his rights in 1933 to the Spanish throne. Over his father's objections the count married Edelmira, whom he met in a Swiss sanatorium as he convalesced from the results of hemophilia, the hereditary bleeding disease from which he suffers.

The count and Edelmira lived in Europe and Havana and then the count worked as an automobile salesman in New York. After the divorce the count came to Havana to marry Marta, but was stricken again and was nursed back to health at Marta's home.

HITLERITES SEEK TO RUIN CHURCH, CARDINAL WARNS

Says Catholicism Branded Public Enemy No. 1.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 4.—"The time to speak has come—the Roman Catholic church is now being branded as the main enemy of the state by Nazi speakers," cried Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, today in St. Michael's church in the Bavarian capital.

Hundreds of members of the Organization of Roman Catholic Youth, which was disbanded by the GSP [secret police], packed the church while the congregation united in a special service of protest against the arrest of Father Rupert A. Mayr, officiating priest of St. Michael's church.

Mayr was seized June 3 on charges of criticizing the government and is being held in Stadelheim prison at Munich. The priest is one of the most popular priests in Bavaria. He lost a leg in the world war and was decorated for bravery.

Father Mayr's arrest was described by Cardinal Faulhaber as a flagrant violation of the German concordat with the Vatican.

"The kulturkampf [culture drive] now has reached the stage where it shows its aim is to destroy the Catholic church," Cardinal Faulhaber said. "Formerly Nazi leaders in speeches denounced bolsheviks and Marxists. Now they describe the church as public enemy No. 1. The Christian faith is in danger."

The cardinal told the congregation that Germans must choose between the Nazi conception of religion and faith in Christ. He disclosed that in many interrogations the secret police had complained that the foreign press was well informed of what happened in Christian churches and that Nazi investigators attempted to establish "how leakages occur."

"I told them we do not need to supply the foreign press with information," Faulhaber continued. "Its representatives neither are blind nor deaf. They can see for themselves how the church is being attacked in the Nazi press."

10 Churchmen Sentenced.

It was disclosed in Berlin that new prison sentences ranging from three years to six months were imposed on ten Catholic churchmen at Koenigsberg because of clashes with police on Corpus Christi day. The police charged the Catholics carried church flags, which has been forbidden. When the police attempted to seize the flags the clash ensued.

Congregations of the Protestant Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] church, which is fighting for freedom of creed, tried to bolster their hopes despite the arrest of their militant leader, the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, who was a submarine commander during the world war, and the imprisonment of 35 other pastors.

While Niemoeller's wife was sitting in the front row of her husband's fashionable church at Dahlem, a suburb of Berlin, the congregation signed a declaration which said that "in all these years of struggle the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller never turned against the state—and was only fighting to serve the church in the faith of his people."

Seek Pastor's Release.

The declaration will be circulated among other Confessional churches and then will be presented to the ministry of justice as a petition for Niemoeller's release.

The Rev. Dr. Otto Dibelius, pastor of Berlin cathedral, preached in Niemoeller's church. He compared the pastor's arrest with the experiences of St. Paul. He based his sermon on the 126th Psalm and the second chapter of Timothy II. He referred to Paul's patience in prison and his confidence that God's word would be victorious.

Speaking of persons who reported "everything that was said in the church" to the secret police, the Rev. Dr. Dibelius said:

PORTUGAL'S PREMIER ESCAPES DEATH BY ASSASSINS' BOMB

LISBON, July 4.—(AP)—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar and virtual dictator of Portugal, narrowly escaped injury today in an apparent attempt on his life. A bomb which exploded on the sidewalk as he was leaving his automobile to attend mass shattered windows 100 yards away but only covered the premier with dust.

Salazar and his secretary were just about to enter a private chapel. The explosion broke windows in the chapel and more distant buildings and tore up a considerable stretch of pavement. Persons who ran toward the scene found the premier and his secretary calmly dusting their suits.

Police said the bomb, a powerful one, had been deliberately placed, but had exploded sidewise instead of in such a manner as to wreck the premier's car.

FRENCH REFUGEE SHIP TRAPPED BY SPANISH REBELS

Paris Sends 2 Warships in Pursuit.

PARIS, July 4.—(AP)—Two French warships were ordered tonight to speed to the Spanish coast between Bilbao and Santander, where the Spanish rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera today captured the French refugee ship Tregastel.

Yvon Delbos.

British reports said the Tregastel had been halted by four shots from the cruiser and when last seen was being taken by another rebel warship eastward along the coast toward Bilbao.

The submarine chaser CH 2 and the sloop Vauquois were sent to the scene of the capture. French consuls at San Sebastian and Bilbao, now rebel ports, were ordered to investigate and report.

Reports to the French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos said the cruiser halted the Tregastel less than three miles off shore, or well within Spanish territorial waters.

Neutrals' Tension Unrelaxed.

LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—The British cabinet will meet tomorrow to review the grave international situation created by the deadlock over conflicting schemes for keeping Spain's civil war confined within Spanish borders.

Although some British authorities believed there were indications Italy and Germany might be won to a compromise, the tension which had gripped European capitals since Friday was unrelaxed today.

Friday a meeting of the directing subcommittee of the 27 nations committee to keep the Spanish war isolated adjourned with Europe clearly aligned in two camps—Britain and France, backed by soviet Russia, against Italy and Germany, supported by Portugal.

Belligerent Rights Sought.

The British cabinet faces a difficult task in trying to find some compromise acceptable both to itself and to the Fascist powers, which want to drop the international naval patrol and accord both Spanish factions full belligerent rights.

Britain and France insist on restoration of the naval patrol, using only their own warships if the Germans and Italians refuse to rejoin them.

British leaders felt such a compromise must be evolved before the earl of Plymouth, British chairman of the 27 nations committee, summons that group later in the week to get all Europe's views on the conflicting stands of Britain and France and Italy and Germany. Otherwise, they believed, the whole nonintervention effort is likely to collapse.

Many Desire Compromise.

The prospect had one hopeful feature, the apparent desire of all parties to continue the nonintervention policy. However, it was admitted that Britain's zeal for compromise would be put to a severe test.

Diplomats in London, Paris, Rome, Belgium, and Moscow continued exchanges on the Spanish crisis. Berlin studied a report from its ambassador to London, Joachim von Ribbentrop, who had a long conference at the foreign office yesterday. Charles Corbin, French ambassador to Britain, was in Paris over the week-end to consult Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos.

IL DUCE FORBIDS ITALIANS TO WED ETHIOPIAN GIRLS

ROME, July 4.—(AP)—Mixed racial marriages for Italian colonizers in East Africa are under strict ban today.

A recently promulgated law provides prison terms of from one to five years for any citizen convicted of "maintaining conjugal relations with any subject of Italian East Africa," or any foreign woman whose customs and traditions are "analogous" to those or an East African.

The rule follows the Italian policy of keeping races in its new empire socially segregated.

Autoist Slays Policeman Who Trails Him and Girl

Lancaster, S. C., July 4.—(AP)—A parked car darted away today when Patrolman B. Frank Sowell went to investigate it. The automobile, occupied by its driver and a red-headed woman, fled with Sowell in pursuit, but crashed into another machine. As Sowell approached the wreck, the fugitive killed him with a shotgun. The slayer commandeered a passing car, in which he and the girl escaped.

FORD MAPS LAST DITCH BATTLE TO RULE OWN PLANT

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 4.—[Special.]—A supreme test of the national labor relations board and its star chamber session powers, as conferred by the Wagner act, will begin here on Tuesday morning when the board opens hearings on complaints by the United Automobile Workers' union that the Ford Motor company is guilty of unfair labor practices.

Officials who today announced completion of all arrangements for the hearings admitted that never before has the authority vested in the board been directed against as powerful and determined an adversary as Henry Ford, and they expect a long and bitter struggle.

It is felt by both sides that this case will make new law. Some of the attorneys who will play leading rôles in the case believe the matter of Ford versus the NLRB may determine the full extent of federal power to force labor agreements upon employers and employés.

Predict Appeal to Highest Court.

Both sides predict that whatever the outcome of the hearings in Detroit, the case will be carried into the federal courts and perhaps to the United States Supreme court.

The mechanics of the hearings are as follows: A board examiner aided by several board attorneys will present evidence at the hearings in Detroit, and the Ford company also may call witnesses. Counsel for both sides may examine and cross-examine, and also may file briefs.

At the conclusion of the hearings, the trial examiner prepares what are termed "intermediate findings." These, along with a transcript of the evidence and the briefs, are sent to the actual members of the board in Washington.

Board Issues Own Decree.

After examining the record, the board makes its own findings and either issues a "cease and desist" order directing the company to stop its unfair practices, or dismisses the union charges.

If either side wishes to carry the case to a higher authority, the matter will be taken before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati. This court has full authority to enforce any of the board's findings, a power which the NLRB lacks.

Finally, if a constitutional question is raised by either side, the ruling of the Court of Appeals may be appealed to the United States Supreme court.

Ford Maps Constitutional Defense.

That the Ford attorneys now are pointing their guns toward a final adjudication of their case by the country's highest tribunal is indicated by the nature of the formal answer and denial of all charges which was filed yesterday with the Detroit office of the board.

In defending its distribution of antiunion literature among its employés—one of the points about which the U. A. W. A. complained—the company raised the plea that a denial of this right would be infringement upon its constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press. The company would be entitled to an appeal to the Supreme court on this point alone.

John T. Lindsay, of the labor board's staf of trial examiners, will preside here. The board's case will be presented by three members of the litigation department—Laurence A. Knapp, John T. McTernan, and Christopher Hoey. L. T. Colombo will appear as attorney for Ford.

Union's Strange Attitude.

One of the strangest aspects of this case is the attitude of the U. A. W. A. leaders. In public speeches and their weekly publication—the United Automobile Worker—their utterances are such that in an ordinary court proceeding they would be considered prejudicial and probably would result in a mistrial.

For instance, in the United Automobile Worker of Wednesday, June 30, the lead article begins with the words:

"Uncle Sam has stepped in vigorously on the side of the U. A. W. A. in its attempt to organize the Ford workers. The National Labor Relations Board has issued a complaint against Henry Ford which bears out the charges which the union has been making about this feudal industrial empire."

On the front page of the same issue is a three column photograph of Frank H. Bowen, Detroit regional director of the NLRB, and of Knapp, one of the men who will present the case against Ford. The caption refers to the two men as "government officials who have Ford up a tree."

The labor board, however, merely laughs this off with the assertion that "It doesn't matter in the least."

LEWIS'S MARCH TO RULE U. S. AT CRITICAL POINT

Next 2 Weeks Spells Victory or Defeat.

There is universal confidence in the C. I. O. that the President stands with them body and soul in their battle with the economic royalists whom he has proclaimed it his ambition to subjugate.

The whole episode has demonstrated anew that no combination of forces is strong enough to withstand the impact of public opinion. Lewis had what looked like an irresistible coalition. In addition to his own C. I. O. forces he had the sympathetic coöperation of the President of the United States and the governors of Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Violence Unrebuked.

He was investing the steel mills with armies of pickets openly resorting to intimidation and violence in unabashed violation of the laws on peaceful picketing. Such violence and intimidation even in riots incited by the C. I. O. went unrebuked by the President and the governors. Then Governor Earle of Pennsylvania invoked martial law and Governor Davey of Ohio mobilized the militia to close factories and deny thousands of non-strikers the right to work.

For the Lewis coalition that was the fatal step. Public opinion rebelled. It upheld the right to work as well as the right to strike. Both governors beat a hasty retreat and the mills reopened. The reaction surged into congress and the President found himself hard pressed by Democrats demanding that he denounce the violence and denial of rights attending the strike. He yielded to the extent of the "plague on both your houses" remark, which quieted his party in congress for the time being at least.

Lewis likewise shows himself on the defensive. He has removed from their commands C. I. O. leaders accused of dynamiting outrages and other violence in the strikes. Officials who called unauthorized strikes in the automobile factories have been disciplined. By these acts he is endeavoring to disprove the steel companies' charge that the C. I. O. is irresponsible and avert a refusal of the automobile companies to renew their contract with the C. I. O. next year because of the "wildcat strikes, 200 of which the C. I. O. has failed to prevent" since the signing of the contract.

EARLE GOADS ON STEEL STRIKERS; PROMISES VOTE

Lashes Company Heads as "Wage Chiselers."

Johnstown, Pa., July 4.—(AP)—Gov. George H. Earle, Pennsylvania's New Deal governor, told a rain drenched throng of cheering steel strikers and coal miners today that the state's attorney general would go to Washington Wednesday "to see if he can't force an election."

The governor told the crowd, estimated at 7,500 by Sherif Michael J. Boyle:

"You don't need acts of violence when you have Franklin Delano Roosevelt in Washington, a liberal congress, and a governor like me."

Union Claims Majority.

Gov. Earle's comment on "forcing an election" referred to the claims by John L. Lewis' C. I. O. leaders that the union would win if collective bargaining elections were held in the plants of steel companies along the 7-state steel strike front.

Gov. Earle said there was one question he would like to ask the executives of "little steel"—the corporations which have refused to sign contracts with the union.

"That question," he said, "is why the companies have refused to sign union contracts and thus caused labor to wonder whether 'little steel' simply wants to chisel millions of dollars out of the hearts of their workers.

"This refusal of the steel masters," he added, "is a violation of the Wagner act, I believe."

Philip Murray, chairman of the C. I. O.-Affiliated Steel Workers' Organizing committee, told the meeting that a deliberate "campaign of misrepresentation" is being conducted "to destroy labor's movement."

Facts Discount Boasts.

John Ghizzoni, international organizer of the United Mine Workers, told the crowd:

"We are going to win this strike."

In contrast to that statement officials of Bethlehem Steel said all but 1,000 of the 15,000 workers normally employed at the corporation's Cambria works were back on the job. Mill operations throughout the Mahoning valley in Ohio were booming toward peak production, company officials said.

The strikers at the meeting here booed lustily when Chairman Murray mentioned the names of Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel, and Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem.

Murray charged forty women were gassed in Youngstown, two men killed, one infant, in the arms of its mother, was blinded for life, and "not one policeman was hurt."

Murray's mention of Mayor Daniel J. Shields, outspoken opponent of C. I. O. and the strike, brought vigorous boos from the crowd.

Earle Gives Advice.

Shields, commenting on the meeting, said:

"From the size of the crowd and the weather, I would say the strike as well as the meeting is a washout."

The crowd acclaimed Earle with shouts. The governor advised his listeners to heed these three regulations.

1—"Drive the communists out of your ranks.

2—"Labor must keept its contracts once they are made.

3—"Commit no acts of violence. I don't know who planted that dynamite around the plants, but I do know that the company has offered a reward for the offenders. The labor unions ought to offer a reward, too. Then, they would show the public that they don't condone violence, and would be happy to learn who the culprits are."

Claims March of 40,000.

Holiday calm prevailed in Johnstown. James A. Mark, union strike leader, had asserted that 40,000 miners would march to the city today in a "huge show of strength."

At Youngstown, O., a crowd estimated by National Guard officers at 600 heard Clinton S. Golden, Pittsburgh organization director, declare:

"We've just begun to fight."

At Warren, O., scene of another C. I. O. called massmeeting, John Sylvey of Columbus, O., a C. I. O. commissary director, told a rain drenched crowd which police and union officials estimated at 1,500, that union members found guilty of unlawful acts would be expelled from the union.

DEMAND TROOPS TO AVERT INDIANA STEEL VIOLENCE

East Chicago Union Fears Rush on Plant.

Two additional requests for troops to avert violence at the proposed reopening tomorrow of the Indiana Harbor plant of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company in East Chicago Ind., were telegraphed to Gov. M. Clifford Townsend at Indianapolis yesterday. The mill, employing 7,000 men, is the only major plant still closed by the strike against independent steel companies called last May 26 by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Association of Steel Employés, independent union of Youngstown workers, wired the governor that unless troops are on hand by tomorrow morning it may be impossible to restrain men who wan to go back to work from attempting to crash through the C. I. O. picket lines.

Ministers Ask Troops.

The second request for troops went from the committee of East Chicago ministers headed by the Rev. Orville P. Manker, pastor of the East Chicago Methodist Episcopal church. The committee, whose poll of Youngstown workers found them 4 to 1 in favor of returning to their jobs, told the governor immediate action is necessary to avert bloodshed.

Gov. Townsend, reached late last night at Sturgis, Mich., said he had not received the two requests for troops and promptly added that he saw no need for them. He declared he had no information that the Youngstown plan would reopen tomorrow, but admitted he had no information that it would not open.

A special detail of fifty policemen was ordered to report at the South Chicago station yesterday afternoon to be held in reserve for a possible C. I. O. demonstration against the reopening Saturday of the Youngstown company's plant in South Chicago. They were withdrawn late in the day.

E. W. Wolfe, secretary of the East Chicago Chamber of Commerce, estimated yesterday that the strike thus far has cost this city of 60,000 population more than 3 million dollars in lost pay rolls. Reopening of the big Inland Steel company plant last week had an immediate reviving effect on business, he said, although the first pay day will not be until Aug. 1.

Hearing to Resume.

Attorney Frederic R. Burnham, counsel for the Inland company, continued to insist yesterday that he and Attorneys Ernest S. Ballard and Herbert Friedlich will boycott the national labor relations board hearing of C. I. O. charges against the company unless a ruling is received from Washington on the exclusion of their court reporter on Saturday.

The hearing is scheduled to be resumed tomorrow under Charles A. Wood, board trial examiner, who ruled the reporter was in contempt for refusing to stop taking notes. The three attorneys then left the hearing in protest.

AGE—900 YEARS

By CALEB

ALMOST a thousand years ago Olaf I of Norway was attempting to introduce Christianity into his country. Ethelred of England was making treaties with the Norsemen and with Normandy.

About that time there fell in the great unknown western hemisphere—an acorn. There were no dividing lines of nations or of states. There was no South America and no North America. Simply in a great wilderness near the Atlantic Coast it fell.

By chance it escaped the hunger of beasts and was pressed into the soft earth. In a season or two a fresh green shoot stood well above the ground. No animal nibbled at its tender leaves. No hoof happened to cut short its existence.

By the year 1003, Sweyn of Denmark landed a large armament in England. Ten years later the Danes under Sweyn drove Ethelred from his country and became its masters.

In the vast unknown western hemisphere among all the other growing things unnumbered, the oak shoot had become a straight and stalwart sapling.

In Europe and Asia, teeming crowds of people toyed with civilization, fought battles, reared children, worshiped, slept, wept, dreamed, and died.

In the still of the western hemisphere an oak was growing. In the year 1096 the first Crusade was started, and the oak was a tree almost a hundred years old, mighty and majestic even in those, the days of its youth.

Time swirled on. A hundred years more and the oak was a great tree. In 1215 John met his nobles at Runnymede and under their stern pressure signed Magna Carta.

And still time unrolled the giant scrolls of history.

Today, Middleton Oak, over nine hundred years old, stands a mighty masterpiece of nature near Charleston, South Carolina. Twelve feet in diameter and 37 feet in circumference, this giant tree spreads its limbs over an area almost 150 feet across.

All great things grow from small beginnings. This inspiring tree, which people stand and revere is testimony to the modest start. Great works, great careers, great creations, great businesses have usually small beginnings. Great achievements of this store and the people in it have frequently resulted from a persistent nurturing of an originally small but sound idea.

TAKE SUMMER EXERCISE EASY, DOCTORS WARN

Start Slowly; Rest When You're Tired.

Taking your summer exercise is like driving your automobile—you should start slowly, then shift into high gear when you get the feel of it, and then intc the speed which your judgment tells you the motor will carry smoothly.

This is the advice oi Dr. Irving S. Cutter, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, and other leading Chicago physicians. The doctors agree that the average man from 40 to 60 years old can play eighteen holes of golf a week without harm if he plays slowly and rests when fatigued. If he plays nine holes several times a week, so much the better.

"He can get in better trim three days a week, for example," said Dr. Cutter. "He should walk leisurely, at three or four miles an hour. Don't, on your vacation, go out and play eighteen holes in the morning and another eighteen in the afternoon, unless you exercise throughout the year.

Rest When Y u're Tired.

"When you become fatigued stop. A hard and fast rule is difficult to provide, but that is pretty near to it. Some men are old at 40, some young at 60. But remember: stop when you become fatigued."

Dr. Thomas P. Foley said he agreed thoroughly with this, and added a word of caution about eating.

"Don't eat a hearty meal and then try to play golf," he warned. "Rest after meals is essential. Too many men play golf in the morning, overeat and overdrink, and then play again in the afternoon. Many deaths attributed to acute indigestion are the result of straining the heart by too strenuous action after heavy meals. Especial attention should be paid to diet during the summer."

Dr. N. C Gilbert cautioned: "As men get older they need less strenuour types of exercise than those resorted to by youth. No type of exercise, for young or old, however, should be tiring."

Be Careful Past 40.

Youth, said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, is not so likely to overexercise, as he usually is in trim. People past 40, however, should be careful. Eighteen holes of golf, especially when you're not accustomed to it, can damage the heart, especially if a few hazards and sand traps send up the blood pressure.

"It's madness for city people," Dr. Bundesen declared, "especially the middle aged, many of whom lead sedentary lives, to think they can go out and engage in the most strenuous exercise suddenly and without conditioning just because it's summer and they're on vacation. Every one should remember that his body is like an automobile—or a race horse—and should be treated with the same consideration."

Drink Plenty of Water.

While exercising and perspiring, remember to drink plenty of water, the doctors advised. The water should be cool, but not cold. The temperature of the stomach is 100 degrees and the temperature of water from a cooler is 40 degrees. It is a shock to the stomach to receive such cold water. Either drink warmer water or "chew" it a bit in your mouth to warm it, doctors advised. Drink at least two quarts a day, both with meals and between them.

Persons on vacation tours usually encounter many varieties of water en route. If you are traveling swiftly and not for too many days it is wise to take your water with you, or to drink soft drinks.

Another suggestion the doctors offered: Put a little salt in your water during the summer. It will replenish the salt lost in perspiration and will prevent heat exhaustion. If you drink beer put salt in it, too.

Reports Snowflakes.

Miss Sadie MacCloud, 7555 South Shore drive, said she saw snow fall for three minutes in the afternoon, the flakes melting before they reached the ground. Observers at the Municipal airport weather bureau doubted that there was any snow, however, saying that hail, which could be mistaken for snow, might have fallen.

In South Shore, Otto Kaiser, 50 years old, was arrested in his drug store at 2238 East 71st street, where a little girl told police she had bought the fireworks she was shooting. Also arrested was Kaiser's clerk, Ralph Walters, 33 years old, of 2241 East 71st street.

Arrest Follows Injury.

Florian Pacanowski, 23 years old, was arrested in a grocery at 2301 South Sacramento avenue on a charge of selling fireworks. Frank Hawski, 10 years old, of 2329 South Sacramento avenue, told police he had bought the firecracker that sent him to the County hospital from Pacanowski.

Others arrested on charges of selling fireworks were George Brandt, 61 years old, owner of a confectionery store at 2931 Fifth avenue, and Edward Sipowicz, 45 years old, owner of a store at 2419 69th street.

Two Chinese sisters, Albertin and Mary Ann Maye, 18 and 20 years of age respectively, were arrested last night in their home at 267 West 22d place on charges of selling fireworks.

DIES WHILE ON PICNIC.

While picnicking with his family yesterday in the White Eagle grove of the forest preserve, near Fortieth avenue and Haas street, Lyons, Stanley Strzelczyk, 50 years old, 3228 South 49th avenue, Cicero, owner of a butcher shop at that address, fell dead from a heart attack.

SAFE FIREWORKS THRILL 65,000 AT LEGION SHOW

Display Is Stirring Finale on Patriotic Holiday.

More than 65,000 Chicagoans streamed into Soldiers' field last night and viewed a stirring military and pyrotechnic finale to a day of safe and sane Fourth of July celebrations.

The event was the third annual Independence day celebration sponsored by the Cook county council of the American Legion. Mingled in it were airplanes zooming overhead, the symmetry of marching figures, the resounding martial airs of many bands and brilliant fireworks displays, ending with the Stars and Stripes flaming against the night sky.

Packed to Pillars.

Lieut. Walter McKinney of the Chicago park district police estimated the crowd at almost 70,000. The east side of the mighty stadium was packed up to its Corinthian pillars. The south side also was full. The west side alone had a few empty tiers, and those were in the space set aside for the more expensive reserved seats.

There were still other spectators. Ten thousand or more lined the steps and grounds of the Field museum, to the north of the stadium, and thousands lolled on the grass at high vantage points in Grant park to watch the crescendo of rockets and fiery stars.

Skies Clear; Crowds Come.

Afternoon rains had dampened hopes for a baner attendance, but as evening came and the skies remained cloudless and clear the spectators poured in. So completely had the brief rains disappeared that even the seats were dry. Its principal effect had been to impart a brilliant green to the turf on the stadium field.

On to this green, at 8 p. m., as dusk fell and the western skies became streaked with coral and mauve, marched an awesome group of grenadiers, in red and white uniforms and high plumed hats. This was the drum and bugle corps of Victory post, No. 7, of the American Legion. Behind them, in swift rhythm, came the blue coated Carson Pirie Scott corps.

Musicians Fill Field.

Soon the field was filled with marching musicians—the orange caped women fifers and drummers of the Women's auxiliary of the Cook county council; the Legionnaire sons of the Englewood post, in bright blue with red ties; the sons of the Palmer post, in white with blue sash and tie; the Harold A. Taylor post—and still others.

While they stood at attention and the vast audience stood in silence the formal flag raising took place.

The next event was the arrival of Miss Marybeth McGurk, 4108 Kenmore avenue, a brunette with a long bob, who had been chosen from among 350 aspirants to be crowned queen of the Great Lakes.

Planes Make Display.

The queen's arrival was interrupted by a sudden zooming overhead, as, diving through the skies in V formation, pilots from the United States naval aviation base at Curtiss field, flew their planes—the sunset reflected on their metal wings—low over the field.

In such swift succession came the American Legion's crack drill team, the 1st Tank Corps post, No. 245, in a series of geometrical maneuvers; and for the children, some 15,000 of whom were guests of the Legion—teams of acrobats; performing Dobermann Pinschers and baby elephants.

Four battalions of white clad seamen from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, directed by Admiral Hayne Ellis, went through a half hour of perfect motion and won an ovation.

A half hour of fireworks concluded the program. Liberty Bell, the Chicago skyline, the heroes of America's four great wars, all soared in stars and flame. Near the close of the show, the head of Amelia Earhart was flashed in colors as the vast audience stood in a moment of prayer for her safety.

ROOSEVELT ASKS VENERATION FOR U. S. FOUNDERS

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 4.—[Special.]—On the one hundred and sixty-second anniversary of the independence of the United States, President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation setting aside the period from Sept. 17 to April 30, 1939, for a commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the constitution, its ratification, and the inauguration of George Washington, the first President.

The President said the constitution was signed Sept. 17, 1787, and had been ratified by the necessary number of states by June 21, 1788. His state, New York, did not ratify the constitution until June 26, 1788. New York's ratification was given in the old courthouse at nearby Poughkeepsie. Washington was inaugurated April 30, 1789, which gives the basis for the last date in the proclamation.

JAPS PRAY FOR SOULS OF 100,000 BULLFROGS, SACRIFICED BY SCIENCE

TOKIO, July 4. — (AP) — Solemn prayers for the souls of 100,000 bullfrogs sacrificed for experimental purposes in the last year were offered today by high priests of the Sasa Buddhist temple. The rites were in keeping with the Buddhist belief that all things, animate or inanimate, possess souls or spiritual qualities.

The services opened with chants, the sounding of gongs, and the burning of incense which the chief abbot explained would comfort the frogs' spirits.

A living specimen of the 100,000 bullfrogs for which prayers were offered in Japan yesterday.

Before the prayer service dedicatory exercises were held for a granite monument erected to the memory of frogs by the physiological department of Keio university. Sixty eminent Japanese scientists attended. Called "The Tomb of Toads," the monument is surmounted by two bullfrogs leaping at one another. At the base is a moving epitaph for the frogs of the world which have contributed so much to scientific research.

Two Convicts Escape from Prison at Michigan City

The detective bureau was asked by Indiana authorities last night to be on the lookout for two convicts who escaped from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City late yesterday. They are Clifton Baum, 51 years old, and Ralph Nally, 43. Baum was serving a term for murder. Nally's crime was not described. Both men are said to have relatives or friends here.

STRICKEN ABOARD TRAIN.

TWO ARE KILLED AND 4 HURT BY AUTO COLLISION

Failure to Stop for Light Blamed.

Two young men were killed and four others shaken up and bruised last night in an automobile collision at Diversey parkway and Ashland avenue.

Hamilton Atchison, 22 years old, 1030 North Wolcott avenue, and Leon Szpak, 23, of 856 North Wood street, were the ones killed when their car overturned. The four in the other car were slightly hurt. They were Paul Jacobs, 22, of 700 Barry avenue; LeRoy James, 18, of 2860 Broadway; Roy Auxer, 19, of 405 West 62d street, and Walter Petrie, 21, of 629 Wellington avenue.

Crash at High Speed.

Atchison was driving north in Ashland avenue and Jacobs west in Diversey parkway when the machines collided at high speed. Witnesses told police that Atchison ran through a red light.

Two young men were killed and their girl companions injured when their car collided head-on last night with a truck in the 7600 block Archer avenue, Justice Park. A pedestrian was also hurt. The men killed were Lloyd Galeraith, 18 years old, of Carroll, Ill., and Elmer Charles Koch, 20, address not learned, members of the Willow Springs CCC camp.

The girls were Mamie Tyskowski, 19 years old, 7524 58th street, Summit, and Jean Ciskowski, 18, of 8515 Manistee avenue. Miss Tyskowski suffered a skull fracture. Miss Ciskowski's injuries were slight. They were eastbound with the two men when their car, in passing another car, crashed into a westbound truck driven by Walter Huesch of Willow Springs. His truck ran off the road and hit Daniel Bobl, 43, of 757 Bunker street, a pedestrian, causing leg and shoulder injuries.

Six Killed in Chicago.

Timothy Galvin, 70 years old, 8801 Lowe avenue, died in Auburn Park hospital last night of injuries suffered on June 29 when he was struck by an automobile backing out of a garage at the rear of his home. The driver was John Williams, 42 years old, of the Lowe avenue address.

From June 30, when the state legislature, because of a patronage feud, muffed its last opportunity to pass a drivers' license bill which has been effective in reducing motor deaths in other states, to 4 p. m. yesterday six persons were killed and 159 injured in trafic accidents in Chicago. Between Jan. 1 and 4 p. m. yesterday 521 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county, according to the coroner's office. Of these 405 were killed in Chicago, where 10,803 were injured in the same period.

Woman Plunges to Death from 18th Floor Apartment

Mrs. Pearl Blakesley, 32 years old, plunged to her death last night from her eighteenth floor apartment at 415 Fullerton parkway. Her body struck on the sidewalk in front of the building. Hudson avenue police questioned her husband, Richard Blakesley, an editorial employé of The Chicago Herald and Examiner. He said that his wife had been ill recently.

HIT BY BASEBALL; DIES.

Joseph Hanson 68 years old, 417 Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, died yesterday in the Oak Park hospital of a brain injury, incurred June 15, when he was hit by a baseball while watching a sandlot game.

HUSBAND SHOOTS ESTRANGED WIFE, THEN KILLS SELF

John Sekula, 58 years old, 1509 Superior street, shot and seriously wounded his wife, Helen, 44, last night, and then shot and killed himself. The double shooting took place in front of 1813 Superior street.

Sekula and his wife had been separated for some time. Last month she had him placed under peace bond after he threatened to shoot her. She was sitting with her sister, Mrs. Pauline Herseck, and other relatives in front of the Herseck home at 1813 Superior street last night when Sekula came up. After a quarrel Sekula left, but returned a few minutes later and shot her in the abdomen and himself in the right temple. Mrs. Sekula was taken to County hospital. The Sekulas have three children, Anna, Joe, and Walter.

Wife Admits Kidnap Story a Hoax to Hide Gambling

Mrs. Violet Maxwell, 32 years old, reported to the Shakespeare avenue police yesterday morning that she had been kidnaped and raped. But, when questioned by Sergt. James Lynch, she confessed that she had told the story to explain her all night absence from her home at 1227 North Otis street. She had gone to a gambling place, she said, after leaving a women's bunco party, and lost the week's salary, $25, earned by her husband, Frank.

Window Shattering Blast Blamed on 4th Celebrator

Many windows were broken last night in the plant of the Bloomer Heating and Ventilating company, 1245 West 47th street, by a mysterious explosion in a small lot to the west of the plant. Stockyards police at first believed the blast was caused by a bomb, but later decided it was the work of a holiday celebrator who evidently used dynamite or some equally powerful explosive.

Confesses Kidnaping Child; Love Children Her Reason

Hoboken, N. J., July 5 [Monday].—Mrs. Loretta Grabowski, 20, confessed early today to kidnaping 3 year old Della McCarthy from a playground here Saturday. The child, unharmed, was surrendered by the woman and restored to her father, Frank McCarthy. "I always loved children," was Mrs. Grabowski's only explanation for the kidnaping.

FLORIDA FISHING BOAT CAPSIZES; 6 DROWN; SAVE 36

Valparaiso, Fla., July 4.—(AP)—Six persons were drowned today when the fishing boat Bab capsized in East Pass channel between Choctawhatchee bay and the Gulf of Mexico. Several others aboard—some reports said as many as three dozen—were rescued. Those drowned were:

Mrs. Alonzo Smith, 55, wife of the boat owner; Babe Smith, 35; nephew of the boat owner; Mrs. Babe Smith and two of her children about 4 and 2 years of age, and Mrs. Zula Taunton of Niceville.

The report said all bodies but Babe Smith's had been recovered. It was believed to be in the forecastle of the overturned boat.

Two Cars Blow Tires at Same Spot; 1 Man Killed

Valparaiso, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—Virgil Slade, 20, of Crown Point, Ind., was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Joseph Spurgeon of Gary, Ind. Slade was riding with his father when a tire blew out. Spurgeon's car came along and as it was alongside Slade's car, it also blew a tire. Spurgeon lost control and crashed into Slade's car, crushing Slade between the two cars.

RED CELLS IN THE C. I. O.

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan put the seal of authority on the collection of facts which shows the work of the American communists in John Lewis' C. I. O.

"Communists," he said, "deliberately created disorders as in the Lansing labor holiday, the Consumers' Power company strike, and in some phases of the sitdowns. They not only sought disorders but they sought bloodshed. They wanted bloodshed and they tried to draw us into a fight."

Gov. Murphy said that the C. I. O. membership was not communistic but that Red cliques had bored into the organization and, seeking to turn the organizing activities into civil war, had some success. The qualifications the governor adds to his recognition of the communist element supporting John Lewis may raise some doubts concerning the completeness of his information.

On the very day he was talking in Lansing, Matthew Woll, representing the American Federation of Labor, which had been invited to join the International Federation of Trades Unions, attending the congress of the unions in Warsaw, found that the delegates from the countries of communist trades unions didn't want him or his federation. They wanted the C. I. O.

The French delegation, which was communistic, supported by the Mexicans, who are communistic, and by other delegations, opposed Woll and wanted Lewis.

The American was astonished. He was aided by Sir Walter Citrine, president of the International Federation and secretary of the British Trades Union congress, but as president of the federation he chose not to risk a vote after the debate. Woll has since been taken in, thus joining the American federation to the international body, but the opposition from communist sources in favor of Lewis and his organization was proof of what the members of the Moscow Internationale think of the C. I. O. and what they hope to gain in the United States through Lewis' activities.

Confirmation of the reports of Moscow-directed action is found wherever an investigation is made. In Michigan the known members of the communist party are uncovered taking charge of the C. I. O. program, going over the heads of the ostensible leaders of the movement in the state, violating contracts into which the C. I. O. had entered, and, as Gov. Murphy said, seeking to provoke not only disorders but bloodshed. They already are trying to unseat Homer Martin, whom they call a "psalm singing saphead."

A few names will reveal their importance in directing the Michigan insurrection against the law. John Anderson, communist candidate for governor of Michigan in 1934, is an organizer for the United Automobile Workers. William Weinstone, a member of the central committee of the communist party in New York, is secretary of the United Automobile Workers' renter's and consumer's league which has been trying to fix rents and prices by force. Other known communists are Tom Perry, or Parrott, and Nat Ganley, or Kaplan. The conditions are so dangerous for Martin that he is trying to effect a Red purge.

The tactics of the communists are well known and are based on the first principles of their party activities. They bore into an organization and then endeavor to capture it and throw out any half-way measure men who stand in their way. This was Lenin's grand maneuver and it put his minority of bolshevists in control of Russia.

In Ohio the same communistic cells were found in the Lewis organization, and in Pennsylvania they have been held responsible for the more violent acts, such as the dynamiting of industrial plants and water mains. In the riot in South Chicago now being exploited by the senate civil liberties committee, as it calls itself, communists were found among the fighting section of the crowd which attacked the police.

In Pennsylvania Lewis' C. I. O. has driven even the moderate American Federation of Labor union into desperate acts which reflect discredit upon it by endeavoring to break down the conservative labor movement. Instance after instance in which the communists have taken direction of the C. I. O. could be given. These communist cells were comparatively harmless organizations until the policies of the federal government and of many of the states gave them assurance that the clock was about to strike their hour.

They thought they saw their menshevists and that they could perceive the presence of their Kerensky. The Popular Front was offered them in methods adopted by the persons in control of the Democratic party. They were invited in and they welcomed the opportunity. In New York state they have lost their legal position as a party because so many of them voted Democratic that they now have an insufficient number of voters, as shown by the poll lists, to be recognized as a political organization.

A New York court has decided that they will not be able to hold a primary this year because they haven't enough votes. Those missing votes helped the Democratic ticket to carry New York. But if they have lost their own party standing it means that they are well inside the Democratic party and of La Guardia's party. They have not disorganized their own party because they were foolish but because they were instructed to join the Popular Front. What they join they intend to seize.

John L. Lewis is undertaking, with the aid of a full war chest collected from his miners, to become the supreme authority in American industry. His effort is to get control of the master elements of American production, a Russian procedure, true in every respect to communist principles and tactics. He is at present nowhere concerned with working conditions but only with the consolidating of his personal control of the major sources of production.

If he should get it his word would be final and authoritative throughout the United States. It was not without meaning that he should be found with Congressman W. I. Sirovich of New York at the Washington reception for the soviet flyers who came over the north pole from Moscow to the American coast. It is not without meaning that the flyers were given the flattering reception they had, and it is of still greater meaning that they timed their flight to land in America when Lewis and his C. I. O. needed something to distract the public attention from their violent activities and take some of the curse off the Red purges which fill the world press in reports from Moscow.

What Lewis has driven the A. F. of L. unions to do in Philadelphia indicates that the United States may soon be another Spain or China torn to shreds by rival war lords.

POLITICS VERSUS HUMANITY.

For no good reason other than that it usually happens that way, the editorial desk continues to receive more than its usual quota of statistics to show the beneficial results of drivers' license laws in other states. Going back to the year 1926 for a 100 per cent base, the relationship between gasoline consumption and motor vehicle deaths shows a low index of 78.8 for the standard license states during the year 1936. Nonlicense states, on the other hand, show an increase of 15 per cent in the number of fatalities. Just at this time these records serve to emphasize the deplorable loss of life and accident toll that must be endured for several months due to the failure of our legislature to pass the standard drivers' license law that was before them.

Everybody is interested in this situation whether or not he may operate a motor car: the parents who must worry every time a child leaves home for school or an errand; the great majority of sane drivers who know how to operate their machines safely but must always reckon on what the reckless or incompetent driver will do; the pedestrian who must frequently use the crosswalks; the parents who must see their sons and daughters take the wheel alone the first time. They have been trained as far as it is humanly possible, but will they be able to escape the unexpected maneuvers of the careless motorist?

For the purpose of emphasizing the carnage that is taking place on our streets, which would have been mitigated by a drivers' license law, THE TRIBUNE turned the hands of its massacre clock to zero as the legislature closed its doors. The record now shows the killed and injured since our legislators, unable to reconcile their differences, placed politics before humanity and permitted legislation to die in committee.

We are not concerned to measure relative responsibility for the impasse created. Both factions share it and both are charged with the duty of removing it and putting a license law on the statute books as soon as possible. Every day of postponement challenges the humanity of our lawmakers.

AFTER SAFETY, COMFORT.

Admittedly air transport has one great advantage over the surface varieties. There is no contact with steel rails or a cement highway, which, in spite of rubber tires and insulation, transmit vibration to the rider. In an airplane he can completely relax. There is no necessity for muscular reactions against vertical or horizontal motion.

But flying can be bumpy in areas where turbulent air conditions prevail. The result is that uncomfortable sensation experienced when descending from the top of a high building in a fast express elevator. Not infrequently it will cause air sickness, closely akin, in so far as the patient is concerned, to seasickness or train sickness. In other modes of transportation there is nothing that can be done about these discomforts except to improve the steel or cement highway and study spring reactions. In air transportation, however, it is not necessary to follow a rigid course, and detours around the thunderhead, or whatever is causing the atmospheric disturbance, are possible.

The speed supremacy of the air lines will remain unchallenged. They are now concentrating on maximum safety and uninterrupted schedules. The next item on the program might reasonably court greater comforts through the avoidance of rough spots in the air.

WHAT THE NATION IS SAYING.

[Peoria, Ill., Journal-Transcript.]

After talking with Charles P. Taft, former chairman of the department of labor's failed mediation board, President Roosevelt told his press conference that he and Mr. Taft were agreed that "the nation as a whole, in regard to the strikes, is saying just one thing: 'A plague on both your houses'." Mr. Roosevelt, however, declined to amplify this cryptic utterance.

Following the press conference Stephen Early, one of the President's secretaries, endeavored to impute to his chief an attitude of neutrality. "The statement in its castigation includes those who advocate violence and those who refuse to bargain with employés," Mr. Early explained. "It excludes employers and employés, organized and unorganized, who do not believe in violence and are honestly willing to pursue collective bargaining in the spirit as well as the letter of the law. They are by far the majority."

Here is a "majority," however, which has received no aid from any federal agency. On the contrary, the federal administration has aided John L. Lewis in so many ways and at so many times that executives in "little steel" are not disposed to accept the President or any one whom he might appoint as a disinterested mediator.

What the contending "houses" need is not a "plague," but an umpire who commands public confidence. The Taft mediation board utterly failed to bring peace to "little steel" because it was notoriously constituted as an aid to Lewis.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

TODAY is the second section of the double-header Independence day celebration, and we wish, wistfully, that we didn't know tomorrow's papers will have lengthy lists of persons killed and maimed by our annual explosion of patriotism.

"THOSE PEOPLE who are constantly urging us to think on higher things stir me to battle," averred the Ageing Cynic. "A man can't keep his mind always on the price of meat and vegetables."

THE MORDANT M. K. A. feels that the fellow who gives us a piece of his mind is too often depriving himself of something he needs very much.

AT THE END OF HIS ROPE.

May I call to your attention Ike Pearson, who is being treated for shock and exhaustion by a doc down our way? Ike was bringing his cow home from pasture the other evening and when he opened the barn door he discovered the body of a neighbor who had found the barn a handy place to hang himself. Ike turned and fled. . . . At the inquest the coroner asked him what he did after seeing the body. "What you'd a-done," said Ike; "I didn't stop for two blocks." . . . "And why did you stop then?" demanded the coroner. . . . To which Ike replied: "I wondered why I wasn't makin' better time, so I looked around and there I was still draggin' my cow." THIS SEA OF GREEN.

This sea of green will know a sudden change
If heat hags revel on these slopes for long.
A time is near at hand that will be strange—
The lark and oriole will lose their song;
The hills will turn to yellow and the maw
Of noisy red machines will gape for grain.
I watch the harvesting; the mounds of straw
Will be a symbol of full bins again.

These heading fields; are they the very fields
In which I labored through the months of spring?
I used to almost pray for heavy yields—
A grubber's yearning is a gnawing thing
That coupled with his creature wants gives power
To forge ahead and make his spring dreams flower.

THIS IS THE SEASON when the fogies who take the near-sighted view begin to be desperate about the immorality of the trimmed down bathing suit and the shorts. There is no use arguing with these worthies, and the gentlefolk who wear the things are perfectly right in devoting themselves to their sports and refusing to bother about the not-involved moral issue.

"TAPS"—REVEILLE TO POETS.

Once more we sound a call to poets. Radio station W-G-N has a beautiful musical arrangement for the army call "Taps." The criticism is that the words that are sung to it do not measure in dignity and sentiment to the music. The Line o' Type has volunteered the opinion that its poets can do better. Again a rhyme and meter guide for each stanza:

Soldier, dream!
Let the gleam
Fame has cast on your grave shine supreme.
Visions last
For the brave—
Soldier, dream!

The cliché "shine supreme" is definitly bad. We suggest that poets who'd like to help us to a better lyric listen to the W-G-N octette sing its present version between 10 and 10:15 tonight. W-G-N would like three stanzas, each of the length above; and those who wish to assist are asked to forward their versions to the Line o' Type.

No Proper Accompaniment.

The brilliant young lawyer made his argument. It could not have been better; it was a masterpiece. All the old lawyers felt that their laurels were looking a little tattered. But the sage old judge ruled against the youngster's client. . . . They met a little while later, the judge and the new lawyer. "Why," said the attorney, "did you do that, judge? Wasn't it a good argument?" The judge replied: "My boy, it was the finest exposition of law and fact I ever heard in my court; and I hope you'll come before me some day with a case to fit it." PARKIN.

A Scotchman came to Parkin, which is a town in Arkan.,
Where he parked his car to look the city o'er.
But he broke the laws of traffic, so a cop, with smile seraphic,
Said, "The magistrate you'll have to go before."
There they fined the guy a buck, and he almost ran amuck;
It rent his heart and cut him to the core.
With a teardrop in his eye, Scotty kissed the buck good-by—
And he'll park in Parkin, Arkan., nevermore.

ON SECOND THOUGHT.

The slow train stories remind me of another classic. When I was assistant engineer on the Iola Northern I had as fireman a slow but honest local boy named Ole. For weeks I trained him on matters of safety and economy. Particularly he was to conserve oil and wiping rags, which cost real money. . . . One day I tested his knowledge. "If you and I were making the afternoon run," I said, "and all of a sudden we saw a train coming at us on our track what would you do?" Ole pondered this. "I would grab the oil can and the wiping rags and yump," he said at long last. Charles not Charlie.

PUT THE BRAKES ON ANXIETY.

EVERYBODY evinces a reasonable degree of anxiety. It is but natural; an accompaniment of love and affection. But when it is carried to the point where the individual can think of nothing else but his own welfare or that of some relative, it may amount to disease.

It has been called mental pain—a reaction to the threat of something from the outside that bids fair to interfere with one's well being. The whole nervous system is keyed up for response. There is no possibility of relaxation, as the patient behaves as though he expected to be attacked at any moment by some fearful ogre. Is it any wonder then that these persons subject every organ in the body to undue strain? So great is concentration that pain may be forgotten, and when questioned about some important ache there will be no awareness of the circumstance.

There are many grades of the phenomenon. One may be solicitous about failing health, that a job may be lost, or that funds will not be forthcoming to meet a payment. Most of us are able to compensate for or adjust ourselves to devastating situations. Many, however, are not. Even minimal worries, through their constant presence, may wear down hitherto stalwart poise.

I have but little patience with those who preach that the victim should be removed from his surroundings; taken out of every contact to which he has been accustomed. True enough, if physical health has been affected, every opportunity must be given for rehabilitation, and more rest—even a change—may be required. But to thrust an active man or woman into an environment of enforced idleness will do little other than offer free rein to the worrying propensity. Encouragement is vital, but the development of reasoning power is better. The sufferer must be taught the rules of cause and effect.

With some, dread is obviously a sign of mental disease. No cause can be found in business, family, or social affairs. Neither the patient nor any member of his family can determine what he is worrying about. He will state merely that he is living in constant perturbation and that he is conscious that a horrible fate is hanging over him. If he can attach the dejection to some minor incident it satisfies him for the moment. When this is explained away and shown to be fallacious, he seeks another. So it goes throughout every day, month after month.

There is another class of pessimists who have been panicky so long about anything and everything that when some real reason for apprehension appears they are utterly indifferent to it. They seem to be stolidly unconcerned. But when the danger is past there may occur an obvious physical collapse, with tremors, dilated pupils, sweating, and even diarrhea.

Occasionally there is real danger of self-destruction, as an anxiety state may develop into true melancholia in which the patient loses completely the sense of personal responsibility. The objective is to get out of the way. These cases call for expert watchfulness, although the less noticeable the supervision the better.

Many of our worries are part and parcel with disposition or temperament, and some persons will disturb their families with their constant forebodings. In this way they bid for sympathy, petting, and special attentions of all sorts. These are the neurotic worriers who exaggerate the severity of every ache. At the risk of being termed cruel, heroic treatment will win ofttimes. This demands the assignment of a task each day and gradually, as opportunity offers, increasing duties can be thrust upon the patient.

Under good nursing care and family coöperation recovery will take place in many instances. Along with medical management there must go the best possible hygienic régime. We can detect the first signs of returning normalcy when the victim is willing to discuss the future quite frankly. There will come some doubts, to be sure, but there will be evident an ability to analyze which will resolve all problems after a while.

SINUS TROUBLE.

M. J. M. writes:

1. I have sinus trouble and have decided to get as much sunlight as possible. What is the best time to take sun baths?

2. Is it desirable to take an eggnog before or after meals?

3. Is there any real cure for sinus trouble?

REPLY.

1. You can take more sunlight early in the morning or late in the afternoon. The rays are more powerful around noon when they are vertical. Be sure to expose yourself gradually, taking just a few moments on each side the first day, and then increasing the amount by a minute each day thereafter.

2. The best time to take an eggnog is between meals—in the middle of the morning or the afternoon or just before going to bed.

3. Adequate drainage plus an increase in body resistance.

STREPTOCOCCUS.

A. D. writes: What is the streptococcus, the germ now so common? By what symptoms can one tell if he is affected?

REPLY.

Streptococcus is an organism that may gain entrance to the blood stream through wounds, cuts, or abrasions of the skin; or via the tonsils, teeth, sinuses, etc. The first objective is to avoid the presence of this bacterium by removing all possible foci of infection. Prompt attention to injuries—no matter how slight—is important. Allow penetrating wounds to bleed freely, and use hot water and soapsuds on cuts, etc.

Should large numbers of streptococci enter the bloodstream they may attack the heart, the joints, and many other parts of the body. Anti-streptococcic serum is of value in some cases, and blood transfusions are of considerable help. A new drug—prontosil—is regarded as a powerful enemy of the hemolytic variety of the microbe. Symptoms are fever, chills, and malaise.

LOOKING AT LIGHT.

Miss A. C. writes: Why is it that I cannot stand any amount of light? When I look at the sun, at an automobile headlight, or even a candle light, I see three or four horizontal lines for about an hour afterward. Even if I look at a reflected light on a windowpane, I cannot see for a long time.

REPLY.

Photophobia, or intolerance of light, may be due to three main causes, namely:

1. Defects in the eye itself.
2. Certain occupations involving work under eye-straining conditions.
3. Some disease condition.

No one should gaze at a bright light. Should one do so the image of the source will be visible for quite some time thereafter. You are probably unusually sensitive. If the symptom proves annoying wear smoked or colored glasses for a time. A skilled ophthalmologist should examine the retina.

SPOTS ON TEETH.

D. C. writes: I have brown spots on my teeth. I think it is tartar. What causes such spots and what can be done about them?

REPLY.

Tartar consists chiefly of phosphate of lime deposited from saliva. Mixed with this are food particles and bacteria. When it first forms it is soft and can be removed by brushing. If allowed to remain for a few days its removal is more difficult. Regular brushing of the teeth is essential and should be done after each meal and at bedtime. In some the saliva is high in minerals. You can dilute this by drinking more water and by more chewing. Use coarser foods—those that require prolonged mastication. If the deposits defy your efforts—your dentist can remove them.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY MARTIN MARTELIUS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden.—A delegation of American doctors—members of the Interstate Post-Graduate Medical association—has arrived in Stockholm. The delegation consists of fifty physicians.

Dr. William Peck announced that the association sends a commission to Europe each year. He said Sweden was chosen this year because the nation boasts some of the most modern hospitals in Europe.

Dr. Peck said it is planned to reorganize the American hospital system. He said that in the United States there are only hospitals suited to the very rich and the very poor, "whereas the middle man, who represents the largest part of the population, is left out of the scheme." He added that the United States has much to learn from Sweden in this respect.

The delegation already has visited London and Oslo, Norway. The delegation plans to visit Helsingfors, Leningrad, Moscow, Warsaw, Vienna, Zurich, Berne, and Paris.

A mysterious epidemic has broken out in an artillery establishment at Ostersund in northern Sweden. The first case occurred on May 18 and was diagnosed as pneumonia. Since then 50 men have fallen victims to the disease. As the complications have been very severe, physicians reached the conclusion that a wrong diagnosis was made in the first place.

Some of the patients have been sent to the state hospitals as the complications—suppuration of the lungs—are proving dangerous. Five men have died and the chief surgeon of Stockholm's Epidemic hospital, a bacteriologist, has been sent to Ostersund to study the epidemic with the possibility of discovering a cure.

CONSERVATOR NECESSARY.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A certain party inherited some money some time ago. Whoever is interested in him knows he is not fit to handle this money. He is of age.

1. Is there a place one could go to stop him from getting it to spend foolishly?

2. Would it cost anything? He holds no insurance.

3. Are his near relatives held responsible for his funeral expenses?

4. If so, is there not some way that a sum of money be held from him for that purpose? W. F.

1. The ordinary course is to employ an attorney to bring court proceedings for the appointment of a conservator.

2. If you can satisfy the court as to the grounds for the appointment, then costs would be paid out of the estate.

3. Yes, if he has no assets.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EARLY MORNING ALARMS.

Chicago, July 1.—[Friend of the People.]—May I again ask your department to have a stop put to an early morning hour nuisance? A crowing of several roosters at 5307 of our street is the nuisance. This party has been asked to do away with the roosters but insists upon replacing them after a time. Any advice or services rendered in this matter will be more than appreciated. G. K.

Officers interviewed the owner of the roosters who states she had purchased 12 young chickens for eating purposes and intended to keep them until they got a little larger. She was advised of the complaint and she said she did not want to have trouble with any neighbor and would dispose of her chickens at once.

SHOULD BE WRECKED.

Chicago, June 24.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a three story building on the southwest corner of our street which is a menace to the lives of children who constantly play ball on the street and walks. It is nothing but a shell, floors, stairways, etc., have been torn out, openings have been made and left open. On the second floor there is a window sill hanging loose over the sidewalk. Children do not realize the danger of a building in this condition. Can something be done about it? M. N.

Our inspector reports this is a vacant three story brick store and flat building, which is open and subject to vandalism. Building is structurally safe. The owner has been notified to repair or wreck the building, and, having failed to comply, the matter is now in the legal department for prosecution. The police department has been requested to watch the building until such time as we are empowered to have the building wrecked.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,

LIMITATION PERIOD.

Galesburg, Ill., June 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a note, made in the state of Illinois eighteen years ago outlawed if there has been no payments or no interest paid on the note? M. W. R.

The limitation period is 10 years from maturity date. Hence, if the note was payable 10 years after date, it would now be barred. Other exceptional possibilities occur to us, but it seems probable that the liability is barred. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE DRINK.

Chicago, July 2.—The disagreeable, fishy, grassy tastes and odors in the Chicago water supply, especially on the south side, began on June 23. They appear to be reaching a point of maximum intensity. These tastes and odors are caused by microscopic plant growths normal to Lake Michigan waters. Technically they are known as plankton, and in their process of growth give off essential oils which impart the peculiar fishy, grassy odor to the water. The form which is largely responsible for these odors is called dinobryon, although at the present time other species of plankton forms, especially diatoms, are present in the water in considerable quantities.

The fishy, grassy taste occurs practically every summer in Chicago's water supply to a greater or lesser degree. The worst period of which we have a record appeared during the first three weeks of July, 1926. Another period of very disagreeable odor due to the same cause occurred in the Chicago water supply in 1935 during the period July 1 to 22. It was caused by a combination of two types of algæ, dinobryon and uroglenopsis.

These algae growths are not known to be harmful to human beings. The chlorine applied to the Chicago water supply for the purpose of disinfecting apparently does not intensify the odor caused by the algae growths. There is every reason to believe that the action of the chlorine is to oxidize the odor-producing oils and slightly reduce the intensity of the odor.

It has been found that the objectionable fishy, grassy odors can be successfully removed by proper treatment in a filtration plant. The experimental filtration plant at 69th street and Oglesby avenue has been producing an odorless water all during the period that the city water supply has had the taste and odor trouble in the water supply.

During the last few days, while the number of complaints of objectionable tastes in the water has been high, there has been a marked increase in the number of citizens who have called at the experimental plant for bottles of filtered water for domestic use.

APPARENTLY AS SIGNED.

Chicago, July 1.—Who in L is Bill Terry, anyhow? I wonder what Boston is in the National league for, anyway? He cannot find one man from Boston for his All-Star team. But this is different. He has six—get this, six—from his New York team. They're supposed to be ball players. I wonder what they call the Boston team—hockey players, or what?

Another thing: We have no third baseman in the National league; we got to play a shortstop at third. O, well, what's the use of going on any further?

P. S. I think the Boston Nationals joined the National league the same time the New York Giants did, and they cannot find a ball player from Boston to play in the All-Star game. I think Terry is trying to be bigger than Dizzy Dean now. DISGUSTED.

THE GARB OF THE GALS.

Lombard, Ill., July 1.—I want to say "amen" to the sentiments of Mr. Wagner in the Voice of the People concerning the girls and women running around in shorts and other immodest attire.

When women and young girls get back to a stage of decency in dress you'll not see so many "moron" stories in the papers. WILLIAM J. KERR.

THE COURT OF PUBLIC OPINION.

Chicago, July 2. — The case of the C. I. O. vs. American industry, which is now on trial before the court of public opinion, is very interesting, also very confusing. As a member of the jury it may disqualify me when I admit that while my sympathies are 100 per cent for American unionism, yet they are 100 per cent against un-American unionism. My sympathies are, to a large degree, with Mr. Girdler, but I am compelled to admit that, in my opinion, he is not sufficiently clear as to what he means by "irresponsibility." He dwells too much upon social irresponsibility and not enough upon legal irresponsibility, and thereby fails to complete his case. And that deduction leads one straight to Capitol Hill, Washington, where we find a horde of demagogic politicians, but mighty few statesmen—the difference between a politician and a statesman being, as I understand it, the difference between today and tomorrow. The politician thinks of today in terms of patronage and votes, while the statesman thinks of tomorrow in terms of the welfare of America. But that deduction leads one to the conclusion that, after all, the real trouble lies in the intelligence of the American people as a whole and in their ability, or, rather, inability, to select proper men to represent them in Washington—men with brains enough to think and to enact honestly and clearly. But the thing lacks terminal facilities, for that conclusion leads one to philosophize and say that "the American people asked for it—now how do they like it?" THE OBSERVER.

INQUIRY.

Chicago, July 2.—At the outset let it be known the writer is not in political life nor has political aspirations, is not in the contracting business, and has no relatives so engaged, but is just a plain, everyday citizen. The following is one reason why our taxes keep mounting and mounting, until one day——

Some time ago there was quite a stir about solid rubber tires on trucks operating over the city streets, especially those of the United States postal department.

Just recently south State street from 19th to about 27th street was resurfaced. Now they are repaving and widening this street from 11th to 19th. The contractor who has the job of removing the old pavement and undersurface of this part of State street is operating heavy five ton trucks with solid rubber tires on the rear wheels over the resurfaced street from 19th to about 8700 south.

I think some of our city fathers could tell us why a contract is awarded to an organization whose equipment does not conform to existing regulations.

R. D. V.

THE CAR SEAT HANDICAP.

Chicago, July 2.—All Ye Steno's, Sec's, Etc.: Please give us fellows a break, too. When you depart from your homey domiciles in the early morning and board the Lake street "L" remember the young fellow going to work is as tired as you are, will you?

If we are seated [by some sign of the gods] and you beautiful damsels are standing, please don't give us one of those pet looks of yours that would freeze the coals in a blast furnace in Gary. You gals know we would gladly arise to the occasion if it were at all necessary, but, you see, it really isn't, is it? So all for himself [or herself], with you gals getting a head start. And may the fair sex win. CHARLES MOORE.

HORNER ACTION ON PAROLE BILL EXPECTED TODAY

Reform Measure in His Hands Ten Days.

Gov. Horner was expected to take action on the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bill today. The governor has not stated publicly whether he will sign the measure, veto it, or allow it to become a law without his signature. Many of the theorists who advocated a veto of the bill, which was passed by the assembly at the session just closed, said the governor indicated he would not grant their request. If he approves it the law will go into effect tomorrow.

The bill, under which judges of the Criminal court of Cook county and the downstate circuit judges may sentence criminals to indeterminate sentences, reached Gov. Horner's office on June 23. Today will be the tenth day [excluding Sundays] on which it has been before Gov. Horner officially, but it is known he has been considering it for months.

Entitled to More Time.

The Illinois constitution permits the governor only ten days after receiving a bill to consider action on the measure before it becomes a law without his signature, except when the legislature adjourns within the ten day period. The governor then may take an additional ten days. The legislature adjourned at midnight on June 30, which was within the ten day period after he received the bill, so that he is entitled to ten days more study after today.

Proponents and opponents of the parole reform program said they did not expect the governor, however, to take any more time to consider his decision.

Points to Political Merits.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission during the last ten years, was the leader of those urging the governor to sign.

Mr. Loesch yesterday pointed out that no patronage is involved in the Ward-Schnackenberg bill, as in the drivers' license bill, which failed of passage because of a fight for control of the jobs it would have created. Approval of the Ward-Schnackenberg bill would not affect the jobs of parole authorities, Mr. Loesch explained, although it would curb the authority of the seven members of the parole board.

Artist's view of the United States pavilion at the Paris exposition, which was opened yesterday.

PARIS, July 4.—(AP)—A squad of Sorbonne art students who spent last night in the rôle of house painters made it possible for the United States pavilion at the Paris exposition to be opened today on schedule with Fourth of July ceremonies.

Exposition officials spent several frantic hours yesterday when painters who had been putting a coat of white on the inside of the hall on the main floor and mezzanine quit at their regular time.

Forty art students, routed out of beds or cafés, agreed to finish the job. They did so just before dawn.

FIGHT ON STATE TAX EVADERS IS UP TO GOVERNOR

Bills to Plug the Leaks Await Signature.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 4.—[Special.]—Mounting sales tax collections are expected by Sam Nudelman, state director of finance, if Gov. Henry Horner approves a series of bills passed by the legislature which impose stringent enforcement provisions aimed to exact the last penny due from retail merchants.

From five to thirty millions in increased revenue is the wide but best estimate Nudelman can predict should the bills become law. Any sum within those two extremes would go far toward balancing the budget, which appears to be about twelve millions in the red for the coming biennium.

As his first step Nudelman plans to add about 200 to his auditing staf, which inspects books of retailers to determine whether they are paying 3 per cent of their sales.

May Revoke Certificates.

Under the 12 bills, which were introduced by Benjamin S. Adamokski of Chicago, the house majority leader, these auditors and all other employés of the finance department, could be authorized to revoke the certificate of registration of any retailer in the state if they found he was guilty of tax evasion.

Merchants would be required to keep their sales records for three years—the law now is two years—so that the auditors will have more time to examine their books. Should a tax deficiency be determined, the department could compute the amount and add a 5 per cent penalty and if wilful evasion were established, the penalty would be 25 per cent of the additional tax due.

Offer Aid to U. S.

Another of the Adamowski series would allow the department to reveal the tax paid by any retailer to the federal bureau of internal revenue, to aid the government in establishing income tax due. The government now gives the state access to its income tax records to aid it in collection and Nudelman said that the Illinois bill was in the nature of "reciprocity" for the federal favor.

In the same measure there is a provision permitting the department to reveal the names and addresses of all retailers who pay a tax. Permission would be granted to state whether a merchant had paid a tax but the amount of the tax could not be divulged.

In its search for laws to prevent evasion, the department even proposed and passed a bill requiring that the secretary of state could not grant articles of dissolution to a corporation until a statement had been received from the finance department showing that the corporation owed no sales tax.

Law Is Clarified.

Going further into the field of possible corporate evasion, another bill was passed holding liable the person who filed a return in behalf of the corporation. This was done by amending the original sales tax act to define a person to mean any firm, partnership, association, joint stock company, joint adventure, public or private corporation, or a receiver, executor, trustee, conservator, or other representative appointed by a court.

Amendments also were made to the motor fuel [gas tax] and liquor license laws in the effort to plug all loopholes of tax evasion. One of the Adamowski bills requires a motor fuel distributor whose license has been revoked to make a return to the department of finance covering the period between the date of his last payment and the revocation of his license, and also to pay the three cent tax on all fuel on hand at the time of revocation.

To ferret liquor license evasions, the department is authorized in the Adamowski series to confiscate all liquor found without a state stamp.

"All these bills," Nudelman said today, "represent our experience during the last two years with attempts to evade tax collections. If the governor signs them we propose to use every authority they grant. The only way we know to balance the budget is through the powers they authorize."

GEISHA GIRLS WIN STRIKE; RAISED ½ CENT AN HOUR

KISARAZU, Japan, July 4.—(AP)—Kisarazu's 100 geisha girls won their five day "liedown" strike today, but the fruits of victory were only about half an American cent each working hour.

Nevertheless the little girl singing and dancing entertainers and their friends celebrated with lantern parades, fireworks, and drinking parties what they considered the success of the strike, spent lying on the stone floor of a hilltop Buddhist temple.

The girls said they were overworked and poorly paid. A mediation committee, the temple's harassed high priest, the chief of police, and the town headman ruled that geisha fees be increased from about 9 to 12 cents a "hon"—the time it takes a stick of incense to burn—about two hours. But since two-thirds of the increase goes to geisha houseowners and restaurant keepers the girls' gain was only a cent a "hon."

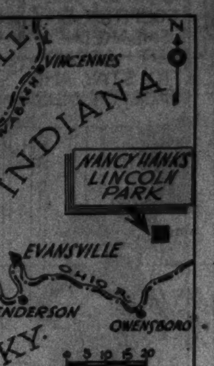
INDIANA STATE PARK INCREASED TO 1,700 ACRES

Boonville, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—Recent acquisition of another tract of land, increasing the total area to 1,700 acres, will bring about important changes in the Nancy Hanks Lincoln park, under constant improvement and development.



The new tract of land, purchased by the Indiana Lincoln union for the state, adjoins the northern end of the park and will permit construction of a new entrance, to be reached from state highway 45 and 62.

The Nancy Hanks Lincoln Memorial park, which embraces the land on which the Lincolns lived after coming to Indiana from Kentucky when the boy Abraham was 8 years old, is in reality two parks now.

All of the area north of highway 162 is known as Nancy Hanks Memorial park. This area includes the site of the Lincoln homestead, the grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of the emancipator, the parking area about the towering flagpole at the entrance and the trail leading through the park to various stones marking important dates in the life of Lincoln.

South of the highway the section is known as the Lincoln State park, in which are recreational facilities.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

A Deal in Wheat

July 4, 1937.

DOWN in the wheat pit of the Chicago Board of Trade an experiment is being conducted by the Tribune's farms. The test was started on June 21. For this grain marketing experiment the farms' prospective wheat crop, estimated at approximately 2,000 bushels, was divided into two equal lots.

Marketing methods will be compared by selling half the crop in the usual way for cash this fall. On the other half the producer's hedge is being used in the futures market. When it was decided to offer wheat for future delivery in September steps were taken to see what a farmer must do to sell wheat in the futures market.

Could he personally mount the rim of the Board of Trade's wheat pit by the side of other traders and with hand signs and tongue shout to the world that he had a thousand bushels of wheat to sell for future delivery? No; only members of the Board of Trade have the privilege of trading in the pit.

Order Sent to Sell.

The next step was to employ a broker to handle the deal. Through telephone men on the floor of the exchange the order was flashed to the broker's pit representative instructing him to sell a contract representing 1,000 bushels of No. 2 red wheat at the market price. Since the order —written on the traditional pink ticket—was for less than 5,000 bushels, it was handled in the job lot section on the north edge of the pit.

It was offered on the largest grain market in the world, where daily sales average 35 million bushels, totaling 7½ billion bushels yearly in the 300 trading days. This is more than nine times the nation's annual wheat crop of 800 million bushels.

In a flash the 1,000 bushel contract was sold in the wheat pit, where, as farmers are sometimes surprised to learn, actual wheat is never sold. The sale on June 21, for September delivery, was made at the market price of $1.08¾ cents a bushel, totaling $1,087.50.

Margins Put Up.

A farmer who normally is accustomed to selling his wheat at the local elevator for cash paid on the day of delivery might have expected the broker to pay him the total of $1,087.50, minus brokerage fees, as soon as the flash came back from the pit indicating the sale had been made. But that is not the way of the futures market. Instead of promptly collecting on the contract, the Tribune farms were required, under exchange rules, to deposit with the broker money to cover margins.

Both buyer and seller must put up money to guarantee the consummation of the contract which is held by the Chicago Board of Trade Clearing House corporation. So the Tribune farms deposited $500 of margin money with the broker.

Since the sale was made wheat has climbed higher and higher due to crops being reduced by rust in the United States and drouth in Canada. This had not been anticipated by men at the farms who are now speculating on how much more they would have made for this year's crop if all of it had been saved and sold for cash.

Then Market Jumps.

The wheat market jumped up to the closing price of $1.27 a bushel yesterday, or 18¼ cents a bushel higher than it was the day the contract was sold. The farms' margin fund is gradually shrinking; $182.50 taken out by the broker to cover the difference between the sales price of $1.08¾ a bushel and yesterday's closing price of $1.27 a bushel leaves only $317.50.

Ho hum, such is the life of an experimenter. Men at the farms are expecting many more margin headaches because black rust continues to spread over America's wheat belt. They would not be surprised if the whole $500 is paid out to cover margins. But they still are sure of $1.08¾ a bushel on half the wheat crop when they cover the futures contract and sell in September the wheat that has not yet been cut.

"I got my start 30 years ago through a Tribune want ad"

THOUSANDS of successful men and women trace the course of their careers back to a Tribune want ad they answered many years ago.

The Tribune today, as for many years, is Chicago's recognized employment market.

Employers offer bona fide jobs in the Tribune because years of experience have proved to them that the kind of capable men and women they prefer to hire are far more likely to be found among readers of the Tribune.

No matter what kind of job you want, you are far more likely to find the opportunity you seek if you follow the help wanted advertising in the Tribune every day.

YOUTH CONGRESS DRAFTS PLAN TO REMAKE NATION

Many Radical Proposals O. K.'d by Committees.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 4.—[Special.]—The American Youth congress prepared its program today for making over America. Separated into committees it considered the social problems of the period and recommended numerous changes of the existing order. The committees in a general way favor the national administration's policies except that its program doesn't go far enough.

The labor group which has come into a dominant position since the last congress is the most articulate of any of the committees. Many of its members are active in the union movement.

Dozen Proposals Are Made.

The CCC got most of the attention. There were a dozen CCC bills presented. As finally rounded out by a subcommittee, the congress demands that the CCC be made permanent with a minimum wage of $40 a month, plus sustenance, clothes, and transportation, and that it be removed from war department control.

Other recommendations by the labor committee include one to repeal employés' contributions to unemployment insurance bills; to extend the Wagner act to cover household employés; to forbid the sale of tear gas to corporations; to prohibit interstate travel of union organizers or people looking for jobs; to forbid the use of armed forces against picketing and labor demonstrations.

Oppose Compulsory Arbitration.

The labor committee also recommended prohibiting the use of firearms in labor disputes, the paying of deputy sherifs by employers, and police interference with picket lines. The delegates recommended making it compulsory for an employer to sign a union agreement under the Wagner act and declared themselves opposed to any form of compulsory arbitration for the union.

They voted down a resolution that came in by mail to incorporate trade unions. The sponsor of this proposal did not make his name known.

Some of the proposals of the Democratic Liberties committee, which was commonly called by some of its members the Civil Liberties committee, follow:

Votes for residents of the District of Columbia; free the Scottsboro prisoners; provide aid and comfort for Thomas Mooney in prison in California; boycott goods of Germany, Italy, and Japan. The President's Supreme court packing bill was endorsed after a debate in which the objection was raised that some future president might be reactionary and that the precedent would be dangerous in his hands.

Petition Chicago Council.

A special petition was directed to the council and city of Chicago, directing it to provide for showing of the Paramount pictures of the steel strike riots.

The committee on agriculture also has its program. It favors a crop insurance plan to safeguard the farmers against adverse weather and markets.

MYRON COTTRELL, RETIRED BANKER, DIES IN WILMETTE

Myron Cottrell, 76 years old, former president of the Drexel State bank, died suddenly last night in his home at 112 6th street, Wilmette. He also controled banks in Maywood, and in Clarence and Logan, Ia. He retired more than ten years ago. Mr. Cottrell was born in Copenhagen, N. Y. He began his banking career in Iowa, and came to Chicago more than 25 years ago. He was a former member of the Chicago Athletic South Shore, and Shawnee country clubs. He is survived by his widow, Louie, and three children, Mrs. C. J. Perfitt, Mrs. Carl Peterson, and Durant Cottrell. Funeral services will be private.

REV. MATHISEN, RETIRED PASTOR, IS DEAD AT 78

The Rev. Gustav Mathisen, widely known among Scandinavian residents of Chicago, died Saturday night in Wesley Memorial hospital. He was 78 years old. His home was at 5029 Maypole avenue. Born in Norway, Mr. Mathisen lived in Chicago for 40 years and served most of the Norwegian Methodist churches of the city. He had been retired for some time. Surviving are three children, Ruth, Naomi, and Morris. Services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be in Mount Olive cemetery.

Mrs. Amelia Alberti, 79, Dies at Daughter's Home

Mrs. Amelia Alberti, 79 years old, a resident of Chicago for nearly 60 years, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frieda King, 3414 Fullerton avenue. Mrs. Alberti and her late husband, Edward, founded the Alberti Jewelry company at 1246 Milwaukee avenue 50 years ago. She is survived by her daughter, three brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the chapel at 3121 Fullerton avenue. Burial will be in Elm Lawn cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Finn Funeral Services Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth F. Finn, widow of Richard B. Finn, will be held at 2 p. m. today from her home at 610 East 35th street. Burial will be in Mount Greenwood cemetery. Mrs. Finn, who died last Thursday on her 55th wedding anniversary at the age of 74, was the first president of the Chicago Master Plumbers' Women's auxiliary. She is survived by a daughter Jeanette, and a son, William A. Finn.

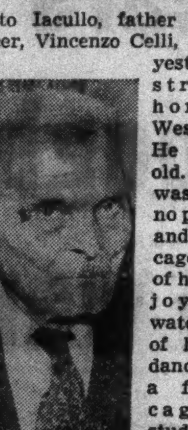
Sea Isle City, N. J., July 4.—[Special.]—Somewhere near here the little girl who is New Jersey's latest child bride was on a secret honeymoon today. She is Lucy Conti Sanzica, 14 years old, who was married Friday night to Michael Sanzica, 33, a fisherman who works with her father. Lucy's parents gave their written consent to the wedding and laughed at folks who thought she was too young to be married. Before going away with her husband Lucy said: "I'll be glad to get back and start keeping house."

VITO IACULLO, 94, DANCER'S FATHER, DIES OF STROKE

Vito Iacullo, father of the noted dancer, Vincenzo Celli, died suddenly yesterday of a stroke in his home at 1900 West Erie street. He was 94 years old. Mr. Iacullo was born in Salerno province, Italy, and came to Chicago in 1900. One of his greatest enjoyments was watching the rise of his son as a dancer. Vincenzo, a former Chicago newsboy, studied in Europe and became primo ballerino of La Scala Opera house in Milan.



Vito Iacullo.

Surviving Mr. Iacullo are his widow, Maria, 85 years old, and five children, Vincenzo, Charles, Joseph, Anthony, and Mrs. Rose Saracco. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at Holy Rosary church, Western avenue and Erie street. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

AGED SAND FLIES ARRIVE FOR LAST LAUGH IN CHICAGO

Growing old fast but determined to enjoy every minute of it, the sand flies swarmed into the North Shore last night for their annual convention.

If there were any business meetings they didn't bother to attend. They were too busy parading the streets and daring motorists to run over them, lining up solidly on shop windows so people couldn't see through and trying to cover up the street lights.

Sand flies, insects hatched in the water, have but a few hours to live. All they ask is that their life be as merry as it is short. Anything for a laugh, the sand flies always say.

Youth Contests Squad Car Alley Blockade; Arrested

William Treacy, 17 years old, 1115 Grove avenue, Evanston, son of Assistant State's Attorney Philip H. Treacy, challenged the right of an Evanston police squad car to block an alley yesterday and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. Policeman Bert Schlenger, whose squad car blocked the alley in the rear of 1100 Davis street on a trafic matter, said Treacy sounded his horn needlessly and repeatedly. Treacy, who said he sounded the horn only twice, will appear Thursday in Evanston Municipal court.

Smear a Sixty Foot Statue of Washington with Paint

Methuen, Mass., July 4.—(AP)—Police today hunted vandals who during the night smeared a 60 foot bronze statue of George Washington and its marble base with paint. Lettered on the side in red, white and blue paint was "F. D. R. Rah, rah, rah. Pater Patriea," underlined with three large crosses. A face of Lafayette on the base of the monument was covered with white paint. The statue was presented to the town in 1900 by Edward F. Searles, who bought it for $250,000 at the Chicago world fair.

It's Really a Good Story, if Dan Did Get Stuck with It

Glen Ridge, N. J., July 4.—[Special.]—A squirrel, cat, and dog figured today in the demolition of a drain pipe. Dan, a fox terrier, became wedged in the pipe. The cat had chased the squirrel into the drain, and Dan chased the cat.

It was all a mistake, explains Richard Klarich, 26 years old, 3121 Parnell avenue, human fish who got into deep water Saturday night at the Diversey beach.

Klarich faces a disorderly conduct charge tomorrow in Town Hall police court for trying to elude Policeman Walter A. Grabah after being ordered to leave the beach for defying Life Guard John Maloney's order to keep off a broken diving board.

As Grabah approached Klarich dived, heading for a bridge 200 yards away. The policeman overhauled him in a boat. Klarich then dived from the bridge and the policeman recaptured him.

"I just went back to see what was wrong with the board," the swimmer said. "When I told the policeman it was a mistake, he said he didn't want to listen, so I told him to stuff his ears with cotton." That was perhaps the biggest mistake.

EDWIN STEWART, ELGIN PUBLISHER, DIES SUDDENLY

Edwin E. Stewart, vice president and general manager of the David C. Cook Publishing company, Elgin, died last evening in Sherman hospital in Elgin a few hours after suffering a heart attack. Mr. Stewart was 65 years old.

Born in Nebraska, Mr. Stewart came to Elgin about 40 years ago. He was a newspaper man there before joining the Cook company, which published Sunday school material. He was stricken as he was preparing to take some children on a speedboat ride on the Fox river from his home at 380 River Bluff road, Elgin.

Surviving are his widow, Louise, a son, Edwin W. Stewart, and four daughters, Mrs. Perry Allerton, Mrs. Clarence Eggert, Mrs. Myron Yonker, and Mrs. W. E. Bilisoly of Denver, Colo.

Miss Starck to Be Bride of Paul Loeber

Betrothal Is Announced at Lake Geneva.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE most interesting romantic news of the holiday week-end came from Lake Geneva, where Mrs. Philip T. Starck of Wellington avenue announced the engagement of her daughter, Mildred Gloria, to Paul C. Loeber Jr., son of the Paul C. Loebers of Lake Forest. The announcement was made yesterday at a family party given by Mrs. Starck at her summer home. The party also was a birthday one for pretty Miss Starck, for she was born twenty-three years ago on Independence day.

Miss Starck made her debut three years ago after having finished at the Finch school in New York. Before that she attended the Bennett school in Millbrook, N. Y. Her fiancé is a graduate of Ohio State university. He married Jeannette Schreiner in 1934 and they were divorced two years later.

Sailing Events Enliven Lake Geneva Week-end.

The members of Mrs. Starck's house party as well as all of the other guests in Lake Geneva are having a particularly gay time this week-end. The big event today in sailing circles at the Lake Geneva Yacht club will be the race for the Dr. Otto L. Schmidt Memorial trophy. This is a perpetual prize, offered in memory of Dr. Schmidt, who was the "father" of yachting on the lake. Harry N. Gifford won the beautiful silver urn last year with his Little Smoke II.

The H. N. Gifford trophy was sailed for Saturday afternoon by class A yachts. Other racing events over the week-end are for the cub class, in which such youthful yachtsmen as Robert Tarrant, Nathan Osborne Jr., Henry Bartholomay III., and Walter McIntosh are competitors.

The Lake Geneva colony turned out in full force Saturday night for the dinner-dance at the Lake Geneva Country club. The Henry Bartholomays, the Albert F. Madleners, the Armin Brands, the Daniel Peterkins, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford, the Henry C. Bartholomays, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze, the Augustus F. Maxwells, and Mrs. C. Grommes Rehm were among those dancing. Many of the same group will return to the club today for a lobster buffet luncheon at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pelouze have as their week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. Bruce P. Adams [Medora Pelouze] and their baby, and Mr. Pelouze's sister, Mrs. William G. Cutler of Pasadena, Cal. A number of the lake people attended the summer theater production of "Fresh Fields" given by the Belfry players in the little Belfry theater near Williams Bay.

Camilla Folds to Be September Bride.

One of the first autumn brides will be Miss Camilla Folds, whose marriage to Arwed Boitel of Herisau, Switzerland, will take place Saturday, Sept. 4. The ceremony will be performed at St. Mark's Episcopal church in Evanston at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, and afterward there will be a reception at the home of Miss Folds' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Folds, on Asbury avenue.

Mr. Boitel will arrive from Switzerland the middle of August in time for many parties that no doubt will be given for him and his popular and lovely fiancée. It was just a year ago this month that Miss Folds met him abroad and their engagement was announced when he came here on a visit last December. He is taking his bride back to Switzerland, and they will live in St. Gall, near Zurich, where Mr. Boitel is engaged in his family's textile business.

Mr. and Mrs. Folds and their daughter have just returned from a brief vacation at their summer home at Lauderdale Lakes, Wis., and probably will not be able to go north again this summer, so busy will they be with preparations for the wedding and for arriving guests.

Miss Folds' elder brother, Thomas McKey Folds, who has been teaching art at Phillips Exeter academy, and his wife will come from New Hampshire the first of August, to remain until after the wedding. Charles Folds, her younger brother, is in business in North Carolina and will not be able to get away until just before the wedding.

Many to Watch Races at Arlington Park.

A popular place to spend the holiday today will be Arlington Park, where the Stars and Stripes handicap will be the featured event of the afternoon.

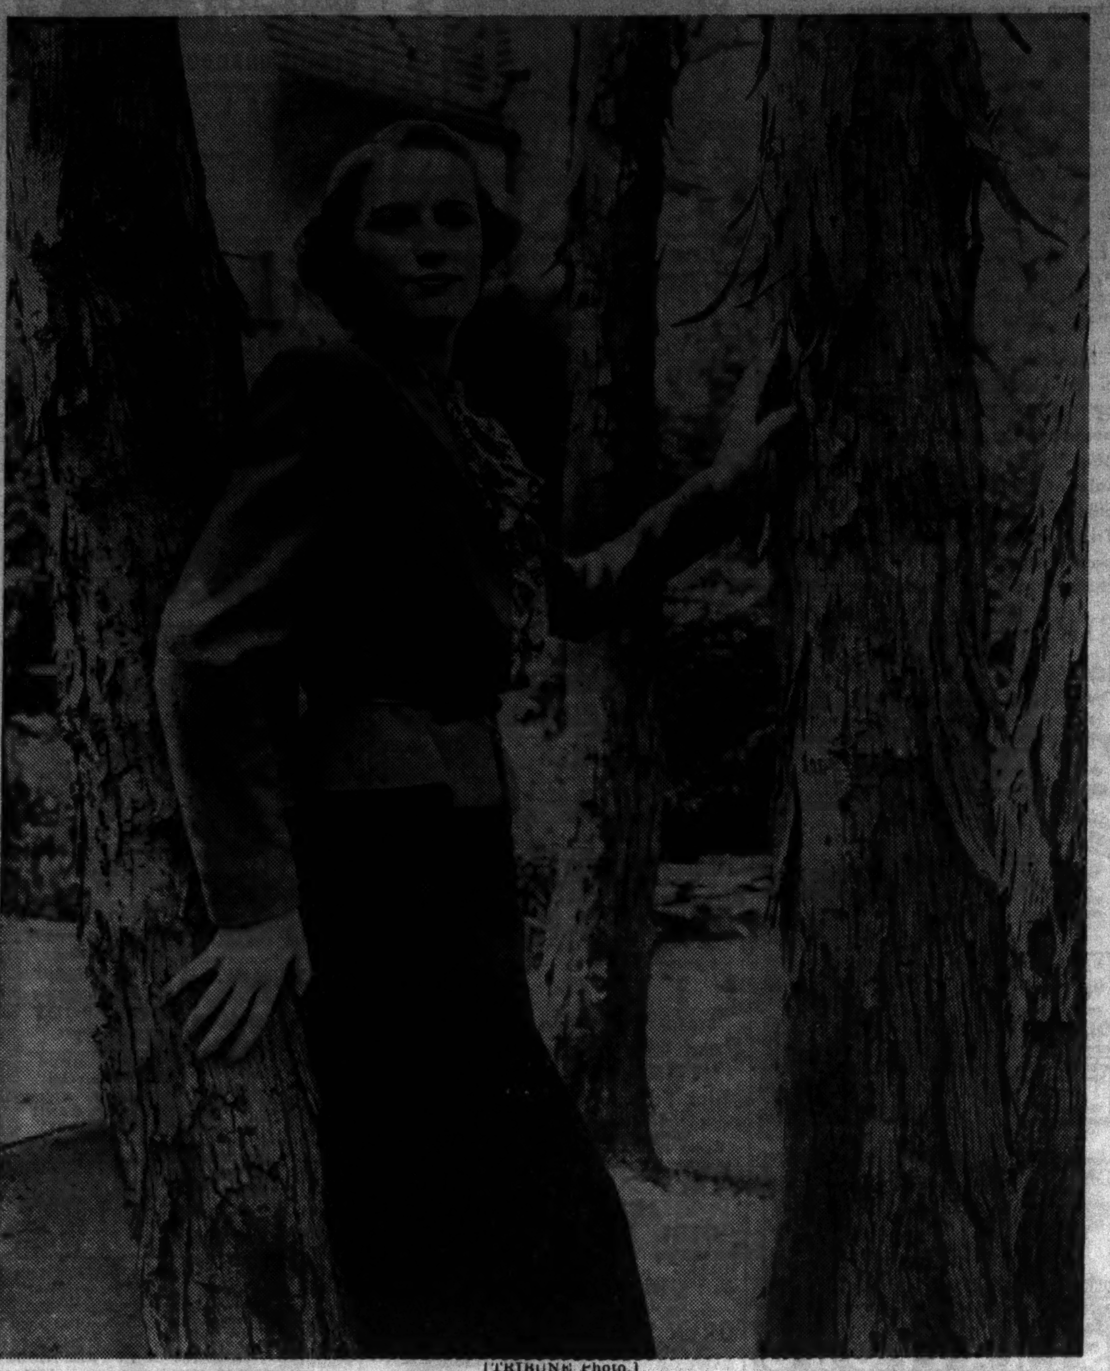
Almost every inch of space in the Post and Paddock club has been reserved for luncheon parties, among them one for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher of Detroit, at which Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, the Britton I. Budds, the Harold V. Ambergs, Edward D'Ancona, Herman Waldeck, and the Weymouth Kirklands will be guests.

The Fishers arrived on their yacht, the Nankado, just in time for the holiday week-end. They are to spend the remainder of the month aboard their boat, which is anchored off Lake Shore drive, and will attend the races at Arlington as guests of Charles A. McCulloch, chairman of the Arlington Jocky club, and Mrs. McCulloch.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hansen [Helen Walker Szukalska] and her little daughter, Kalinka, arrived in town from Miami Friday. They are staying at the Pearson. Mr. Hansen is on his way to a ranch in Wyoming.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell T. Avery and their daughter, Miss Nancy Avery, went up to their summer home in northern Michigan over the Fourth.

Returning Home to Plan Autumn Wedding



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Mary Elizabeth Fowler will return tomorrow from a trip to Cleveland where she attended the wedding of a former classmate at the Ogontz school. Miss Fowler, daughter of the Robert L. Fowlers of Winnetka, will be a bride herself in October. Her engagement to George A. Quinlan, son of Maj. and Mrs. George A. Quinlan of Wilmette, was announced in May.

Buyers View 2 Furniture Shows Today

BY MARCIA WINN.

Exhibitors in the summer furniture markets opening today at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart expected a heavy attendance despite the legal holiday.

Encouraging reports from both marts indicated an advance registration of more than 11,000 buyers of home furnishings. The increase in furniture volume was expected to be 40 per cent above 1936, which in turn was 30 per cent above 1935. The home building boom was cited as the reason for the increase.e

At the Merchandise Mart, where five home furnishings markets run concurrently, a $14,000,000 business is expected. Prices are from 10 to 25 per cent higher than a year ago, and luxury furniture, well made and expensive, is expected to be in demand.

Replacement of cheap furniture bought during the depression will be a considerable factor in the increased sales, both marts said.

Although period furniture, French and English, with modern touches, will predominate in the showings, beauty of fabric is being stressed at the Merchandise Mart. The lines of a chair may be simple, but it will be upholstered in a rich damask, brocatelle, satin, or striped fabric, often in deep fuchsia shades. Blue, Chinese red, and lemon yellow, especially yellow, are the leading colors.

Trafic problems connected with the show at the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, will be simplified with the opening to trafic of Lake Shore drive between Grand and Chicago avenues. It has been closed for several months.

Eighteenth century pieces, French provincial, and modern furniture will predominate at the American Mart, according to Lawrence H. Whiting, president. Modern piecese, with simple, strong lines, are creeping into the upper bracket prices. Particularly striking are the modern occasional chairs, which seem whittled out of a solid block of wood.

But for the "muebles manaña" [furniture of tomorrow] buyers must go to the Mexican, or Pan-American, exhibit at the American Mart. Made of tropical hardwoods, in colors designated as desert dawn [sandy] and tabasco brown, the furniture has provincial lines, with bottle glass and colored tile inlays, often in cactus shapes. Tiny sombreros and saddle stirrups serve as drawer pulls for dressers and tables.

Other novelties at this mart include a boat bar and a household robot. The robot is not mechanical, but is a Chippendale combination chest. It can be used as a chest of drawers, or as a complete writing desk.

Both showings are for home furnishing buyers only and will continue through July 17.

Here's Advice from Actress, Men: Know How to Kiss Girl

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 4.—[Special.]—"One rehearsal and we'll take it. We don't kid around on this set," shouts Director Chuck Reisner, and another scene begins in the Sophie Lang series of pictures, this one for "Sophie Lang Goes West."

Gertrude Michael

The scene is a night club. Two weeks ago it was a theater for stage shots in "This Way, Please," which snows how even the major studios cut down on budget overhead. The diners sit at tables on the stage while the orchestra "plays" in the pit below, which makes a unique night club arrangement to those who don't know it is a made-over theater. Just enough seats have been taken out in front so that tables and diners can be placed in the foreground.

For the "Sophie Lang" scene the hundred extras really have to act, in addition to providing atmosphere. The orchestra gives the extras a few bars of "Lady Be Good" and then it is up to the extras to trip the light fantastic without music.

The musicians gayly "blast" away, but it's only make-believe, whacking 'cellos, puffing away at horns, pounding pianos, but being sure not to make a sound. They'll dub the tune in later to fit the needs of the picture. The main concern on this scene is the dialog of Sandra Storme and Lee Bowman, which must be recorded so that it is heard above the music.

The picture is a big opportunity for Miss Storme. She's a British model who was brought over here by Paramount for a small, nonspeaking part in "Artists and Models." Her dramatic possibilities, as well as her shape, so impressed studio executives that she was placed in this, her second picture, as second lead to Gertrude Michael. The latter plays Sophie Lang, the international jewel thief. Miss Storme is tall and blonde and knows how to wear clothes.

Lee Bowman, whom Paramount is pushing toward the top as fast as it can, has his first lead in this picture. Another newcomer is Barlowe Borland, a Scotch character actor who has been placed under contract by the studio after a number of free lance successes there. He's short, rotund, and possesses a kindly face under thatches of gray hair. Paramount believes he will be one of its important comic reliefs.

The heavy of the picture is Larry Crabbe, who, behind the foliage of a villainous mustache, gives all the appearance of a menace.

"A man should know how to kiss a woman," Gertrude Michael was declaring in a conversation between scenes. "If he doesn't, he has no business kissing a woman. When he does, the problem is hers and she should accept full responsibility. She should use indelible lipstick, and not get rouge on his collar or necktie."

Sandra Storme went further and suggested every lady should carry paper handkerchiefs enough to cover emergencies and a small tube of cold cream to remove cosmetic smudges on the gentleman's cheek.

Because there is a sultan part in the Sophie Lang picture, the studio has hired Bhogwan Singh, expert on Hindu matters, to advise on nothing but the proper manner of wrapping turbans. Singh is called in by the studios on all Indian matters.

Good Morning!

With surprise and delight I point to—

Shirley Temple the Second!

It is, perhaps, an exaggeration to state that Paramount's little Kitty Clancy is a dead ringer for Twentieth Century-Fox's wonder child. But it's not stretching the truth one bit to aver that Kitty looks and acts so much like the Shirley of several years ago, that you have the illusion the two children are one and the same.

A fight between an unworthy father and a desperate young mother for the custody of a child is the plot nucleus of "Midnight Madonna."

Warren William as Blackie Denbo, a gambler who, in strange manner becomes a devotee of Kay Barrie and her child, solves difficulties for the two he comes to love so much in highhanded and original fashion which involves much strategy, including the kidnaping of a judge.

He gives a clever performance as do Edward Ellis as the judge and doe-eyed Mady Correll—a newcomer—as the mother. [Miss Correll made me think so much of Marguerite Snow! She of "The Million Dollar Mystery"—remember?]

Supporting players were intelligently chosen and the excellent teamwork between director and cast causes the improbable to seem credible.

But it's Kitty Clancy's debut that makes "Midnight Madonna" a picture you won't forget! Drop me a line and tell me if I'm right.

Young Roosevelt and Bride Find Island Retreat

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND, N. B., July 4.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., and his bride, the former Ethel Dupont, found refuge today from a curious world in this island retreat in Passamaquoddy bay.

Coming from New York yesterday on their honeymoon trip, the couple took up quarters in the red clapboarded summer home of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt. The President's summer home, a more pretentious structure, is nearby.

Young Roosevelt indicated the couple's desire for absolute seclusion in a note saying "we feel entitled to complete privacy and peace for the present."

Both were in a happy frame of mind when they arrived here. Roosevelt said he planned to do some fishing in the next few days. His brother, James, was expected soon, he said.

First of Black Satin Dresses Come to Town

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Arriving with the black velvet hats and ready to tantalize you into ruining a week's allowance, are the new black dresses in satin and jersey. If you see them on a coolish day, they'll look sleek, smart and darn near irresistible.

They're exceedingly simple in streamline and fit like a smooth black outer skin. The shirring goes down the center of the bodice and down the short sleeves. The necklines are folded and rather high.

These knockout early blacks come in two styles—daytime dresses and interesting evening gowns. The daytime dresses have the tricky shirrings to the waistline only, the skirts are straight and clinging, and if you demand decoration, you can select the clipped affairs, or add your own.

The evening gowns are streamlined with a sleek emphasis. The waistlines are shirred and in some models the shirring extends from the deep V front line to the hem. The inevitable zippers serve both as trim and as fasteners that keep the gown clinging to the figure. Most of the gowns reach the anklelines and some are longer. Some have short cape sleeves and a lot come in regulation vee lines.

The satins are dull sheened, heavy, easy to drape. The jersey fabrics have a dull luster which goes well with plaster white accessories or copper chiffon stockings. Keep the rest of the outfit black.

Chaplain William Rafferty of the navy aircraft carrier Ranger performed the double ceremony, which also united Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Betty, song writer and actress, and Balie Peyton Legare Jr., a musician.

Commander Spencer and Wallis Warfield, for whom King Edward VIII. of England gave up his throne, were married twenty years ago. It was while they were living at Coronado that she met the then Prince of Wales. The Spencers were divorced in 1927.

The naval officer, who had been confined to a hospital with a broken leg, leaned on a cane during the marriage ceremony. He is 45 years old and his bride 44.

Ravinia Wins Acclaim with Holiday Music

Barry Applauds Iturbi and Symphony.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

This is the journal of a week-end spent largely at Ravinia park, where Sir Ernest MacMillan conducted the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the third, fourth, and fifth concerts of the current six week festival and José Iturbi contributed a piano concerto to each performance.

July 3 [evening]—Sir Ernest, who manages to look boyish and extremely competent at once, raises his baton for a first Chicago performance of his own transcription of two Bach choral preludes. The music is rich of texture, yet not so rich as to compromise the essential dignity of the noble old hymn tunes.

Arnold Bax's "The Garden of Fand," based on an Irish version of the tale of the sirens who lured travelers to destruction, is inordinately brilliant. The listener finds it hard to concentrate on the legendary, half-lit pictures which the music aims to paint. A pleasant touch of pseudo-scholarship; the ballet "Thamar," with its Caucasian setting, is built upon a legend identical in essence with the one which underlies the Bax work.

Delius' fragrant and Wordsworthian little poem, "On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring," leads to the Schumann piano concerto. Mr. Iturbi throws himself willingly into the spirit of its passionate romanticism. His tone is less fragile than it has been of late, his whole approach more subjective. There is a satisfying whole heartedness in his performance of the fabulously beautiful second movement and a proper note of iron power in the statement of the last Allegro's principal theme.

A wild ovation follows the Schumann. Shouted bravoes mix with the noise of pounding palms. The pianist responds with the Chopin Fantasie Impromptu, whose trio was one day to be borrowed by a popular song writer and to become famous under the title, "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows." Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1 brings the concert to an ear-splitting conclusion.

July 4 [afternoon]—The terrific downpour of an hour ago does not seem to have ruined attendance. The park is warm and sunny now as concert time approaches, and the free seats just outside the pavilion hold a goodly number of people.

A nice gesture of friendship from our northern neighbor is Canadian born Sir Ernest's performance of "The Star Spangled Banner." From that he goes to Elgar's cleverly constructed "Cockaigne" overture, then to the Beethoven Eighth symphony.

The conductor delights in the richness of the composer's imagination, especially in the intoxicating development section of the first movement. Here is a mature Beethoven, ready, almost, for the apocalyptic labors of the Ninth symphony, pausing to revel in his utter mastery of simple materials and in the open hearted beauty of sheer formal perfection. And to summarize movingly in what was possibly his last menuetto the faded and outworn courtliness of a form which had served him and his predecessors so well.

If the last movement of the Grieg concerto is musical hokum, it cer-

SYNOPSIS.

On his return from abroad Michael Eden, heir to millions, postpones his marriage to Katharine McCann because his foster father, John Millis, tells Michael his foster mother is ill and needs him. Katharine's roommate, Joan, is engaged to Michael's friend Terry Newton. From all sides Katharine is warned to break Michael away from John Millis. Millis asks Michael to sign a will making him Michael's heir. Michael signs, expecting to change the will after his marriage to Katharine. Mrs. Millis attempts suicide when she discovers her husband flirting with her nurse. Michael rescues her and agrees to take her away from Millis without telling any one where they are going.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A HASTY FAREWELL.

Once more Joan remembered her principles.

"Look here, Mike," she said eagerly, "don't you want to tell me what this is all about?"

He laughed. "You see, I've nothing to tell. I don't know myself. I'll run along now. Mother is going with me, and just now Terry is suping for me. I suspect he will be glad to see me turn up."

A light of resolution came into Joan's eyes. Michael saw it, and smiled.

"All right, Joan," he said, "you may. Pump Terry all you like. Tell him, please, that he has my permission to tell you all he knows, and all that he surmises."

Michael had left Kit's a few minutes earlier than necessary, in order to escape Joan's importunities. As he approached the station he thought he would probably be the first to arrive. He saw, however, that Terry had preceded him. The young man came over with a hilarious welcome.

"We are having a most successful evening," he boasted, in a cautious undertone. "It is no credit to me, beyond the well known fact that I showed good sense in choosing my relative. Uncle Amos heard that I was coming over, and attached himself to the party. I hope you don't mind?"

"Why should I mind, Terry? You will excuse me if I keep at a respectful distance. I admit that he awes me somewhat."

"He doesn't awe mama," Terry chuckled. "Not so you'd notice it!"

He nodded in the direction of Mrs. Millis and Amos Newton, who were strolling up and down looking singularly intimate and at ease. Mrs. Millis was flushed and smiling, and had the easy gracious manner of a woman who has grown up in the south where women are treated gallantly. She even had an air of gentle proprietorship of the distinguished man beside her, and he seemed quite reconciled to being appropriated. In her beautiful sables, with a great orchid pinned on the collar, she looked girlish and most attractive.

Michael walked over quickly to speak to them.

"Do you remember Michael?" Mrs. Millis asked, smiling up at her companion.

"Yes," Newton said, "I do."

He looked at Michael very straight. His eyes were friendly.

Michael stared at him oddly. "You never looked like your brother before," he blurted out. "But you do now."

At that moment Terry came up to carry Mrs. Millis away to settle a dispute about the baggage. Newton stood quietly beside Michael.

Michael was still staring at Newton thoughtfully. "I used to hope that something might remind you I was Dr. Newton's Mickey. But I had about given it up."

"I knew you from the moment you came into my class. But I didn't drag up the past. And you seem to know how to attack your problems quite capably. The stretch before you may be a little rough, however. If it proves too rough—will you let me get back of you?"

Michael looked frankly surprised.

"Wondering what this sudden interest on my part means?" asked Newton slowly.

"Yes, I was."

"Just that if you find the going still rough when you return that you'll take the trouble to tell me—and let me help you."

Michael drew a deep breath. "I'll do that. But when I return ——" His face lit up in a boyish smile. "When I return the rough spots will be over. And for Kit—smooth sailing as long as she lives!"

Newton flashed him a smile in return and turned quickly away. "I must join Mrs. Millis," he explained.

As Michael looked about him to see what had become of Terry he noticed a woman at a nearby newsstand. She was very much absorbed in a rack of postcards, and her back was toward Michael, yet he was vaguely conscious that he had seen her somewhere before.

"Terry," he said to his friend who joined him at that moment, "take a look at the woman at your right. I have a sensation of being watched."

Terry chuckled.

"It's not fatal," he said soothingly. "It may happen to you again some time. You mean the little thing in the plaid coat?"

"No. All in black."

"She's gone."

Michael turned to see for himself. The woman had vanished.

"Kind of funny," he insisted.

"Reporter, probably," Terry suggested. "If so, here's where the dean loses his carefully acquired reputation for being a woman hater. In his youth Uncle Amos cut a wide swath with the ladies. When he was in the air force he is said to have had a sweetheart at every landing. I hope John Millis never forgets himself and gets personal. Amos shoots and shoots straight. "Train's coming," Terry added, in slight relief. "Time to start the kissing. Damn it all, I do hate to see you go. How about it, Uncle Amos, shall we go along?"

"O, do!" Mrs. Millis said enthusiastically. "I could do with a little relief from my sober son."

"We can't do that," Amos said quickly. "I dont even wish to. Not when I have that literary correspondence all mapped out." He turned to the others. "I am offering to write Mrs. Millis each day a carefully composed letter. She lets me know whether I have passed or failed by whether she takes the trouble to answer the letter. If I make a score of 50 per cent I pass the course. You see, this is to be the foundation of a platonic friendship," he explained amiably. "I understand that Mr. Millis has a most tolerant attitude toward these platonic friendships, so I have no compunctions on that score."

"Michael!"

Two syllables have seldom said so much.

Michael gathered her into his arms, and looked down at her, smiling very hard and winking his eyes fast to rid them of the blinding tears.

"Kit darling, shall I take you?" he whispered. "Do you want me to take you along?"

"No, O no," the girl cried. "It's all right, Michael, I didn't come for that. Everything is all right, Michael." Then she buried her face on his shoulder. "But, Michael, do send for me soon."

When Michael had settled Mrs. Millis comfortably in her stateroom on the train, and had duly admired the gay assortment of candy and magazines and late novels with which she had been loaded down, he left her, telling her that, if she did not go to sleep at once, he would be back to talk with her for a little while.

He then went about a very definite bit of business.

At the end of twenty minutes he returned.

"Mother," he said, in a carefully controled voice, "we are being shadowed."

The woman, who had been looking weary and discontented, brightened. "Really?" she said.

Unchaperoned Week-Ends Still Tabooed

They're Likely to Wreck Girl's Reputation.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Now comes the annual deluge of letters asking about the propriety or impropriety of young women accepting invitations proffered by young men to spend week-ends or vacation weeks at their shore or camp cabins or other vacation spots without benefit of what was called, in the more Grundy-minded era, chaperonage.

Now, we want to ask you inquiring young women one, too. What is your honest, private and personal judgment of a girl who does dash off on the unconventionally arranged week-end or weekly outing? Honest, now? Don't hedge around saying, "but it can be done by a girl who can take care of herself." That's not a direct answer. What, in your own very private mind, do you think?

You see, if we say have a chaperon along, you'll argue that we are just an old-fashioned zanny out of step and out of line. And we would not mean a formidable old chaperon, either. We'd just mean some other woman to lend the added woman touch for gossip prevention.

O, yes, we know all about how things have changed since Maw was a vacation-minded girl. We know all about how girls are perfectly able to handle their own situations. We know full well that girls can get away with infinitely more today than an older generation could have, and still maintain a good reputation. But again we ask you inquiring young women, wouldn't you have a suspicion about the character of the girl who takes the Grundy law into her own hands and does what she pleases? Not even a tiny little suspicion?

Or, wouldn't it matter to you what she does? Would you keep on introducing her around to your nicest boy friends as a peach of a girl? Or to any of your friends? Would you trust her, say, with a youth in whom you yourself are interested? Honest, now! No hedging in the name of modern broadmindedness.

Do you think sustaining a reputation counts for less today than formerly? Or, don't you think that, no matter how nice a girl you are, it is hard to make others believe it if you put yourself in compromising or suspicious positions?

When Planning to Reduce, Get Yourself Sensibly Balanced Diet

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When you venture forth on a reducing diet, go about it sanely. The average person spends a lot of time talking about going on a reducing diet, threatening to start tomorrow, or the next day. Then, when she finally does make up her mind to do it, she is so anxious to take off the excess weight that she fails to use good judgment. She just wants to cut out everything that she imagines is fattening. And that's where a great mistake is made. I don't mean to imply that every woman does this. There are those who plan their diets scientifically. For those who don't, let me say that there are certain foods that MUST be included in daily consumption, if you are to maintain your usual strength so you may carry on as always.

Proteins build up the worn tissues. You must have an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals. Plan your diet to include the foods that provide these essentials. The protein foods are lean meats, cheese, milk, and eggs. If these are not included there will be a breaking down of muscular tissue, with a resulting weakening of the system.

For vitamins and minerals look to your fruits and vegetables. Eat them in quantities, both raw and cooked. They are low in calorie value, and do wonderful things for your system generally. A noted beauty authority, after years of experimenting with foods and diets, tells us that raw fruits and vegetables should comprise 50 per cent of the daily diet. They contain the necessary supply of minerals and vitamins needed to keep the skin, the sweat and grease glands, and hair functioning normally.

You want your skin and hair to remain lovely while you are reducing. The minerals also give the vitality that is an essential characteristic of the up and doing woman. There's no need to lose your vitality although your calorie count is low. Do your calorie cutting on fats, starches, and sugar. That means rich desserts are taboo, and that you mustn't allow yourself the privilege to nibbling on rolls while waiting for your meals to be served. It's surprising how much bread is consumed this way, and how many calories are added to your count.

Eat salads for luncheon, and salads for dinner, in addition to the cooked vegetables served with your main course. Plan your diet sanely.

Mastering makeup is the subject of the booklet, "Makeup Magic," by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor. You'll prize this compact booklet of beauty secrets. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

A sandwich cookie may be made to last twice as long by pulling the two halves tenderly apart and munching them separately. The filling usually clings to one-half, which gives you a plain cookie plus a frosted cookie, in other words, two cookies instead of one. This is a plain refutation of the erroneous idea that you can't eat your cookie and have it, too.

This free advice is submitted by an old hand in the art of cookie eating, whose newest favorite is chocolate peppermint sandwiches.

A chocolate peppermint sandwich consists of two crisp, flat chocolate cookies, held together by a peppermint confectioner's icing. Here are the recipes for both cookie and filling.

Chocolate Peppermint Sandwiches

[15 2½ inch sandwiches]

½ cup butter, margarine or other fat
½ cup sugar
1 egg
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1¼ cups flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon evaporated milk or cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cream the butter, add the sugar. Add unbeaten egg, mixing thoroughly and beating until light. Add melted chocolate. Sift dry ingredients together and add them gradually, adding evaporated milk and vanilla towards the last. Chill the dough for at least 15 minutes. Roll it out thinly, cut in rounds or heart-shaped, if desired, and bake on a cookie sheet for about eight minutes in a moderate [350 degrees] oven.

FILLING: When cookies are cool, spread half of them with this mixture, and cover with the other cookies: One tablespoon butter, creamed, one unbeaten egg white, 1½ cups confectioner's sugar, and three drops oil of peppermint.

It is important that the chocolate wafers be very thin when they are used in this way. When I make these sandwiches I roll the cookie dough between two sheets of waxed paper. In this way the dough may be rolled almost paper thin without the use of any flour in the rolling process. Flour not only detracts from the appearance of chocolate cookies, but too much of it will produce a tough cookie.

When the dough has been rolled I pull off the top layer of waxed paper and cut out the cookies. Then, instead of lifting the cookies from the paper to the cookie sheet, I remove the scraps and leave the cookies on the waxed paper. It is easy then to transfer paper with cookies on it to the baking sheet. And each cookie still is as perfectly shaped as it was when cut. To try to remove such thin cookies from a board to a baking sheet is almost disastrous.

Chocolate Peppermint Roll

½ cup flour
½ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla

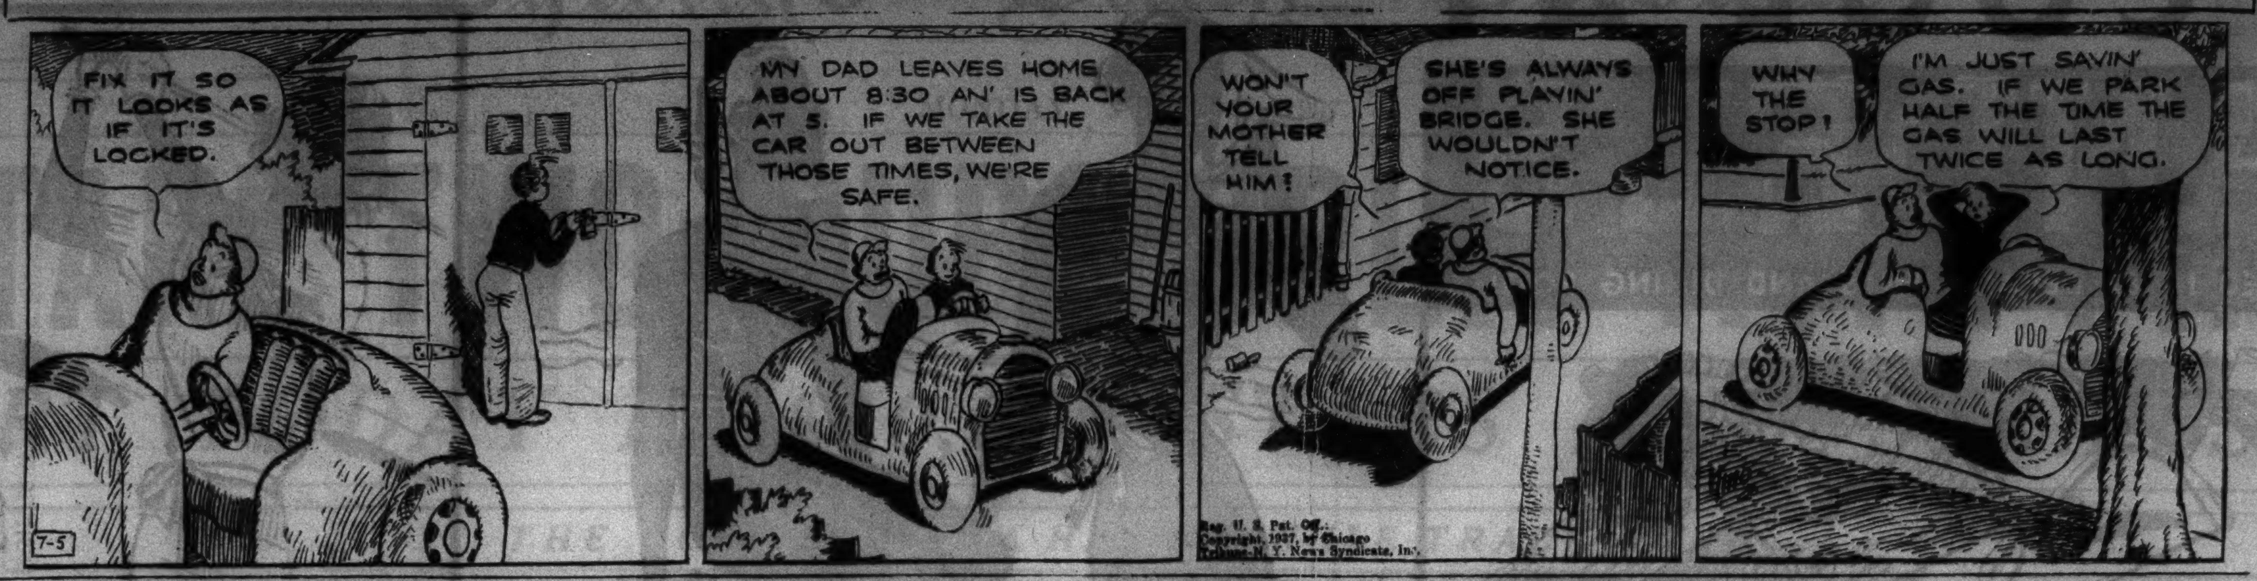
Sift dry ingredients, except sugar, together. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry, and fold in half the sugar. Add water to yolks and beat until light. Add remaining sugar gradually and beat until fluffy. Fold this mixture into the beaten whites. Fold in dry ingredients, add vanilla, and pour into an 8 by 14 inch pan lined with heavy waxed paper. Bake at 375 degrees. Turn out on a cloth sprinkled with confectioner's sugar, and remove wax paper from bottom of cake. Trim edges and roll at once, cloth and all. Cool, unroll, and spread with peppermint filling. Reroll and store in refrigerator until ready for use.

FILLING: Whip one cup cream and fold in one-fourth cup sugar and a few drops of peppermint flavoring, or add to the whipped cream one-half cup crushed peppermint candy.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Virginia Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Sherwood, to Harold Haydon, son of Dr. A. Eustace Haydon, head of the department of comparative religions at the University of Chicago, took place yesterday at the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapel. The bride, who formerly resided in Toledo, O., attended the University of Toledo. She and the bridegroom, a graduate of the University of Chicago, now director of art at George Williams college in Chicago, will sail for Europe on the Ile de France July 29 to spend six weeks abroad.

GASOLINE ALLEY—HALF AND HALF



Romper Suit for Sports Wear

WOMAN'S AND MISS' PLAY SUIT.

Paris began the idea originally, but leave it to smart Americans to perpetuate a really grand thing! We mean the romper play suit, the acme of comfort and something really extra special in chic. The customary shorts are not becoming to all types of silhouettes, but any type of figure may wear the bloomer-leg type of play panties, because the legs are full and do not accentuate overweight. It you're slim and willowy, so much the better, because the latest fashion trend, even in bathing suits, is toward full lines, not those which cling too much to the body.

No vacation or summer play wardrobe will be complete without at lease one suit of this type. The outfit presented in the pattern today offers two kinds of toppers, one a shirtwaist blouse and the other a halter. The blouse has a pretty rever neckline, and the halter top has a pert shirtwaist collar. The skirt has buttons down the front, and the halter is cut away, raglan fashion, at the armholes. You will like this ensemble, in both versions, in either white, pastel, or gayly printed cottons and linens, with contrasting binding, if you prefer. Gay shades and white hold the spotlight at the moment, so indulge your whims to your heart's content and be the belle of the beach or tennis court.

Style No. 3051 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material, with 1 yard of ribbon for the belt.

Sally's Guests to See Film of Marx Brothers

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[The activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Well, boys and girls, how did you like the good news in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE? I'll bet that you've made up your minds that this is one party you're not going to miss!

On Thursday, July 15, 100 happy boys and girls will go to the United Artists' theater with me to see the crazy Marx Brothers in their latest picture, "A Day at the Races."

Harpo, Chico and Groucho are funnier than ever in this picture, which has them performing in a sanitarium. Groucho plays Dr. Hugo Z. Hackenbush. The youngsters who are my guests will see Harpo do some of his talented harp playing and Chico will make his fingers dance on the piano keys.

These three are enough to make the perfect picture, but in addition to them the film has pretty Maureen O'Sullivan and the singing star, Allan Jones. Plus all this, the movie has plenty of gay, popular songs.

If you expect to be in the audience with me on July 15, you'd better write and tell me why you think you'd enjoy this movie. From the letters of all the youngsters who write in I'm going to try to select those to whom such a party will mean the most. You don't have to be formal in your letter, you can write it in your own words and tell me anything you believe will help to convince me that you should have an invitation.

All letters must be on my desk by next Thursday, and when writing you must remember to include your name, address and age. If you forget any one of these details you can not win an invitation.

ENGAGEMENT

Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Langhorst of Elmhurst announce the engagement of their daughter Jane to John Todd of Kalamazoo, Mich. Miss Langhorst is a graduate of Pine Manor, Wellesley, Mass. Mr. Todd is a graduate of Lake Forest academy and of Dartmouth.

tainly deserves a place among the most glorious pieces of hokum the art had produced. Mr. Iturbi achieves an immense effect. This time there is enthusiastic stamping added to the applause and the cries of "Bravo." The pianist's encore is a piquant little Spanish dance by Albeniz. The performance of Harl McDonald's three poems on traditional Aramaic and Hebraic themes is among the most important of recent Chicago premières. The music is remarkably eloquent and the composer's certainty of workmanship prevents the tremendous emotional content from seeming to turn in upon itself and to become lost in a welter of formlessness. Among Mr. McDonald's accomplishments is a mastery of the art of instrumentation.

The afternoon's music ends with another first performance — Otto Cesana's "Negro Heaven." It is a knowingly built piece by a man whose training has given him an almost morbid interest in rhythmic device.

July 4 [evening]—Sir Ernest has made a highly favorable impression during this, his first engagement in the Chicago territory. Tonight, in a performance of the Brahms Fourth symphony, he is once more displaying himself as a careful, reverent musician. He strives conscientiously to present the symphony as it is, confident that Brahms' ideas will achieve their effect if only they are adequately presented.

Another musical tribute to the Fourth—this time the "American Fantasy" of Herbert. For the third time in two days Mr. Iturbi comes to the platform. His choice this time is the Liszt E-flat concerto. Its genial fireworks bring on another enthusiastic ovation and the pianist adds Debussy's "Garden in the Rain."

The Tschaikowsky "1812" overture brings the week-end of music to a brilliant end. "Brilliant" is really no name for it. The cannons were there in a big way. At its conclusion the orchestra honored Sir Ernest and Mr. Iturbi with a resounding fanfare. The pavilion at Ravinia is silent now until Thursday. On that evening Ernest Ansermet begins a four concert cycle as guest conductor.

Red and Blue Effective Colors of a Star Quilt

Morning Star.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

It is difficult not to be enthusiastic over the charm and beauty of this lovely pieced block, "Morning Star." The red stars have blue interiors which carry out the color scheme of the star for which the quilt was named. The finished block measures 15 inches square, and only 30 squares are required for an entire coverlet. They are set together with two inch bands of white, and the finished quilt is bound with a one-half inch bias binding to match the stars.

45,000 Hear Marcelli Band in Grant Park

In Grant park last night 45,000 music lovers heard the U. Marcelli Symphonic band in the fourth of a series of sixty-eight concerts presented by the Chicago park district and the Chicago Federation of Musicians. Concert selections ranged from Tschaikowski to the vigorous "American Fantasia" of Victor Herbert. Tonight's program will be by Walter H. Steindel and his own orchestra, with Mary Ann Kauffman, dramatic soprano, as soloist.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

A small slam should not be bid whenever it depends upon more than one 50-50 circumstance.

WEST	EAST
♠ A K Q J	♠ 9 8 6 4 2
♥ A 6	♥ K Q 7 3
♦ K J 10 5	♦ 9 8 7
♣ K 7 4	♣ A

WEST	EAST
1 spade	3 spades
4 hearts	5 clubs
5 diamonds	5 spades

Now should West bid six spades or pass? In this case he should bid six spades. He knows [as the reader will learn when he reads about the asking bids] that East has the club ace and the heart king. [He knows that the spade suit unquestionably will not lose a trick.] The small slam will depend on a diamond finesse. There often are chances to avoid a finesse. In this case, North may lead diamonds; or East may have the queen; or a discard may be available for a losing diamond in East's hand. Change West's spade holding to ♠ A J 10 9 and he should pass five spades. He would require a second finesse to make a small slam.

TODAY'S HAND.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I met with a severe accident in the hand I am enclosing and, since I was severely criticized by my partner for my method of bidding, I am submitting the bidding to you for analysis. I was South.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

"West opened the singleton spade. I won and led a club toward dummy. East took the king and returned a heart. I ducked and the queen won. The ace and another club followed. East ruffed and led another heart. I finally came out with only two spade tricks, the ace of hearts and a diamond, so went down three, vulnerable, redoubled, a little matter of 1,600 points.

"I claim that my redouble was asking North to name his best suit. He claims that my redouble was a confirmation of the fact that I could make one spade. Who was right?

"Yours very truly,
"M. R. S., Baltimore."

Obviously, you still are using a bid that was discarded quite a while ago, namely, the S. O. S. redouble. So many misunderstandings took place in connection with this bid that it was thrown out of the Culbertson system, and out of the repertories of almost every expert, several years ago. It was found that there was no need for a redouble as a call for rescue. You had at your command a very simple and efficient rescue measure of your own, and how you could have failed to use it is hard to understand. Why did you not bid one no trump when East left in the take-out double for penalties? Your hand was nearly perfect for a no trump bid to start with. Surely you must have sensed that the spades were badly banked against you and that, therefore, you would be able to take more tricks at no trump than at spades. Also, if partner had failed to bid a five card suit directly over the take-out double, a no trump bid now, by pure logic, would be asking him to come to the rescue with such a suit. Since he actually held only four card suits, there would be no reason to increase the contract by bidding either two diamonds or two clubs.

The normal lead against one no trump would be the heart king, and with that lead only ordinary, careful play would be required to bring you seven tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the correct response to an opening heart bid with the following? ♠ K J 7 ♥ A J ♦ Q 10 7 5 ♣ Q 9 8 6.

Answer: Two no trump.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Although summer sun often brings about most becoming alterations in skin coloring, the changes it imposes on the hair are not nearly so apt to be flattering. A healthy tan, if it's even and not too pronounced, can be a decided beauty asset, but a bleached out, brittle, sunburned head of hair is a pretty sad sight as a rule.

You women who recognize this summer beauty problem will welcome the arrival of a smart little ltherette kit that's designed especially to keep tresses soft and lovely no matter how much of an outdoor enthusiast you choose to be. It contains just about everything that summer hair care demands:

First, there's a light protective oil, faintly but unobtrusively scented, which is to be sprayed sparingly over the entire head with an atomizer to protect the crowning glory from fading or becoming dry and brittle during long exposure to the sun. This contains similar ingredients to the protective preparations designed to prevent sunburn, filtering out the burning rays and allowing you to enjoy the open air without danger of unhappy after effects.

There's a grand scalp tonic, to help you combat the tendency toward dandruff which running in and out of the water is inclined to promote, and a small jar of a rather heavy, transparent jelly like cream, to be used in setting your waves. Only a very tiny amount is used for a single application, and it is smoothed over the hair while the hair is still wet. This is a grand softening agent for hair that has a tendency to be excessively dry—whether its naturally so, or has merely been sunburned—and it imparts a sleek, glossy sheen to the hair without making it at all greasy.

And lastly, knowing just as well as any body else that the ounce of prevention is preferable to the very best remedy, the manufacturer has included in her package a smart little bandana handkerchief with which to tie up the curls when you start off on a day's outing. Its smart as can be, with anchors and stars and crescents, and comes in a variety of colors.—M. S.

Vacations Are Necessary in Child's Life

Leisure Time Can Teach Invaluable Lessons.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It does every one good to get out of a rut—out of his own particular rut. It may be, after he's been out of that rut for a while that he finds when he comes back to it, it was a much nicer rut than he had thought it was. He may be merely refreshed. Or he may be changed and improved by the things that have happened to him when he was away from it.

These things are true of a child as well as of a grown person. Change is good for boys and girls—and vacation is an ideal time in which to try to manager for them something different from the whole year's routine of living. What that change may be will naturally be determined by many considerations—by the age of the child, by his or her temperament, physical condition, needs, and the family finances. Earlier this summer we have talked about the value of change, but today I want to quote from some remarks made by Ray Lyman Wilbur in a current magazine:

"But they [school and vacation] are both of vital importance in training and developing our boys and girls. In many ways the vacation period can be even more useful than the school in building self-reliance and character, and in helping the body and the mind to grow. There is often a real advantage in change of environment and associates. Frequently, unfortunate relationships are broken, and more wholesome ones substituted. During vacations there is always a better chance and more time to learn to do things that are not scheduled by the schools."

BY FRENCH LANE.

There's a definite promise of fireworks at the Arlington Park race course this afternoon when the $10,000 Stars and Stripes handicap is run for the ninth consecutive year.

It's a little point of honor which must be settled between two of the leading candidates for the prize.

A few days ago at Arlington Hal Price Headley's big horse, Whopper, and Mrs. Emil Denemark's great speedster, Finance, engaged in one of the most sensational races ever run in Chicago when they competed in the Brookwood purse at a mile.

They're First Choices Today.

At its close even the ultra-efficient Lightning Eye could not separate them. It was a dead heat. The two horses went to their separate barns each believing he had got the worst of it.

They are in the Stars and Stripes today as equal first choices in the wagering. The odds last night were 3 to 1. When they come together it will be the first glimpse either has had of the other since their bitter duel in the Brookwood.

Today the distance is a mile and a furlong. The same jockies who fought it out in the spectacular dead heat will be back in the saddle. There's a one pound shift in the weights. That's in Whopper's favor. In the Brookwood Whopper carried 115 pounds. Finance had 110 pounds on his back. Today Whopper packs 124 pounds Finance's impost is 120.

Furlong May Help Finance.

The extra furlong, however, may be in Finance's favor, as Whopper's greatest performances have all been at a mile or less. Finance turns in his finest races at a mile or more.

So it isn't any wonder the holiday crowd at Arlington Park this afternoon promises to number 40,000 or more.

Twelve of the best handicap performers in the country are in the struggle, including Warren Wright's Count Morse and the Millsdale stable's Infantry. Four handicap victories in a row have established Count Morse as one of the leaders in the route running ranks. A victory in the Frontier handicap at Detroit by Infantry recently served notice that he is not to be overlooked in any kind of company.

Eagle Pass in Sharp Condition.

A 3 year old that will command some attention in the Stars and Stripes is Eagle Pass, which gets into the race under 108 pounds. He was second to Reaping Reward in the Latonia Derby. He turned in an indifferent performance in the American Derby, but seems to have taken a fancy to the Arlington track. His training there indicates he will go into today's battle in the sharpest kind of condition. Two other lightweights that might cause trouble are the Nash brothers' Bright Light and Prince Torch owned by Frank Abbate of Chicago Heights.

In the first running back in 1929 Sun Beau, high money winner of the world, was beaten in the Independence day feature by the long shot Dowagiac, owned by Valentine Crane Jr. Sun Beau was whipped again in 1930, this time by Col. Bradley's great 3 year old, Blue Larkspur.

In-and-outer Plucky Play toppled the popular Mike Hall in 1931. The great champion Equipoise won the race in 1932. Indian Runner was the winner in 1933 and 1934. He was a long shot on each occasion. Alfred G. Vanderbilt's mighty champion, Discovery, won it in 1935. Last year Discovery was again in the race, but not in the money. The winner was the Canadian star, Stand Pat.

Last year 45,000 watched the running of the race. The Chicago and North Western will send the first race track special out of the North Western station shortly before 12 o'clock, and the specials will be run continuously from that time until 2:15 o'clock, which is post time for the first race.

2 Homers Help Lyons Whip Browns, 4-2; Sox Win 2d, 9-5

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 4.—Without seeming to exert themselves, the second place White Sox put on a double gallop today and not only made their own position more secure but sneaked up a half lap on the pace making Yankees. Part of the afternoon's success was recorded in a 4 to 2 triumph over the Browns in the first game of a double-header. Then Jim Dykes' stormers clouded up again and showered the Browns with a 9 to 5 count in the second battle.

In each affair Manager Dykes was able to offer what the enemy apparently looked upon as pitching class. First it was Ted Lyons, the 36 year old youngster, who was slightly disturbed by three safeties in the last inning when he had a five hit achievement within reach as a feature of his season's sixth victory. After Lyons had done his bit Monty Stratton was introduced, and because he had a wide lead it wasn't necessary for him to reveal all his tricks while compiling his tenth victory against four defeats.

Bonura, Kreevich, Hit Homers.

Aside from the pitching, the Sox provided amusement for the 6,000 spectators by exhibiting their home run talents. Zeke Bonura and Mike Kreevich performed in this capacity against Jack Knott in the first game. Zeke came up with No. 13 and Kreevich with No. 6.

In the second game Dixie Walker carried on the home run theme when he hit one with two mates on base to account for three of the first four runs registered off the pitching of Julio Bonetti.

Mr. Dykes, who since last Thursday had regarded himself as a third baseman sound of limb, went back into the ailing class after five innings of the first game had been played. While trying to hustle to base on a batted ball in the second inning he brought on a recurrence of the leg injury originally incurred during the spring tour. He retired in favor of Tony Piet, and probably will be out for another lengthy period.

Calling All Swimmers! Just 2 Days Left to Enter Races

Two days remain in which you may file your entry to compete in the Chicagoland 100 yard swimming races. The four sectional meets at Sherman park, Cermak pool, California park, and Whealan pool are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Your entries for these races must be in the mail before midnight tomorrow night.

Clip the blank which appears daily in these columns. If you wish, you may send in your name, address, and age without using the blank. Team entries likewise may be submitted in a group. Addresses are necessary so that each contestant can be mailed a postcard of acceptance giving the time of the races and the contestant's racing number.

Whealan pool [Sunday afternoon], Milwaukee and Devon avenues.

One hundred and eighty boys and girls will qualify at these four meets for the championships, which will be held Sunday afternoon, July 18, at Whealan pool.

Qualifiers to Get Medals.

Each qualifier will receive a gold medal. All contestants who prove their ability to swim 100 yards will receive a merit button and the winner of each race also will be awarded a badge.

The races have been sanctioned by the A. A. U. All swimmers 16 years of age and over must register with the A. A. U. on the day they compete. Registration fees will be paid by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Despite the holidays, when many Chicago families are out of the city, entries have continued to arrive at a record pace. As usual, most of the entries are from individuals, thus insuring a high percentage reporting for their trials. Each contestant will be notified of acceptance of his entry. The first of these cards will be mailed today and others will be sent as rapidly as the clerks can prepare the lists.

The Eighth Meet.

Thirty-seven boys and girls from the Lincoln Turn-Verein, 1019 Diversey parkway, have been entered in the eighth swim meet sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. Their names and addresses were submitted by Walter R. Moore, coach. All will compete in the sectional meet at Whealan pool next Sunday afternoon with the exception of Rudolph Schaefer, who is entered in Class E competition at California park on the same day.

Another team entry was received yesterday from Felix Kolk, athletic director of the Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street. This group included Lorraine Johnson, who last year won the Girls' Class A championship. Lorraine will compete this year in Class B for girls 13 and 14 years of age. All Madison A. C. swimmers will compete Saturday at Sherman park.

The rule which prohibits a champion from competing in the same age division a second time regardless of age has forced Betty Wyle of the Lake Shore Country club to enter in Class D for girls 17 and 18 years of age. Betty won the Class C title last year and is now 16 years of age. She is one of the finest swimmers in Illinois, but it remains to be seen if she can repeat her 100 yard victory with the handicap of competition with older girls. She will compete at the Whealan pool.

Out of Town Entries.

Out of town entries for the 100 yard championships received yesterday included Mary Jane Muhling of Joliet, Ill., who will represent the Joliet Y. M. C. A. in the class D trials at Cermak pool. Frederick Stanton, who lives near Logansport, Ind., has registered in Class E at Sherman park.

Five girls from the Wabash Y. M. C. A. have been entered in the trials at Sherman park. They represent the Terrapin club. They are Leola Mann, Class A; Frances Anderson, Class B, and Laura Jackson, Muriel Fleming, and Natalie Pollock, Class C.

WEST REPLACES GERALD WALKER ON ALL-STAR NINE

Browns Have Three in American Lineup.

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—Sammy West, veteran outfielder of the St. Louis Browns, today was selected to fill the vacancy in the American league's All-Star team which will face the National league at Griffith stadium Wednesday afternoon.

West replaces Gerald Walker, Detroit Tigers fly chaser, who will be prevented from appearing due to injuries received in yesterday's game. Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager who will pilot the American leaguers, made this selection this morning following a conference with President Will Harridge of the American league.

The inclusion of West in the midseason classic, gives the second division Browns the distinction of having three players on the All-Star roster. The others are Outfielder Beau Bell and Infielder Harland Clift.

West 14 Years in Baseball.

West, 33 years old, is a veteran of fourteen years in organized baseball with a lifetime batting average of .300. He has been in the American league eleven years. He is in his fifth season as a member of the Browns. His batting average for the current season is .358.

Each league is ready to inform any one who's interested that they will be playing for keeps when the picked squads clash.

For the first few years it was played they weren't quite certain about that point. They were content to let the fans pick their favorites and have the pennant-winning managers of the previous season put them through their paces. There was always the fear, however, that the game would detract from the world series as a profit-making venture as well as a test of strength between the two major leagues.

Tribune Sponsors First Game.

The first game in 1933 was sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The fans were allowed to name the squads and starting lineups by their votes and took the game to heart. The annual event has included such notable episodes as Babe Ruth's game-winning homer in the first game; Carl Hubbel's remarkable strikeout feats at New York in 1934 and the crowd of 70,000 which saw the 1935 game at Cleveland.

The National league didn't take the contest any too seriously until after its third straight defeat. Its prestige was at stake then, so the senior circuit called upon a great array of pitchers and stemmed the tide with a 4-3 victory at Boston last year. The National league took the next step by suggesting that the managers be allowed to pick their own teams for this year's game, figuring perhaps they would know better the strength of the stars.

Some Doubt Wisdom of Move.

There still is some doubt concerning this move. Squawks have arisen from all sides, first from the cash customers who felt they were being left out of their own party and then from rival managers who protested because their favorites were or were not included.

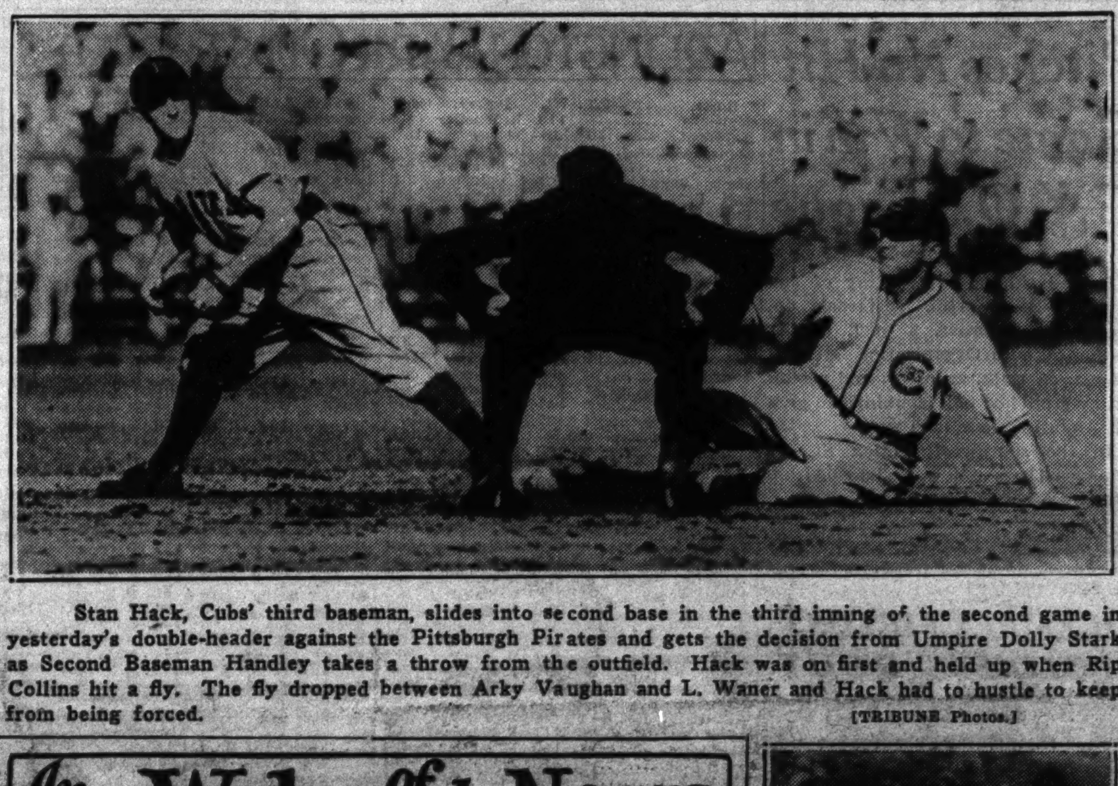
Notable omissions included Luke Appling of the White Sox, Heinie Manush of the Dodgers and Pinky Whitney of the Phillies while Boston experts have complained that American league manager Joe McCarthy, by naming Lefty Grove of the Red Sox for mound duty, made it impossible for him to oppose the Athletics in the series that follows.

President to Toss First Ball.

President Roosevelt, No. 1 fan among the capacity crowd of 42,000 that is expected, is due to toss out the first ball Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. [Chicago daylight time], marking the first appearance of the chief executive at an All-Star game.

In event of rain Wednesday, the game will be played at 11 a. m. [Chicago daylight time] Thursday morning.

HEROIC, BUT FUTILE AGAINST PIRATES



Stan Hack, Cubs' third baseman, slides into second base in the third inning of the second game in yesterday's double-header against the Pittsburgh Pirates and gets the decision from Umpire Dolly Stark as Second Baseman Handley takes a throw from the outfield. Hack was on first and held up when Rip Collins hit a fly. The fly dropped between Arky Vaughan and L. Waner and Hack had to hustle to keep from being forced. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Thank You, but——

This department appreciates the interest of readers who are perturbed by the action of baseball officials in taking from the fans the selection of players for the All-Star game, but instead of writing their objection to us they probably would obtain better results by directing their protests to Commissioner K. M. Landis, President William Harridge of the American league, and President Ford Frick of the National league.

You will always have that peg.

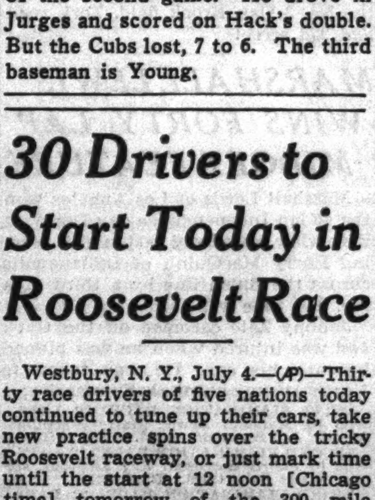
The Wake Depends Upon Its Friends.

Ten Years Ago Today—The Cubs won their seventh game in a row and were a half game out of first place.



Augie Galan slides into third base after tripling in the sixth inning of the second game. He drove in Jurges and scored on Hack's double. But the Cubs lost, 7 to 6. The third baseman is Young.

30 Drivers to Start Today in Roosevelt Race

Westbury, N. Y., July 4.—(AP)—Thirty race drivers of five nations today continued to tune up their cars, take new practice spins over the tricky Roosevelt raceway, or just mark time until the start at 12 noon [Chicago time] tomorrow of the 300 mile George Vanderbilt cup race, postponed from yesterday because of rain.

Few, if any, objected to the postponement, which was made necessary when a shower swept over the pretzel shaped track just as the cars were wheeled to the starting line. With clear weather forecast for tomorrow the promoters prepared for a crowd considerably larger than the 40,000 who turned out yesterday.

Most of the drivers took final practice spins this afternoon. Dick Seaman, British driver of a Mercedes car, gave the spectators a thrill when he skidded into the safety chute at the end of the long straightaway after approaching the "Lindbergh" turn at too high a speed. Seaman was clocked at 154 miles an hour on the long straightaway. Later Tazio Nuvolari, 1936 winner from Italy, staged an informal two lap brush with Seaman and was clocked at 138 miles per hour.

Wilbur Shaw, who will drive the Maserati car turned over to him at the last minute by Enzo Fiermonte, former heavyweight boxer, hailed the postponement as a good break.

"I had too little time to look over the car," said Shaw, 1937 Indianapolis winner. "This full day of preparation came as a pleasant surprise to me."

Root Rescues Davis in Opener.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs made it six in a row against first division teams when they took the first game of yesterday's double-header at Wrigley field, 8 to 5. But the Pirates, after losing the first three games of the series, hammered away at an assortment of Cub pitchers in the second game and won 7 to 6, after valiantly standing off a Cub rally in the ninth which had scored two runs and had placed the potential tying run on third and the potential winning run on first with only one out. Most of the crowd of 36,744 lingered to see the final putout, which was effected at 7:35 o'clock.

The split double-header enabled the other first division teams, the Giants and the Cardinals, to gain on both Wrigley field contestants, but the Cubs passed the famed July 4 milestone with a little more than a game lead over the second place Giants, a four game lead over their foes of today, the third place Cards, and retained their 5½ game edge over the Pirates.

Davis Fails as Pitcher.

The Cubs stayed with their spectacular home run attack in the first game. Six of their runs were driven in by homers, two in the first inning on Frank Demaree's smash, his third homer of the series, three on Curt Davis' homer in the fourth and one on Rip Collins' homer, also in the fourth. Davis, in his first time at bat broke a 2 all tie by driving in Ken O'Dea with a single. The other Cub run was scored in the big fourth on a triple by Augie Galan and Stan Hack's fly. Davis, despite his heroics in his only times at bat this season, did not stick around long enough to get credit for the victory. He was knocked out in the fifth.

Charley Root, who pitched great ball to end a big jam in the fifth, when, with three runs in and runners on third and first, he struck out two and made the third tap in front of the plate, pitched shutout ball the rest of the way. It was Root's third victory in the six game winning streak, the three tying his record for all last season.

One of the reasons for the failure of the Cub rally in the ninth inning of the second game, perhaps, was due to the fact that Manager Charley Grimm ran out of gents who are hired to hit. Nineteen Cubs, one fewer than the number used in the spectacular game against the Cardinals last Tuesday, were employed in the losing game yesterday. This, perhaps, was the reason that Tex Carleton was given the chance to strike out in the big clutch.

The first game was held up exactly an hour because of a shower in the first inning. It took 2 hours and 3 minutes to play the game, despite rapid work by the rapid relievers, Root and Mace Brown. The second game required 2 hours and 40 minutes, but still the Cubs were bitterly disappointed when they blew their big opportunity to tie it in the ninth. And a double-header coming up with the Cardinals this afternoon, a couple of three hour games if last week's tussling in St. Louis is a tip-off!

FIRST GAME

The rain started as the Cubs went to bat in the first inning of the first game. Galan and Hack supplied easy outs, but as the shower poured harder Collins singled to center. Demaree ran the count to three balls and two strikes and fouled a half dozen as the rain peppered down before he drove the ball over the pasteboard fence in left for a homer, scoring Collins. Then the game was suspended. Herman flied to L. Waner when the contest was resumed.

The Pirates employed the pasteboard fence to tie the score in the second inning. With one out, Dickshot singled to center and scored ahead of Young on the latter's No. 3 homer over the laboratory fence. It was the first instance in which a visitor profited by the quaint scenic structure.

Cubs Go Ahead Again.

The Cubs resumed the lead in their second. O'Dea opened with a single to left and advanced on Jurges' sacrifice. Marty singled to deep short, O'Dea stopping at third. Vaughan made a low throw on the play, but it was adjudged that Marty would have beaten a good toss. Davis, taking his first time at bat this season, singled to left, scoring O'Dea.

Then came the riotous Cub fourth. O'Dea knocked his second single and went to third on Jurges' single to center, Jurges reaching second on the throw to third. Suhr reached into the boxes to get Marty's foul, but Davis knocked a homer over the scenic fence, scoring O'Dea and Jurges. Galan tripled to right center and this sounded taps for Blanton, Brown replacing him. Hack flied to L. Waner, Galan scoring, then Collins socked his No. 10 homer high into the right field bleachers.

The Pirates did not seem the least

Conley, Mansor Clash in Semi-Final.

Oki Shikina, Japanese wrestler, will meet Bert Rubi tonight in the scheduled 90 minute windup bout at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Jack Conley and George Mansor, two of the best tragedians performing in this section of the country, will clash in a 30 minute semi-final. Promising Frankie Talaber clashes with Jack Curtis. The latter will be attempting to halt Frankie's march. Young Talaber is undefeated in thirty-six professional encounters. Al Williams encounters Al Perry, and Ray Ryan faces Billy Goelz.

Decision on Varias Milling's application for reinstatement, scheduled to be handed down at the Illinois boxing commission this afternoon, has been postponed until tomorrow because of the legal holiday celebration for Independence day. The Los Angeles featherweight is under suspension for one year. . . . Jimmy Christy will resume training at C. Y. O. center tomorrow in preparation for his bout against Sammy Angott, Louisville, Ky., junior lightweight, a ten round contest which tops the next show at Marigold Gardens one week from tonight.

One hundred members of the Catholic Youth organization have been notified of their eligibility to compete in the international amateur boxing matches at Soldiers' field Aug. 25 and have been ordered to report immediately to Head Coach Paddy Kane at C. Y. O. gymnasium for training instructions. The eligibles will receive tests in a series of shows to be held in the next month. The first of these cards will be offered at St. Philip's stadium, Van Buren street and Kedzie avenue, Friday night. Additional cards there will be presented July 23 and Aug. 6. Other programs are scheduled at Mark White square, July 22; Veterans' hospital, North Chicago, July 28; St. Hyacinth, 3636 Wolfram; St. Bride, 7809 Coles avenue, July 30. The boys surviving these contests will report to trainers with the possibility of being named on the team of sixteen which will meet a contingent of South American boxers at Soldiers' field.

Johnny Helstrom, one of the fighting twins from the north side, has been substituted for Verne Patterson in a four round contest against Joey Richards at Western stadium tomorrow. At the same time it was revealed that Tony Musto, Blue Island heavyweight, will replace Jack Fargo in a four round event against Bill Palmer. Another match at four rounds will bring together Johnny Rock and Georgie Woods at 145 pounds. Encounters at six rounds involve Alex Kettles and Paul Williams, Mickey Beal and Harry Ward, and George Engel and Bob La Monte. —F. M.

WHAT'S THIS? THE RANGER HASN'T BEEN ETHICAL?

Newport, R. I., July 4.—(AP)—The race committee of the New York Yacht club tonight ruled illegal the now famous double "spinnaker pole jibe" which Harold S. Vanderbilt executed in sending the cup yacht Ranger to victory June 23 against Gerard B. Lambert's Yankee.

Committeemen disclosed, however, that Vanderbilt had appealed the decision and a final ruling will be handed down July 7—if the jibe were held illegal Yankee might be declared the winner, breaking Ranger's winning streak in the trials to select a defender of the America's cup.

Tomorrow Ranger will race Chandler Hovey's Rainbow, the boat Vanderbilt sailed to victory over T. O. M. Sopwith's first British challenger, Endeavour, in 1934.

Rainbow has not won a race in her seven match contests with Ranger and the Yankee. The Yankee has defeated only Rainbow, and Ranger has scored eight straight victories.

Pitches No-Hit Game to Win in C.Y.O. League

Behind the no hit hurling of Joe Murfise, St. Martin, yesterday defeated St. Ambrose, 8 to 1, in the Catholic Youth Organization Baseball league. A walk, an error, and a man hit by a pitched ball combined to give St. Ambrose their lone run.

In the southwest section St. Alphonsus [Lemont] won, 3 to 0, from St. Philip Neri. Scores:

St. Martin, 8; St. Ambrose, 1. St. Alphonsus, 3; St. Philip Neri, 0. Five Holy Martyrs, Immaculate Conception [rain].
St. Basil, St. Michael [rain]. St. Adrian, St. Bronislava [rain].

OLYMPIA FIELDS POLOISTS ROUT MILWAUKEE, 8-2

The Olympia Fields senior polo team defeated Milwaukee, 8 to 2, yesterday at Bel Ranch field in a Midwest Polo league contest.

The Olympia Fields quartet had little trouble in turning back the invaders, taking a 3 to 0 lead in the first period and holding Milwaukee scoreless until the fifth chukker. Reed led the victor's attack with four goals, but was closely pressed for scoring honors by Schmidt, who had three. Lineups:

OLYMPIA FIELDS [8].		MILWAUKEE [2].
Brenza	No. 1	Kurnitz
Bairnefather	No. 2	Ehlers
Schmidt	No. 3	Wangerin
Reed	Back	Meiers

Olympia Fields	3	1	0	2	1	1—8
Milwaukee	0	0	0	0	1	1—2

Goals—Reed [4], Schmidt [3], Brenza, Kurnitz, Wangerin.

Wet grounds forced postponement of the Central league final between Oak Brook and Rising Sun Ranch. The title game will be played this afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock, on the No. 3 Oak Brook field, York road and 22d street.

Riggs Beats Cooke for Fox River Valley Title

Neenah, Wis., July 4.—(AP)—Robert L. Riggs, Los Angeles, national clay courts champion, won the men's singles title in the Fox river valley tennis tournament today, defeating Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., 6-2, 6-4, 6-5, 6-1.

A. A. U. Names 33 Stars for Track Tours

New York, July 4.—(AP)—Two more important track meets remain during the coming week before the leading stars begin preparing for jaunts to Europe or Japan or for the Pan-American games at Dallas July 15-18.

The interesting biennial invasion of the Oxford-Cambridge team combines with the second world labor meet, an expanded edition of the carnival started last year by the opponents of American participation in the Berlin Olympics, to give the fans considerable action. The Oxford-Cambridge team meets the Yale-Harvard athletes at Cambridge, Mass., Saturday while the labor carnival will be held in New York at Randall's Island stadium Sunday.

Pick Touring Teams.

Thirty-three athletes earned summer trips to Europe and Japan in the 50th annual championship meet of the Amateur Athletic union at Milwaukee yesterday, as well as winning the right to compete in the Pan-American athletic games at Dallas.

A 15 man team was selected to tour Japan, leaving the United States Aug. 5, and returning about Oct. 1. Ten will go to England, France, and Belgium and eight will compete in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Hungary, Italy, and Holland.

The Japan contingent selected at a meeting of the track and field committee of the A. A. U. will comprise:

Jack Weierhauser, Stanford, 100 and 200 meter dashes; Bob Young, the Olympic club, San Francisco, 400 meters; John Woodruff, University of Pittsburgh, 800 meters; Charles Fenske, Wisconsin, 1,500 meters; Allan Tolmich, Wayne university, Detroit, dashes and hurdles; Tom Moore, the Olympic club, 400 meter hurdles; James Reynolds, Stanford, shot put and discus; Bill Sefton and Earle Meadows of Southern California, pole vault; Dave Albritton, Ohio State, high jump; William Reitz, Southern California, javelin; Irving Folwartshny, Rhode Island State college, hammer throw and shot put; Billy Brown, Baker, La., hop, step, and jump; Floyd Lochner, University of Oklahoma, 5,000 meters and steeplechase, and Kermit King, Pittsburg, Kas., Teachers, broad jump.

Named for the European trip, for which ten athletes leave July 21 and return late in September, were:

Ben Johnson, Columbia university, dashes and broad jump; Charles Belcher Jr., Georgia Tech, 400 meters; Elroy Robinson of Fresno, Cal., 800 meters; Fritz Pollard Jr. of North Dakota, high hurdles; Jack Patterson, Rice institute, 400 meter hurdles; Ray Allee, Olympic club, shot put; George Varoff, University of Oregon, pole vault; Cornelius Johnson, Fresno, Cal., high jump; Ken Carpenter, Southern California, discus, and Bob Peoples, Oklahoma City, javelin.

The eight stars named to go to Sweden, Finland, Norway, and central Europe were Perrin Walker, College Park, Ga., dashes; Ray Malott, Stanford, 200 and 400 meters; Ross Bush, Southern California, 800 meters; Archie San Romani, Emporia, Kas., 1,500 meters; Roy Taley, Stanford, high hurdles; Cornelius Warmerdam, Fresno, Cal., pole vault; Phil Levy, Stanford, discus, and Mel Walker, Ohio State, high jump.

Nicholson Leads Team.

The team to England will be under the direction of John Nicholson, track coach at Notre Dame; John McGee of Bowdoin, will head the Sweden party, and Charles Hunter of the Olympic club, San Francisco, will be in charge of the Japan party.

British Open Golf Tourney Starts Today

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, July 4.—(AP)—The most notable golf field in recent years converged upon a bleak, brown heath in this Scottish seaside village tonight to battle for Alf Padgham's British open golf crown.

The field of 260, including 19 Americans, 11 former champions and the best players Europe can produce, will play the first qualifying round tomorrow over the neighboring Carnoustie and Burnside courses. The second 18 hole qualifying test is scheduled Tuesday with the low 140 players and those tied for 140th place entering the 72 hole championship proper Wednesday.

Rain Sweeps Course.

Everybody rested today in deference to Scotland's reverence for the Sabbath and Scotland's rain. For the fourth straight day a wind-driven rain lashed the course and caused so much damage that even the Scots had to forget their vows to clean up the damage. The storm blew over huge refreshment and exhibition tents near the clubhouse and rained debris all over the course.

The course, built on a sandy stretch a mashie shot from the sea, was full of puddles. Though rain still pelted down and fog closed in at dusk, there was no indication the championship would not start promptly at 9 a. m. [4 a. m. Chicago time] tomorrow.

So strong is the field it appears impossible for Great Britian, relying almost entirely upon Henry Cotton, to withstand the threat of the American professionals, who as a group are quoted at even money to win. Soundly thrashed in the recent Ryder cup matches, the Britons remember America took eight out of the first ten places and five out of six the only two times the cup teams played in the British open before.

Play on Two Courses.

The 19 Americans and the American-born British amateur champion, Robert Sweeny, are evenly divided on the Carnoustie and Burnside courses tomorrow. Those playing the championship links are Johnny Revolta, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Ralph Guldahl, Joe Kirkwood, Charles Lacey, Denny Shute, Sylvester Ramsay and the amateurs, C. C. Trautner of Silver Spring, Md., and Charles Scott.

Tony Manero, 1935 U. S. open champion, and the veteran Walter Hagen, who was non-playing captain of the Ryder cup team, play at Burnside. The others who play the same course are Bobby Cruickshank, Gene Sarazen, Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, Ed. Dudley and the amateurs, Sweeney, Stuart Sheftel of Sands Point N. Y., and John Baily of Battle Creek, Mich.

MOTHER SEES SON KILLED IN RACING CRASH

Keene, N. H., July 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Pendergrace of Everett, Mass., today saw her 21 year old son, Croydon, crash to his death in the first of a series of five mile automobile races on the Swanzey half-mile dirt track before a holiday crowd of 5,000 persons.

Pendergrace was trailing the field when his racer shot to the right while rounding the first turn, ripped away 200 feet of the guard rail and rolled end over end into an adjoining field.

CHATT AND HESS EACH WIN TWICE IN CASTING MEET

Howard Chatt and George Hess divided honors in the weekly events of the Illinois Fly Casting club at Washington park yesterday, each winning two of the four events. Chatt won the dry and wet fly and Hess took the ⅜ and tied for the ⅝ ounce accuracy events. Summaries:

DRY FLY—Won by Howard Chatt, 93; Eddie Davis and Noel Weaver Jr. tied for second and third, 92.

⅝ OUNCE ACCURACY—George Hess and Charley Donaldson tied for first and second, 97; Howard Chatt, third, 98.

OLD WESTBURY, FOXHUNTERS WIN IN POLO TOURNEY

Westbury, N. Y., July 4.—[Special.]—Victories by Old Westbury and the Foxhunters featured today's six-game program in the Meadow Brook club cups tourney as more than 10,000 polo enthusiasts watched the action on the fields at the Meadow Brook club and Bostwick field.

Old Westbury, with Cecil Smith and Ivor Balding scoring five goals each, galloped to a 13 to 5 triumph over Roslyn. Raymond Guest played the starring rôle as the Foxhunters won, 7 to 6, from the Bostwick four.

WALTER SENIOR BEATS ALLISON FOR STATE TITLE

Marjorie Van Ryn Takes Women's Crown.

Walter Senior of San Francisco won the men's singles championship in the Illinois state tennis tournament at the Skokie Country club in Glencoe yesterday by defeating Wilmer Allison Jr. of Austin, Tex., top seeded player, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Allison was handicapped from the opening day of the tournament by an injured nerve in his right arm. Senior, however, was at the top of his game and forced Allison into numerous errors.

Allison Gains Lead.

In the first set, Allison gained a 1-0 lead and then the hard smashing Coast ace swept through 11 straight games before dropping one. Allison led 1-0 in the third set and Senior raced through the next six games to win the match. The match lasted only 45 minutes.

Senior, who is ranked No. 2 in northern California, in taking the title defeated Dan Kreer of Winnetka, 6-2, 6-2; Fred Le Pell of Chicago in the second round, 6-0, 6-2; John Foreman of Glencoe, 6-2, 6-2 in the third round; Bill Murphy of Chicago, 6-1, 6-4 in the quarter finals, and Samuel P. Hayes of South Hadley, Mass., 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 in the semi-finals.

The stroke analysis showed Allison 37 outs, Senior 24; Allison 38 nets, Senior 22; Allison 6 placements, Senior 13; Allison 7 double faults, Senior 1; Allison no aces, Senior none. Six of the 21 games were deuced.

Murphy Twins Win.

Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Austin, Texas, top seeded in the women's singles, was forced to play three sets before triumphing over Helen Fulton of Winnetka in the finals. The scores were 6-1, 4-6, 6-0.

The doubles trophy remained in Illinois when the Murphy twin combination, Chester and Bill, members of the University of Chicago varsity squad, won a hard fought five set match from Walter Senior and Johnny Moreno Jr. of Hollywood, Cal. The scores were 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

GALE FINISHES WITH A RUSH TO WIN YACHT RACE

Gale, star class yacht owned by Harry Nye, finished with a rush to win the second in a series of three races for the Sterling Morton trophy at Belmont harbor yesterday. Kamo, belonging to Russell Moon, was second, and Gemini, from the Sheridan Shore Yacht club, third, over the eight mile course. The Gale's time was 2 hours 43 minutes 38 seconds.

The final race in the series will be run this morning at Belmont harbor.

The yacht Alcor, skippered in part by Mrs. Rosalie Karas, the only woman contestant for the trophy, finished fifth yesterday. Assisting her at the helm was Clair Udell, part owner. The results and time of yesterday's race:

JUDGES REVERSE PHOTO FINISH; FANS FINISH IT

SAINT CLOUD, France, July 4.—(AP)—When Grande Beaute and Volombrosa finished neck and neck in the last race today, judges waited until the official photograph was developed and then declared Beaute the winner.

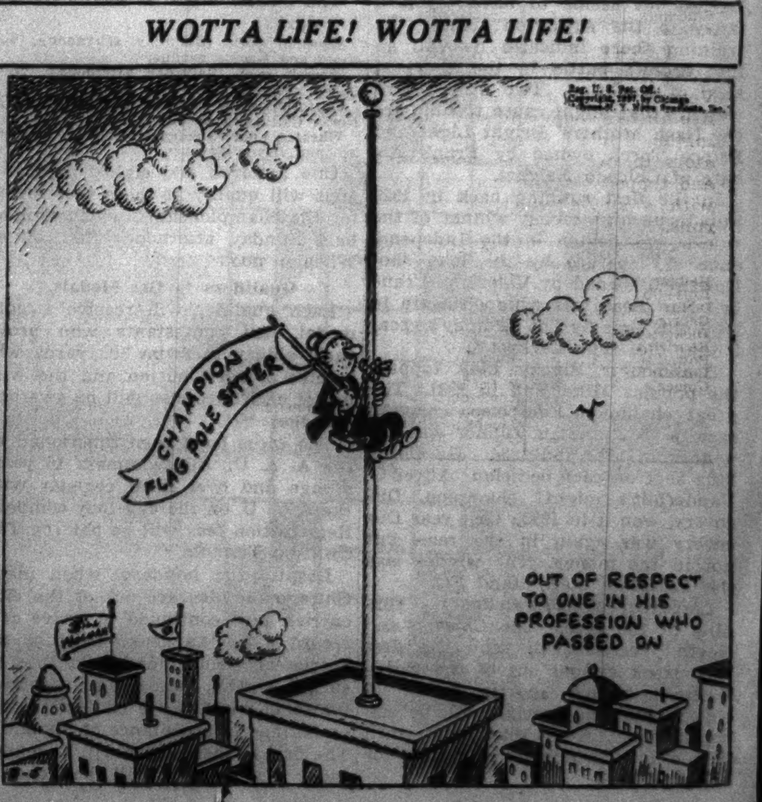
An angry crowd of race fans started to smash the judges' stand, whereupon the judges took a second look at the photograph and decided that Valombrosa won.

Instanly holders of tickets on Grande Beaute went into action, smashing the pari-mutuel booths and sending a police captain and two of his men to a hospital before mounted republican guardsmen restored order. About twelve persons were arrested.

Bonham, Oakland Hurler, Pitches No-Hit Game

Seattle, Wash., July 4.—(AP)—Ernie Bonham, Oakland right hander, pitched a no hit 2 to 0 victory over Seattle today in a seven inning Pacific Coast league game. Seattle won the first game of the double-header, 7 to 5. Bonham struck out two and issued two walks.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!



FELLER PITCHES FOUR INNINGS; STRIKES OUT 4

But His Error Helps Tigers to 3-2 Victory.

Cleveland, O., July 4.—(AP)—Bob Feller, American league strikeout champion, ran his season's record to two starts and two defeats today as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2, in a game cut short by rain after seven innings.

Feller, making his first start since he pulled a muscle in his arm in the six innings he pitched against the St. Louis Browns Apr. 24, went four innings today before Mel Harder replaced him.

In those four innings Feller struck out four men, gave up one hit and four walks, made an error, and let in three unearned runs, which proved enough to win the game.

To Take Regular Turn.

Harder and Joe Heving gave three additional hits in the three innings they pitched before a rainstorm cut off the end of the game and canceled the second game of a scheduled double-header. The Indians made nine hits off Elden Auker, but were unable to hit him in the pinches.

"I threw it away," Feller said afterward. Manager Steve O'Neill announced the 18 year old Iowan would take his regular turn on the mound hereafter.

Errors Figure in Scoring.

Greenberg led off the fourth inning with a walk. Goslin hit a perfect double play grounder which Lary fumbled and both runners were safe. York laid down a sacrifice bunt to Feller, who whirled and threw to third, which Hughes had left uncovered as he charged in for the bunt. The ball rebounded from the wall and into left field and Greenberg scored while Goslin took third and York second. Fox's single drove in both runners.

Giants Pound Mungo to Beat Dodgers, 6-5

New York, July 4.—(AP)—Van Lingle Mungo had the Giants eating out of his hand for six innings today, but they put on a display of batting fireworks in the seventh and eighth innings to score all their runs and beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 5.

For six innings Mungo blanked the National league champions with one hit and coasted along on a five run lead.

In the seventh, however, the Giants found the range and scored thir first two runs, and in the eighth they knocked Mungo out of the box, scoring four more.

Montanez Beats Wallace in San Juan Rainstorm

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 4.—Pedro Montanez, 136, defeated Frankie Wallace, 135½, in ten rounds tonight. The bout was started in a heavy rainstorm.

Cubs Defeat Pirates, 8 to 5; Then Lose 2d

SECOND GAME

The Pirates scored two runs in the second inning of the second game and would have scored at least another if Vaughan hadn't lost his bearings before Young socked his second homer of the afternoon. Vaughan walked and the count was three and nothing on Suhr when Vaughan made up his mind to run for second. He ran a dozen steps, then changed his mind. He was out trying to get back to first, Hartnett to Jurges to Collins. Suhr then struck out, but Dickshot walked. Young then made his homer, his fourth of the year, scoring behind Dickshot. Padden tried to duck one of Parmalee's wide ones and the ball hit his bat and bounded into right field for a single. Swift lined a single to left, Padden stopping at third, but Handley fanned.

The Cubs made a run in the second. Herman, Hartnett and Jurges knocked successive singles, Herman scoring. Then Marty sent a gentle fly to P. Waner in short right and Parmalee popped to Vaughan.

Cubs Tie Score.

The Cubs tied the score in the third. Hack singled to center with one out. Collins was credited with a single when Vaughan fumbled his popup to short left center, Hack reaching second by an eyelash. Demaree forced Collins, Hack stopping at third. Herman rammed a hot single off Handley's glove, Hack scoring. On a count of three balls and no strikes Hartnett tapped to Vaughan to force Herman.

The Pirates got one run home and had the bases full before the first putout was accomplished in the fourth, but got only two runs out of the mess. Suhr opened with a double to right and scored on Dickshot's single to center. Young singled to center, Dickshot stopping at second. Padden bunted and the bases were loaded after Hartnett threw low to Collins. Swift flied deep to Demaree, Dickshot scoring and Young taking third. Handley bounced to Collins, whose throw to Hartnett san Young at the plate. L. Waner walked, again filling the bases, but P. Waner forced L. Waner, Jurges to Herman.

Hack Goes Skating.

Hack's uncertainty on his feet gave the Pirates a run in the sixth, though Stan was not charged with any errors. With one out, Padden's easy grounder bounded through Hack's hands while he was struggling to keep anchored in the moisture around third base. Swift bounced a similar easy one Hack's way, and this time Hack sprawled, Swift being credited with a single. Handley forced Swift, but L. Waner walked, filling the bases. Jurges stopped P. Waner's ground ball back on the grass, but didn't have a chance for a play, Padden scoring and the bases remaining loaded. Vaughan then flied to Demaree.

Jurges walked to start the home sixth and reached second while Swift was throwing out Cavaretta. O'Dea batted for French and flied to L. Waner. Galan tripled past P. Waner, Jurges scoring. Hack doubled to right, scoring Galan. Collins fouled to Young.

Gus Busts One.

When Root went to the mound at the start of the seventh, the crowd gave him a tremendous greeting, but Suhr promptly spoiled the ovation by driving his No. 4 homer into the center field jury box.

Lucas batted for Swift at the start of the eighth and grounded out to Herman. Handley singled to right and L. Waner singled to left, Handley stopping at second. Shoun replaced Root and walked L. Waner on five pitches, filling the bases. Vaughan forced P. Waner, Jurges to Herman, Handley scoring. Vaughan stole second as Suhr fanned.

Demaree opened the Chicago ninth with a single to left. Young made a great stop of Herman's shot over third, but threw the ball past Suhr. Demaree reached third and Herman second, Herman getting a single and Young an error for the advance to second. Bottarini fanned. Jurges' grounder bounced away from Vaughan for a single, Demaree scoring and Herman stopping at third. Cavarretta singled to right, Herman scoring and Jurges reaching third. Carleton fouled in an attempted squeeze play, then struck out. Galan grounded to Bowman, who ran to first for the final putout.

Lee, Bryant Pitch Today Against Cards

Lee and Bryant will face the St. Louis Cardinals for the Cubs in this afternoon's doubleheader at Wrigley Field. Each will be after his fourth 1937 victory over the Cards, formerly known as the Gas House Gang. The Cubs will be seeking their eighth and possibly their ninth straight victories over the St. Louisans. If the Cubs win twice they will lead the Cards in the season series, 10 games to 2. Harrell and Winford, or Ryba, will do the St. Louis pitching.

All box seats for this afternoon's double-header have been sold for several days, but 20,000 grandstand seats will be placed on sale at 10 o'clock this morning. The gates will open at 10 o'clock.

The downpour, which halted the game after two were out and two Cub runs home in the first inning of the first game, emptied the boxes and the bleachers long before the umpires called time.

White Sox Go to Detroit for 2 Games Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 4.—The White Sox departed early this evening for Detroit, where they are booked for morning and afternoon arguments with the Tigers tomorrow. Vernon Kennedy will pitch one of the games and Thornton [Lefty] Lee the other.

Monty Stratton, one of the two Sox nominees for the All-Star game on Wednesday, went home tonight for a day of rest before proceeding to Washington. Luke Sewell, the other Sox representative on the American league squad, will spend Tuesday on his Ohio farm and head eastward from there.

Menacing rain clouds swept over the town around the noon hour, putting a crimp in the day's business. About 6,000 were present.

Don Barnes, president of the Browns, has given Manager Rogers Hornsby another vote of confidence. Barnes made this move in an effort to stop rumors that he and Hornsby were at odds.

White Sox Win Double Header from Browns who let go with a wild throw to Davis at first. On a hit and run play Hayes singled to right, Appling going to third. Carey robbed Dykes of a hit with a one handed stop back of second and tossed to Knickerbocker to force Hayes, Appling scoring. Sewell and Lyons subsided on infield taps.

Lyons was presented with two more runs in the third. After Radcliff had lofted to West in center Kreevich spanked his No. 6 homer into the distant seats in left center. Walker drew a free ride to first base and an instant later galloped around to the plate on Bonura's double into the left field corner. Zeke went to third on the throw-in and was left there when Appling flied to short right and Hayes grounded to Knickerbocker.

Browns Crash Through.

Two hits, which was as much as they had collected off Lyons in the first four innings, lifted the Browns out of the shutout class in the fifth. Bell opened with a two base drive against the wall in right center. Lyons fanned Allen and disposed of Knickerbocker on a pop to Appling. Heath then singled to center to score Bell.

There was a little disturbance in the ninth, but there was no indication that Lyons wasn't as fresh as when he started. West opened the final inning with a single to left. Clift flied to center, and Bell singled to right. Allen also flied to Kreevich. Knickerbocker singled to center, West scoring and Bell sprinting to third. Then Heath, who had collected three hits, tapped gently to Lyons for the final out.

SECOND GAME

Bonetti did fairly well for two innings of the second battle, but was rudely jolted by four runs in the third. This pleasant development originated with a single to left by Piet. Shea lined to West and Piet was forced by Stratton. Radcliff came through with another single. Kreevich also singled and Stratton scored. The rest of the four run dividend came from Walker's bat. He hammered his season's second homer onto the roof in right field and followed Radcliff and Kreevich across the plate.

The Sox made it 5 to 0 with a run in the fourth. Appling doubled to left and was sent home on a single by Hayes. Then the Browns suddenly became tough. They nicked Stratton for two runs in their half of the inning. Carey led off with a single to left and stopped at third on Davis' double against the right field wall. West popped to Bonura, but Clift slapped a fly to Radcliff and Carey scored after the catch. Bell banged a single into center and Davis scored. Allen closed the incident by bouncing to Piet.

White Sox Add Three More.

The Sox got on Bonetti's trail again in the sixth and added three runs to their total. Hayes started the scoring by beating out a bunt after one was out. Piet fouled to Davis. Shea survived on a pass and Stratton shot a single through short, Hayes counting. Radcliff's third hit was a single to right, on which Shea registered. Kreevich bounced a hit past Knickerbocker and Stratton went home.

Another member of the Chicago troupe reached the plate in the seventh. Bonura led off with a scorching drive which knocked the glove off Knickerbocker's hand, but Zeke wasn't credited with a hit. Zeke went to second on Appling's infield out and home on Hayes' single to left.

It's Browns' Turn.

The scoring of three runs by the Browns in the eighth was looked upon as harmless amusement. Knickerbocker singled and scored on a triple by Heath. The latter scored while Hayes was throwing out Bottomley, who batted for Bonetti. With Carey on first as the result of a single Davis flied to Walker, who dropped the ball. Davis dashed for second, failing to observe that Carey was there. When he attempted to retrace his steps he was out at first, Walker to Appling to Bonura. West doubled off the right field screen and Carey scored the last run of the afternoon.

Florals Defeat Mexicans; Mills, Coals Rained Out

GAMES TODAY.

Spencer Coals vs. Detroit Stars [2], 4200 N. Central avenue.
Duffy Florals vs. Mexicans [2], 74th and Aberdeen streets.

The Duffy Florals played four and one-half innings yesterday afternoon before the rain to get a 1 to 0 victory over the Carta Blanca Mexicans, but the scheduled semi-pro double-header between the Mills and the Spencer Coals at the Mills stadium was washed out.

The Florals scored in the fourth inning on Billows single to center, Aker's sacrifice, and White's scratch single through short. Dutch Kohlenberg, Florals' pitcher, allowed only two hits.

C., defeated Richard Bennett of the University of California, 6-1, 7-5, today to gain the finals of the invitational turf court tennis tournament of the Nassau Country club at Glen Cove, L. I. Hunt will play Frank Bowden of New York tomorrow afternoon for the Nassau bowl.

NORTH SIDE WINS POLICE BASEBALL OPENER, 7 TO 5

Winners Maintain Steady Offensive.

The North side police baseball team yesterday defeated the South Side club, 7 to 5, at Comiskey park in the first game of the 15th annual championship baseball series under the auspices of the Policemen's Benevolent Association of Chicago. Ten thousand saw the game, played on a muddy field.

Mike Delaney, a right hander, pitching for the North Side, struck out ten, issued only one pass, and yielded seven hits. Five hits were bunched with errors in the seventh and eighth innings when the South Siders scored four of their five runs. Roy Gutcher, another right hander, pitched for the South Siders, yielding nine hits, walking five, and striking out seven.

South Side Scores 3 in Eighth.

A pass to Brown, who was forced by Walsh, and Kammerer's single, gave the North Siders one run in the second inning, and they scored two more in the third on a walk to Murray, and hits by Stahlman, Brown, and Walsh. Singles by Glavin and Stahlman, and Gutcher's wild pitch produced another run in the fifth.

The South Siders had their biggest inning in the eighth, when they scored three runs. Lucas, Corcoran, and Blozak each made two hits to pace their team's offensive.

Three athletic events for the police preceded the ball game. Eddie Lucas, South Side entry, won the base circling contest in 15½ seconds. Tony Murray won the fungo hitting contest for the North Siders, slamming a fly ball 315 feet 10 inches. Jack Walsh, a teammate, was next with 286 feet. The South Siders, Mike Kelly and Daniel Kennelly, drove fungoes 282 feet 10 inches, and 260 feet 2 inches, respectively.

Morrin Wins Distance Throw.

In the distance baseball throw Art Morrin totaled 300 feet to win for the South Siders. His teammate, Eddie Dennis, threw 243 feet. Jake Leitzen, North Side, pegged 282 feet 6 inches, and John Ascher, from the same section, 244.

All the proceeds of the annual police games will be turned over to the Policemen's Benevolent association. The same teams meet again, starting at 2 o'clock this afternoon, at Comiskey park. The third and final game and athletic tests will be held next Sunday at Wrigley field.

SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

See Problems Taking Turn for Better.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—Week-end market reviews agree in noting an appreciable improvement in speculative sentiment. Aside from the substantial recovery in share prices made last week observers professed to find improvements in the labor situation with its threat to national recovery; the Spanish war, with its threat to the peace of Europe and the French financial crisis, with its attendant fears of a serious dislocation for the makeshift world currency system and trade arrangements. All of these major market influences are held to have taken a turn for the better over the week.

Another thing: Reports indicate that ample investment funds are on hand despite the fact that the long decline has put its mark on many small time trading accounts, particularly those in the margin column, and many commentators think that the time is ripe for some of the pent-up deposits to begin finding their way back into corporation securities.

Prices Down Sharply.

With prices at their present low levels—the "averages" are down almost exactly to where they were a year ago—the market is obviously a "buy," they submit. Average prices are 18 points more "inviting" to the bargain hunter than they were on March 8 last, they say, and the markdown in a wide assortment of issues has been considerably greater than this.

While the statistics show some seasonal decline in business activity, it is pointed out that first quarter corporation earnings this year were the highest since the depression began and that most companies found conditions in the second quarter to be even better. This showing was offset, it is conceded, by the "devalued" condition of the dollar and by continued uncertainties growing out of the still widespread strike movement and the backwardness of the administration in dealing with the lawless trend of the so-called labor movement. However, even with these perplexities business is agreed on all hands to be in a healthy stage and in a way to resume its advance in the fall, regardless of current handicaps.

Many Encouraging Signs.

The reopening of strike bound steel mills and the growing back to work movement was noted as one of the most encouraging developments that has come the market's way in weeks. Even the statistical record for the week was good for the season. In spite of the curtailment of operations in the steel industry, resumption of production in some of the strike zones served to increase the nation's ingot production last week.

Railroad freight car loadings were a little above those of the preceding week and substantially higher than those of the same period of last year. The Edison Electric institute reported the power output of the week ended June 26 as the highest since the week ended Jan. 23. Retail sales last week averaged 3 to 6 per cent better than the preceding week and continued to hold some 10 to 20 per cent above last year.

Some Adverse Factors.

Against these engaging statistics, market commentators were compelled to array adverse conclusions on the enormous and mounting public debt, steadily increasing taxes and continued uncertainties regarding the administration's future course toward business.

Stock prices advanced four of the five trading sessions of the week which ended Friday. The net gain on the period was more than 3 points, with steel, railroad, mining, and industrial shares generally sharing in the upturn. Trading continued to be of moderate volume, however, the turnover for the abbreviated week amounting to 3,484,115 shares.

HOLIDAY BUYING, VACATIONS AID CHICAGO TRADE

Heavy pre-holiday buying and increasing demands from vacationists caused a sharp rise in Chicago business last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Summer clothing and sports equipment were in greatest demand. Wholesalers reported many large repeat orders from retail outlets which had failed to anticipate the large demand, particularly in women's clothing. Public utility companies reported continued gains over last year.

Henry S. Faurot Asks U. S. to Reconsider Income Tax

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—Henry and Mrs. Catherine S. Faurot, Chicago, Ill., have asked the board of tax appeals to redetermine a $2,807 deficiency in 1935 income taxes assessed by the bureau of internal revenue.

Commercial Solvents.

Investors' Guide: Please send information regarding Commercial Solvents.—Mrs. T. S.

Answer: This company is the leading producer of butanol [butyl alcohol] and other industrial solvents. By expansion of facilities since 1933 it has become the second largest maker of ethyl alcohol; is in direct competition with principal companies in the alcohol field. Having the largest domestic capacity for fermentation of grain alcohol, this company is active in the manufacture of neutral spirits. During periods of slack demand for the latter facilities are turned to distilling whisky.

Primary business and source of income, however, continues to be solvents. Butanol and byproducts distilled from corn and molasses are used as intermediate chemicals. Butanol is used chiefly in making lacquers used largely by the automobile and furniture industries. The rayon, artificial lether, drug and chemical trades are other outlets.

Other products formed with butanol include acetone—sold to manufacturers of artificial silk, photographic films, and acetylene—and ethyl alcohol, used in foods and drugs, anti-freeze solutions, lackers, and varnishes. Methanol is sold to makers of formaldehyde, resins, and plastics. Dry ice—21,300,000 pounds of it in 1936—also is produced.

Earnings have been relatively stable. From a peak of $3,667,000 in 1929 net income declined to $1,282,000 in 1932. The record of succeeding years follows:

	*Sales.	Net income.	Income per shr.
1936	$47,856,000	$2,232,000	$0.85
1935	37,310,000	2,702,000	1.02
1934	10,813,000	2,346,000	.89
1933	[not reported]	2,328,000	.88

*Includes $27,097,000 paid in federal withdrawal taxes on alcohol in 1936 and $16,870,000 in 1935.

Net income in the first quarter of 1937 was $502,000, or 19 cents a share, compared with $618,000, or 23 cents, in the corresponding 1936 period.

Because of its diversification, the company tends to reflect general business activity and can push activities in more favorable fields. Decline in net income during the last year, however, calls attention to the importance of price conditions in the solvent field in relation to raw material costs. Keen competition has kept prices from advancing as fast as costs.

Capitalization is simple—2,636,878 shares of no par common stock. Dividends have been on a 60 cent annual basis since 1931, with extras of 25 cents in 1935 and 20 cents in 1936.

PRICES OF BONDS CHANGE LITTLE FOR LAST WEEK

New York, July 4.—(AP)—The bond market last week showed little sense of direction and finished virtually even with the previous Saturday's final levels. Trading continued listless and volume was consistently below $9,000,000, face amount, per session. The list moved off early in the period, steadied in midweek, and rallied during the two final sessions.

United States governments reversed that procedure by advancing on Monday and Tuesday and then edging lower for the remainder of the week. The early gains for these loans, however, were more extensive than the subsequent setbacks, and the list closed with small net advances.

In the corporate list low and medium priced railroad issues and utility bonds, after striking new lows in a year or more, staged a spirited recovery movement. Net gains ranging from major fractions to nearly 3 points were not uncommon for trading favorites in the former group, while advances of several points were seen frequently in the utility list.

Over 3¾ Billions of U. S. Securities Due in Year

Obligations of the United States government in the hands of the public, which will mature within twelve months, amount to $3,851,419,600. They consist of treasury bonds, notes, and noninterest-bearing discount bills.

Treasury Lays Plans to Plug Tax Loopholes

Washington, July 4.—(AP)—The treasury has sketched a legislative program to seal "loopholes" in the revenue laws, officials disclosed today. They added that the suggestions will be laid before the senate-house committee on tax evasion and avoidance whenever the committee is ready to receive it.

The committee will decide Tuesday whether to continue hearings in its tax investigation or to begin drafting legislation at once.

Treasury tax officials and attorneys already have explained to the committee a series of alleged tax avoidance devices, sprinkling their testimony with the names of leaders in finance, business and society.

May Boost Foreigners' Taxes.

The authorities disclosed that one major proposal to increase tax revenues will be an increase in the "withholding tax" levied against interest, dividends and other income paid nonresident aliens. Now 10 per cent, this tax may be more than doubled in an effort to put aliens on a taxpaying par with resident Americans.

Some authorities said foreigners receiving income from this country may be given a choice of paying a 20 to 30 per cent withholding tax or the regular income tax paid by residents.

Other proposals for tightening the tax structure include:

Modification of a provision allowing oil and mining companies to take tax reductions on account of depletion in mines or wells.

Increase in the existing surtax rates on personal holding companies. These rates now range from 8 to 48 per cent, compared with a surtax range of 4 to 75 per cent on individuals.

May Hit Holding Companies.

Changes in special tax deductions now allowed personal holding companies.

A requirement that individuals report their holdings in foreign companies, with penalties for failure to do so.

Modification by federal statute of community property laws in eight states. These laws permit husband and wife to divide income, filing separate tax reports and paying taxes in lower brackets.

Would Tax Foreign Concerns.

A provision requiring persons who create foreign corporations to pay taxes on the corporation's income. The taxes would be prorated according to each individual's holding of stock in the foreign company.

In addition to the legislative program, the treasury and state departments are working on proposals to exchange tax information with foreign countries. Treasury officials have told the congressional committee one of the chief difficulties in checking the amount of taxes due from Americans who set up companies in other countries has been lack of coöperation by officials of those countries. Methods now are being worked out by which this government will give other nations information about the holdings of their nationals here in return for similar data on Americans with holdings abroad.

U. S. Issues Complaint Against Chicago Company

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—The federal trade commission announced today it has issued a complaint against Mutual Printing, Inc., 751 E. 64th street, Chicago, charging unfair competition in the sale of sales promotion cards for use by retail merchants.

The commission said sales promotion cards sold by the company "were so designed as to involve use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by retail merchants."

Getting Back on Gold.

"Government officials and financial leaders in a number of countries keep talking about the desirability of ultimately getting their currencies back on the gold standard, but it seems to be mostly talk, writes a reader of this column. "They confer and issue statements but never seem to do anything about it. If they really want to return to the gold standard why don't they do so?"

It is much easier to abandon the gold standard than to return to it. In a country maintaining the gold standard, as explained before in this column, money is immediately exchangeable for its equivalent in gold coin or bullion. The citizenry—and foreigners as well—are free to draw out gold at any time and do what they will with it.

In order to reëstablish the gold standard after it has once been abandoned, therefore, the government must first be certain that public confidence in its money is strong enough to prevent recurrence of gold hoarding. Because such confidence may be lacking in times of widespread fear of war or inflation both the financial condition of the government and its relations with other nations must be good enough to instil confidence in the public mind before restrictions on the free flow of gold can be removed through a return to the gold standard.

Also, a currency on the gold standard is rigidly pegged at a certain level. Going off the gold standard invariably sets in motion a series of developments which make it difficult for a long time to determine at just what level the currency should be pegged when the gold standard is restored.

N. Y. CURB SHARES IMPROVE AFTER EARLY SETBACKS

New York, July 4.—(AP)—The Curb market began last week under pressure, with traders jittery over foreign developments and uncertain labor news. Prices sagged as selling hit most of the list and for a couple of days stocks churned around indecisively. In the middle of the week volume began to pick up a little, with the majority of the list drifting higher.

After excursions in both directions, Pittsburgh Plate Glass managed to end the week on an even keel. Sherwin Williams closed Friday at 128, about 3 points gain on the week. Aluminum company pursued a spectacular course to finish the week on a slightly higher note.

Some comment was occasioned when in the latter part of the week the securities and exchange commission decided to terminate unlisted trading privileges on the Curb exchange of the common and preferred stocks of American District Telegraph company [N. J.], controled by Western Union Telegraph company, effective after the close July 10.

WHEAT CLIMBS AS SPRING CROP FACES FAILURE

Prices Rise in All World Markets.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The possibility of a crop failure in the American northwest and in Canada has caused a major advance in wheat prices in the world markets in the last two weeks. Prices have advanced both on the strength of the damage that has already occurred and what may occur.

Significant is the fact that the European markets have risen along with prices in North America. Ordinarily, Europeans as buyers of wheat are not as quickly influenced by crop scares as are Americans and Canadians, who have wheat to sell. The natural reaction of importing countries to reports of crop damage abroad is skepticism.

But the seriousness of the threat to the American and Canadian crops cannot be denied and the world market has reflected the potentialities of the situation.

Need North American Grain.

The North American crop is vital to the world's bread supply this season. Last year's short crops cut reserve supplies to a minimum throughout the world. Southern hemisphere crops will not be ready for harvest until the end of the year. Meanwhile, Europe must draw on the United States and Canadian surpluses and the size of such surpluses will be the prime factor in determining the price level for months to come.

The Canadian crop outlook is far less promising than the outlook in the American northwest. There is the prospect of a fair crop in the spring wheat states in this country, although the possibility of a serious black rust infection has contributed to the rapid upswing in prices in the last fortnight.

Canadian Crop Deteriorates.

Serious crop deterioration has already occurred in Canada as a result of severe drouth over part of the producing belt. Present estimates suggest that western Canada will produce only 216 million bushels. Last year's crop of 212 million bushels was the smallest since 1919.

On the other hand, the forecasts suggest that the United States will have a spring wheat harvest of 229 million bushels, compared with the meager 1936 yield of 107 million bushels. Combined with the winter wheat crop of nearly 650 million bushels, this would give a total crop of about 871 millions.

Should these forecasts be borne out, this country will have a surplus to sell abroad of 200 million bushels or more and the prospect that every bushel of it will realize a good price.

Price Range for Week.

The net advance in wheat prices in Chicago last week was approximately 10 cents a bushel. The following table shows the range of prices for the week in wheat and other grain futures:

WHEAT.	High.	Low.	Close. July 3.	Close June 26.
July	$1.28¼	$1.13½	$1.25⅝	$1.15⅝-1.15¼
Sept.	1.28⅝	1.14⅝	1.27	1.16⅝-1.16¼
Dec.	1.30¼	1.16⅝	1.28½	1.18½-1.18¼

Season's range—July, 96⅝c to $1.30⅝; September, $1.05 to $1.28⅝; December, $1.07 to $1.30¼.

CORN.	High.	Low.	Close. July 3.	Close June 26.
July	$1.29⅞	$1.23	$1.25½	$1.23½-1.23⅝

STEEL OUTPUT ADVANCES AS STRIKES WANE

Resumption of operations last week by several steel companies whose plants have been closed by strikes resulted in a rise of 3½ points in the national steel operating rate to 77½ per cent of ingot capacity, the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

Youngstown made the largest gain, 46 points to 75 per cent of capacity. Cincinnati gained 7 points to 93 and Detroit 1 point to 100 per cent. The Pittsburgh area lost two points to 80 per cent because of the strike results at Johnstown.

CRUDE RUBBER SOURCES IN U. S. ARE INCREASING

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—The United States may obtain an increasing amount of rubber in the future from within its borders and South and Central America, a government scientist said today.

Leroy G. Polhamus, expert of the agriculture department, said rubber now is being produced experimentally in California and Florida, and that commercial interests are developing production in Brazil, Panama and Costa Rica.

The United States uses each year about 600,000 of the million tons of crude rubber produced by the world.

Polhamus said rubber trees from Brazil and Central America have withstood several winters in Florida, where waste lands may be used for commercial rubber production some day.

About 95 per cent of the world's rubber supply now comes from the East Indies and is controled by Great Britain. Polhamus said cheap labor there made commercial production in this country impossible, unless military and economic restrictions should send crude prices up to about $1 a pound, as happened during the world war.

Golden rod and the guayule plant, a native of Mexico and the far southwest and similar to sage brush, both have been utilized in producing rubber in California.

Polhamus said several thousand acres of guayule were planted, but production costs amounted to about 30 cents a pound for the rubber, at a time when depression sent rubber prices down to five and six cents.

A small percentage of the world's rubber exports now comes from native trees in Brazil and Bolivia. A large American automobile manufacturer established a commercial rubber area in Brazil about 1925. Trees require five to seven years to reach the production stage, Polhamus said, and so the output from this venture should be increasing rapidly.

Radio Renews Hopes for Amelia, Lost in Pacific—Chicago Celebrates Safe and Sane Fourth at Soldiers' Field

CROWD OF 65,000 AT CITY'S FINALE TO FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION—View of spectators at Soldiers' field last night who witnessed third annual event sponsored by Cook county council of the American Legion. A thrilling military and fireworks display was the climax to many festivities of the day throughout the city. [TRIBUNE Photo.] (Story on page 8.)

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

PYROTECHNICS IN THE SKY THRILL THRONG AT LEGION DISPLAY—Scene at Soldiers' field as fireworks display was presented. Airplanes, marching groups, and many bands took part in the show. Elsewhere yesterday parks and forest preserves were the scene of holiday activities by thousands of Chicagoans. (Story on page 8.)
